TWO-HOUR DRAMA OF TERROR

Helpless Girl, 4, Held Hostage at Knifepoint

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 42-year-old man held a terrified girl hostage at knifepoint for two hours Friday night, then suddenly released her unharmed, plunged the knife into his stomach and toppled to the ground.

Hundreds of spectators and dozens of policemen watched helplessly at a busy downtown intersection as the man threatened to stab the four-year-old girl, Debbie Tann. Earlier, Theodore Kaczor, 55, and his six-year-old son Teddy were slashed by a knife in the city's quiet west end.

Condition of the man who stabbed himself was not critical. Police said later he was a recent mental hospital patient.

The father and son were in fair condition in hospital

The man, who said he was Vojislav Stankovich, a Yugoslav, talked in garbled tones while holding police at bay with threats against Debbie. He spoke of his misery, unemployment and growing bitterness against society.

Sometimes he used an electronic loudspeaker provided by the police Most of the time he bellowed hoarsely.

Backed against the concrete wall of a building under construction he told how the day before he had asked the Yugoslavian consulate for a free ticket home but had been refused.

Stankovich said he had been working at Hudson's Hope in northern B.C. but was fired after two weeks. He said he stole a car and drove to Vancouver.

Police were chasing him, he claimed, and Friday morning he went to a Vancouver police station to get help. They told him to go away. He wandered around all day Friday, until at 8 p.m.

Then police said, he grabbed Teddy. Two elder boys told Stankovich to leave Teddy alone. The man left Teddy and started chasing them, but they got away.

The man returned, caught Teddy again and stabbed him. The child's father pulled his bleeding son from the man's arms and was slashed across the hands, chest and back.

"My husband and the other man were fighting," said Erna Kaczor, 48. "Then my husband fell down to the ground. He was holding onto my boy.

"The man with the knife grabbed my other boy (Frankie, 5) and I ran up to try and get him . . . The man said, 'don't come closer or I'll kill him'. . . . Then he dropped my son and ran down the lane."

Several blocks later Stankovich reached Debbie's home. She was playing on the front porch of her home with some friends.

Debbie screamed as the man scooped her into his arms and headed up the street. He carried her to a partly-finished building at Bidwell and Robson streets and it was there that a two-hour wait began.

The man squatted on his haunches, put one arm around Debbie's neck and pressed a knife with a six- to eight-inch blade across her stomach.

All available detectives were soon at the scene, joining 25 constables and four sergeants. Police co-ordinated control of the surging crowds with walkie-talkies.

The man asked for a ciga-

Victorians Urge Favorites On as Swiftsure Classic Off to Brisk Start

Mary Bower Grabs Lead In Classic

By TERRY IZZARD
Marine Reporter

The 49-foot sloop Mary Bower with owner J. H. Long of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club at the helm was leading a packed field in the 1966 Swiftsure classic at press time this afternoon.

Following closely in his wake was Maruffa skippered by J. Graham of Seattle Yacht Club.

There was less than a half-mile between the eight leaders of the largest ever Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca races which attracted 87 entries.

Sailing conditions were ideal for the record 67 boats.

With the 20 smaller boats in the shorter Juan de Fuca race it added up to the largest total entry ever.

First across the start line was the sloop Thunder with owner William Buchan of Corinthia Yacht Club, Seattle, at the helm.

The sleek, white vessel was closely followed by another Seattle contender, D. Skinner, in Kate 11.

The two Americans were almost neck-in-neck as they scurried into the face of a 10 mile-an-hour southwesterly for Albert Head.

While the majority of skippers plumped for the Canadian shore, 16 of the larger boats and

Cuba Fears U.S. Attack, Calls for Troop Support

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Friday night he is convinced the United States is planning "armed aggression" against Cuba and ordered a state of alert for Cuba's 100,000-man armed forces. Today reservists were being called up.

In a communique read over radio and television, Castro accused State Secretary Dean Rusk of "practically threatening us with war" over armed clashes between U.S. and Cuban forces along the perimeter of the U.S naval base at Guantanamo in southeastern Cuba.

President Osvaldo Dorticos immediately called in the ambassadors of Communist countries and asked for volunteers "willing to aid Cuba against the threat of aggression by Yankee imperialism."

The ambassadors present included those of China, the Soviet Union and North Viet Nam and the representative of the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam. There was no report on the response to Dorticos' request.

Castro said the U.S. defence department lied in claiming that six Cuban soldiers penetrated the U.S. base Monday and exchanged fire with American guards.

Rusk told a press conference Friday the United States had protested the incident and demanded that such actions stop. A defence department spokesman said as far as is known no one was injured in the exchange of gunfire.

CONTAINS NO TRUTH

Castro said the U.S. version "does not contain the slightest element of truth."

"Maybe by such improbable and false declarations they are trying to create psychological conditions to unleash an aggression against our country," he said.

Cuba will never "abandon custody of our territory, which is virtually what Rusk is demanding." Instead "what we will do immediately is put our revolutionary armed forces and all the people of Cuba in a state of alert."

He said the United States should not even bother to send a diplomatic note on such alle-

Secret Agreement On Peace Terms

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — Indonesia's three-year undeclared frontier war with Malaysia has unofficially ended, Malaysian government officials said today.

Peace talks between the two countries scheduled to open Monday in Bangkok, Thailand, are a mere "formality," they said. This indicated that Indonesia and Malaysia have already secretly agreed on peace terms.

In Jakarta, however, Foreign Minister Adam Malik said full agreement on the long-standing feud could not be expected to come out of the two-day Bangkok talks. "You can't settle anything in a minute," he said.

A high-level Indonesian military delegation, which flew here Friday with a message from Jakarta, apparently opened the way for a secret agreement on ending hostilities.

WIRE BRIEFS

Ship Abandoned

ABERDEEN, Scotland (Reuters)—The 15-man crew of the 1,189-ton Norwegian motor vessel Kings Star abandoned ship today when it ran aground about nine miles west of the Orkney Islands off Scotland's north coast.

Verdun Remembered

Reach Agreement

ATHENS (Reuters) — Greece and Cyprus tonight reached agreement on future handling of the Cypriot problem resulting from differences between the island's Greek and Turkish communities.

Greece and Turkey will hold talks in Brussels on Cyprus next month.

WITHDRAWAL from the Dominican presidential election scheduled Wednesday was announced today by former president Joaquin Balaguer in Santo Domingo. A source close to Balaguer, who leads the Reform Party, said the resignation was "serious" and not a political manoeuvre.

Outside Workers Seek Negotiation

VANCOUVER (CP)—The civic outside workers have asked for negotiation to end their three-week strike against the city.

In a telegram to Mayor Bill Rathie, today, the union proposed that negotiators for both sides go into continuous negotiating session on Monday and Tuesday and "make a special effort to effect a fair and honorable settlement."

Two-Prong Assault On Rebels

SAIGON (AP) — A combined force of 1,500 American marines and Vietnamese troops launched an amphibious and helicopter assault against the Viet Cong near the northern coastal city of Quang Ngai, the U.S. command announced today.

A spokesman said the joint force met little resistance in the coastal sweep. But reports indicated Allied troops initially failed to flush out many Viet Cong. They reported killing 15 of the enemy and capturing 20 suspects in the first four days

Meanwhile, demonstrators led by Buddhist monks plunged into the heart of Cholon, the Chinese section of Saigon, for the first time today and were dispersed by riot police firing tear gas.

Russia Sees Asia NATO

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia today charged the United States with fostering a NATO-type alliance among Asian nations which it said threatens the peace in the Far East.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said that a conference of Asian states next month in South Korea was aimed at building a northeast Asian treaty organization (NEATO).

Exports Face Major Setback

LONDON (Reuters)—Economic experts say there is a serious danger of major setbacks to Britain's export trade and critical balance of payments position because of the continuing seamen's strike.

More than 600 ships are idle in British ports because of the strike. The 62,500-member National Seamen's Union called the walkout 13 days ago to support demands for more pay and better conditions.

While newspaper headlines focus more on the effects on import of food, fuel and raw materials, economists see two main dangers arising from the dispute:

1. Britain might lose hard-won export markets to some of its competitors;

2. The balance of payments (difference between export revenue and import costs) will be increasingly hit by the loss of revenue earned by the 2,500-ship merchant fleet in carrying goods for other countries, and by extra payments to foreign ships to carry British exports.

Independent experts estimate that exports worth about £75,000,000 ($225,000,000) have been held up since the strike began.

STOPS CAR EXPORTS

Car exports alone, which normally run at the rate of £2,000,000 a day, have now virtually stopped as manufacturers switch their output to the home market or build up big fleets of vehicles awaiting delivery abroad.

Many big exporting firms in other industries are extending this weekend's traditional three-day Pentecost holiday to a full week for their workers as a result of the strike.

Exports usually flow in Britain's own ships at the rate of £60,000,000 a week. Some of these—officials do not yet know how many—have been transferred to foreign ships.

More of them, especially lightweight goods travelling to Western Europe and Ireland, have been set by air.

A Chamber of Shipping spokesman said:

"Once the British shipping trade has lost its customers to foreign firms and airlines, it might be difficult to get it back.

"If the strike lasts a month or more, then it could have an important long-term impact on the whole pattern of the British shipping industry."

The impact on the strike on the balance of payments "seems to have been under-estimated," he added. "Our ships contribute to the nation's income at the rate of about £2,000,000 a week."

6 Jets Crash, Lacked Fuel

HUELVA (AP)—The crash of six French jet fighters in southwestern Spain Friday led to an immediate investigation by Spanish and French officials.

All six pilots parachuted to safety before their Mystere IV planes crashed in a swampy pasture area near this Atlantic port 280 miles southwest of Madrid, authorities said. There was no reported damage to the sparsely-populated area.

French consular officials in Sevilla, the intended destination of the 580-mile training flight from Bordeaux, France, said none of the pilots was severely hurt and they would be returned today to their French base.

The French defence ministry in Paris said the unarmed $600,000 jets became lost in flight and crashed due to lack of fuel.

Investigators were expected to ask why the pilots abandoned their planes near Huelva, 50 miles west of Sevilla, instead of trying to land at two well-equipped airports not far away: the U.S.-Spanish base at Moran, 35 miles southeast of Sevilla, or the U.S.-Spanish naval-air base at Rota, on the Atlantic 55 miles southwest of Sevilla.

. . . SWIFTSURE

But at noon the outer group appeared to have lost out on their bid to catch the wind going down the Strait.

Although the two groups had not yet crossed, observers in accompanying boats said the outer boats appeared to be trailing in the 136-mile race to the Swiftsure marker at the mouth of Juon de Fuca Strait.

Race officials were still trying to determine at press time whether the Oriole had disqualified herself.

When she finally headed over the starting line, she was 20 minutes behind the main pack, including the Juan de Fuca entrants who took off 15 minutes behind the Swiftsure.

Explained race co-ordinator Humphrey Golby: "She may have disqualified herself. She can only be disqualified otherwise if an official complaint is registered against her."

The mixup is almost certain to cost Oriole any chance she may have had of winning the race since she carries the heaviest handicap of all.

The over-all race leader based on handicap was the small Cal 25 Jolly Olly skippered by V. Ruskin of the Vancouver club.

Veteran skippers observing the race said they did not think any time records would be broken unless the wind changed.

Weatherman William Mackie did not give any hint of a change this morning when he forecast westerly winds today and Sunday averaging 10 to 15 miles-an-hour with possible gusts to 20 miles-an-hour.

Although the Juan de Fuca entrants only cover a 75-mile course the smaller craft invariably cross the finish line about the same time as their nippier big brothers.

In Division I (39 feet and up): Spirit (ML) Circe (2) Maruffa (AA3) Diamond Head (AA58) Sea Fever (304) Oriole (AA480).

Castro also reiterated Cuban claims that U.S. forces at Guantanamo had shot to death a Cuban sentry last Saturday night while he was on guard on Cuban soil.

The defence department has said the Cuban was shot after he entered the base and failed to obey a command to halt.

Motorists Stalled

Channel Ports In Chaos

LONDON (CP)—Hundreds of holiday-bound motorists, stalled at the ferry docks by Britain's shipping strike, have turned England's channel ports into chaos.

More than 400 carloads of people headed to the continent for this Whitsun Holiday weekend were waiting at Dover Friday night for places on ferries operating with French, Belgian and Norwegian crews.

Many families slept in cars at Dover and New Haven while others undertook a five-hour detour to Southampton in hopes of boarding a ferry there.

Although British housewives have nervously watched the rise of food prices during the strike, which enters its 13th day today, the holiday tieup was the first direct encounter between the general public and pickets of the 65,000-member National Union of Seamen.

Prospects of an early settlement dimmed as William Hogarth, general secretary of the union, told a meeting in Southampton, "It will be a long-drawn-out battle."

He said the strike would last at least another three weeks and could go on for six.

INQUIRY TO SIT

A court of inquiry named by the government Thursday will hold its first meeting Tuesday, but Hogarth said the strike "won't end once the official inquiry is over—unless someone is prepared to do something."

The union said Friday 623 ships were tied up by the strike and more than 18,000 men idle.

The strikers are seeking reduction of the work week to 40 hours from 56 hours. The Shipping Federation, representing owners, has offered the shorter week in stages over a three-year period. Present weekly wage of the seamen is £15 ($45).

The traffic jam at the channel ferries followed ejection by the union of a plea by a ferry company for a separate peace.

Townsend Car Ferries offered to meet union demands in full if it was allowed to operate its ferries from Dover.

A union spokesman said other shipping firms had also offered to meet the union terms but "we only negotiate nationally."

As many as 5,000 cars normally leave Dover on the Friday before the three-day Whitsun Holiday. Only about 1,400 made it this year as only nine of the 18 scheduled sailings left the port.

Five From Saanich To Attend Parley

Reeve Hugh Curtis will lead the Saanich delegation to the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities convention in Vancouver June 6-10.

Also attending will be Couns. William Campbell, Edward Lum and Mrs. Edith Gunning, along with comptroller-treasurer John Tribe.

Stop-Strikes Plan Blasted By Federation

Federal Labor Minister Nicholson was severely criticized today for suggestions that compulsory arbitration be introduced in Canada to stop strikes.

"I doubt if the minister is serious," said E. T. Staley, president and acting secretary-treasurer of the 110,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor.

"If he is serious about compulsory arbitration then he must be prepared to do one of two things: Have a slave state or a completely socialist state.

"If he takes away the right to strike without any protection from price increases and profit demands, then we'll have a slave state.

"On the other hand, if he wants us not to have a slave state, then he must have a socialist state with profits, prices, wages and everything absolutely controlled by the state."

SPIRALLING COSTS

Mr. Staley said if the new labor minister read recent booming profit statements by companies he would "understand why working men and women have to go on strike—to keep up with spiralling costs."

Mr. Nicholson told the Commons Friday the solution to strikes may lie in arbitration courts. Experience in other countries was such that a similar system here merited serious consideration.

Mr. Staley replied that this had been tried in Australia and it hadn't stopped strikes there.

The minister was "crazy" if he thought working people would stand by and see their rights taken from them.

"No one is going to take away the right to strike with a ridiculous law," he said.

"I think the man has had a bad dream, woken up in a sweat and fear and come out with a ridiculous statement."

The labor minister was also quoted as saying that a flood of disastrous strikes in recent weeks seriously threatens the economy.

Mr. Staley said the only serious strike he could see is that of longshoremen along the St. Lawrence.

"I wouldn't consider two civic strikes in Vancouver something that threatened the economy," he said.

CBC ADMITS MANAGEMENT BROKE UNWRITTEN RULE

7-Day Hosts Will Not Be Back

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC board of directors said Friday that Patrick Watson and Laurier LaPierre, co-hosts of the television program This Hour Has Seven Days, will not be returned to the program. But it left the door open for them to work in other corporation productions.

The board said it regrets that management by-passed executive producer Douglas Leiterman in making the decision not to renew the hosts' contracts, but added that it "still believes" the reasons for the decision "are cogent and that the action based on them . . . was justified."

In by-passing the producer, the board said management broke an unwritten rule between producers and management.

In Vancouver, Stuart Keate, whose report on the dispute between CBC producers and management prompted the directors' statement, said it seems management has "inched a few feet forward toward a common meeting ground with the producers."

He was pleased that "the CBC has confirmed that nothing stands in the way of continued employment for the Seven Days hosts. . ."

But Mr. Watson said in Edmonton the directors' statement is "unacceptable and disappointing."

CHANGE RULED OUT

He told a press conference that he would not accept another position with the CBC "if the circumstances do not change," adding that the CBC statement "seems to rule out change."

But he said he wanted time to study the statement and consult with his colleagues before making any decisions.

Mr. Watson said it now would be for the CBC producers association to decide whether to take any action on the statement.

Of the dismissals of Mr. Watson and Mr. LaPierre, the CBC statement said:

"Mr. LaPierre's contract was not renewed because it was management's opinion that he did not acquiesce to the principle that the CBC had no point of view on controversial matters. As co-host of Seven Days, he was identified with CBC and because, whether he wished to or not, a spokesman for it.

"He often let his own opinions and his own feelings in controversial matters show on the air with the result that he tilted the balance of the program."

The statement said management's decision not to renew Mr LaPierre's contract had to do with "his on-air performance and nothing else."

SHORTCOMINGS HIT

The decision not to renew Mr. Watson's contract "was directly related to management's concern about the shortcomings of This Hour Has Seven Days. Management believed that, in the interest of the program and the CBC as a whole, and to make the best use of the staff concerned, Mr. Leiterman and Mr. Watson should be separated."

The directors' statement said CBC management regards both Mr. Watson and Mr. Leiterman as "highly talented."

Mr. Watson, commenting on the reasons given in the statement for the dismissals, said Mr. LaPierre's "behavior was closely supervised by the producer (Mr. Leiterman) and the public affairs department" and the same applied in his own case.

Mr. LaPierre said in Montreal it seemed the situation "is just where it was in April" when the matter first came to a head.

Mr. Keate, who took a two-week leave of absence from his post as publisher of Vancouver Sun to mediate differences between producers and management, expressed satisfaction at several elements in the director's statement.

He was appointed by Prime Minister Pearson to study the controversy when producers in Toronto said they would go on strike. His report to the prime minister, in which he called for the producers to call off their strike and for management to bring forth a public statement outlining the reasons behind the dismissals, was made public Thursday.

IS ENCOURAGED

Mr. Keate was also encouraged that:

—The CBC seemed "well disposed" to his suggestion for appointment of a vice-president for news and current affairs;

—Nothing would prevent hiring of either Mr. Watson or Mr. LaPierre for other programs;

—The board has confirmed a new agreement with producers which should ensure "due process" and prevent a recurrence of the unhappy events of last month.

The board said in its statement the dismissals of the Seven Days hosts violated an unwritten agreement that changes in performers or artists on a program would be made only after the producer concerned was consulted.

The board remained "seriously concerned" about this breakdown in "due process." For that reason it had agreed to turn the unwritten agreement into a written one.

Merger Study Won't Take No For an Answer

Study of a proposed Visitors' Bureau-Chamber of Commerce merger will continue despite rejection of the idea in a membership poll.

City council Thursday agreed informally that a committee headed by Ald. Clyde Savage would proceed.

The chamber wrote council telling of the poll conducted in a feasibility study, in which 43 visitors' bureau members voted against merger and 21 supported the idea.

"I am sorry to see that there are apparently only 64 visitors' bureau members. I wonder if we can carry this project further," commented Mayor A. W. Toone.

"This committee is still in business," Ald. Savage said, noting the chamber's willingness to revive the merger plan at council's request.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Cool air still covers most of the province. Overnight lows dropper into the 30s at many points. The 39 reported at Vancouver Airport was a record for May 28, breaking the old record of 41 set in 1950. Sunshine was expected in most areas today but considerable cloud and a few showers were expected along the outer coast and in the northern interior. Little change in present pattern of weather is foreseen for Sunday.

IWA Bids To Bypass Nemetz

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 26,000 - member International Woodworkers of America (CLC) which voted in favor of strike action earlier this week, asked Friday for an immediate resumption of contract negotiations with 120 coast timber companies.

The move follows appointment of Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court as an industrial inquiry commissioner to investigate the potentially explosive wage battle between the IWA and Forest Industrial Relations, bargainers for the companies.

The present contract expires June 14. The union voted 94 per cent in favor of striking unless contract demands are met.

Mr. Justice Nemetz, appointed by the provincial labor department, has told both sides the earliest he can open hearings is June 3 and it will more than likely be June 6 before he is able to clear his court calendar.

FIR officials and IWA negotiators will discuss the union's request for immediate negotiations Monday at a meeting to hammer agreements on fire-fighting and training programs.

IWA president Jack Moore said the union plans to play by the rules, but is not happy with the appointment of Mr. Justice Nemetz. He described the appointment as "premature" and added that the dispute could best be resolved by direct negotiation — without a commissioner.

Elaborate opening ceremonies for Vancouver's Sea Festival June 19 may have to be abandoned because of a strike by the city's 1,500 outside workers now entering its third week with no signs of immediate settlement.

Norman Bowen, secretary of the Port Development Committee, organizers of the festival, said there must be an immediate start on construction work for the festival, or things won't be ready on time.

In the five-day-old strike by inside and outside workers in suburban North Vancouver, meanwhile, Mayor Carrie Cates has berated the North Vancouver local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC) for refusing to service the municipality's chlorinating station.

The city and district have been forced to buy water from Vancouver and so far, seven water mains have blown as the result of increased water pressure.

Mayor Cates said the situation is "serious, if not dangerous."

There was no sign of a settlement in the North Vancouver strike.

The International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers (CLC) announced Friday that more than 90 per cent of its 6,000 members voted for a strike against eight pulp mill companies.

Communists Join Finland Coalition

HELSINKI (AP) — President Urho Kekkonen swore in a new Finnish government Friday, a coalition that includes Communists for the first time since 1948.

The government, Finland's 23rd since the Second World War, was formed only after long and difficult negotiations.

The Communists, who have toned down their revolutionary program, were brought into the government so that it could win the required two-thirds majority endorsement of Parliament and because of a growing demand by young persons in Paasio's party for far-left alliances.

NORTH VIET SANCTUARY CLAIMED

U.S. Officer 'Corrected' on Cambodia Use

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A number of military officers said privately today the U.S. defence department jerked the rug from under Maj.-Gen. Stanley R. Larsen in contradicting his statement that up to six North Vietnamese regiments — 10,000 or more troops — are massed in Cambodia.

But Larsen, a field commander on leave from South Viet Nam, told a reporter:

"I am just a soldier. I stand corrected. I'm not going to question my superiors about what they say. The defence department has a lot more information to go on than I have."

But in Saigon, intelligence reports available to military commanders supported Larsen's statement. Some reports indicate as many as 12,000 North Vietnamese are massed in the Cambodian mountains.

Saigon sources say two of the six regiments poised in the Chu Phong Mountains are the 32nd and 33rd of the North Vietnamese 325th Division. Both regiments fought in a big battle last November in the Ia Drang Valley across the border from where the North Vietnamese now are reported gathered.

The reports also indicate the North Vietnamese plan to move into South Viet Nam in early fall after the rainy season passes its mid-summer peak.

State Secretary Dean Rusk said later he knew nothing about Larsen's report.

But Rusk said North Vietnamese forces have been abusing Cambodia's neutrality. He added that the United States favors international action to secure that Southeast Asian country's neutrality and territorial integrity.

For that reason, some reporters noted with interest that a defence department information official listened to Larsen's remarks without attempting to intervene.

Withdrawal Ruled Out By Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk has ruled out any major withdrawal of U.S. troops from West Germany. He said European allies have been assured "our forces will remain there as long as they are needed and wanted."

Rusk also told a press conference Friday he hopes members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization can reach firm decisions soon on plans for removing NATO's military headquarters and bases from France.

And he said ways to improve East-West relations will be discussed extensively when he and other allied foreign ministers gather in Brussels June 6 for a NATO council meeting.

His comments came as an allied move was reported under way in Europe to respond to Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko's call for a pan-European security conference.

REACT CAUTIOUSLY

Denmark plans to broach the idea at the Brussels meeting and qualified diplomats in London said the United States and various other allied countries reacted cautiously but not adversely when notified of the Danish intention.

Any conference on European security would centre on the continued division of Germany 26 years after the Second World War.

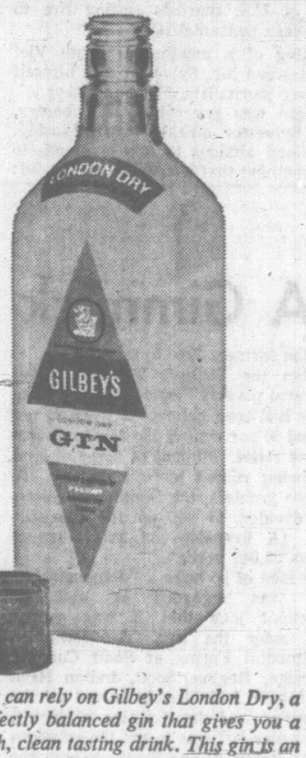
IN KENYA the sun scorches all year round. So wise Kenyans mix amazingly tall mixed gin drinks with Gilbey's London Dry. They choose this gin because its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink. And perfect balance is what you need when you're sipping a Gilbey's Treetop Special perched atop a giant fig tree.

Gilbey's Treetop Special

In the Kenyan jungle near a waterhole there is a miniature hotel perched atop a giant fig tree. Guests are able to sip a Gilbey's Treetop Special while observing wild game drinking at the waterhole. The drink is a mixture of orange, lime and lemon juices along with Gilbey's London Dry Gin, sugar and soda water.

Khotso's Spell

Another long and very tall Kenyan cooler is named after an African witchdoctor. The reasons for this are somewhat obscure since the witchdoctor, Khotso Sethunza lives in Pondoland. But he is a millionaire which may have helped his case somewhat. The drink is a simple mixture of fresh orange juice and Gilbey's London Dry topped up with ginger ale.



You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

Onward—And Upward

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT's order to mark time on major public building projects has now been eased after a month, and the word is that construction will proceed with some alteration in the original plans.

The review was brought about by Premier Bennett's recognition of the mounting effect of rapidly rising costs which in many cases have pushed builders' bids far beyond earlier estimates. There was also the example of the federal government which announced a curtailment of all but essential projects in an effort to postpone demand for men and materials in the construction industry and so ease the upward pressure on prices.

In this regard the premier's action was logical and proper. The situation was made more difficult, however, by reason of the fact that the vast Peace River and Columbia River hydro projects were not included in the province's revisions. Although the rising costs of these undertakings have caused expressions of warning from the premier and his colleagues, they could not be cut back at this stage and so remained under orders for full speed ahead.

The prospects of any significant cuts in the other major projects in the province were likewise limited. In the case of mental hospital facilities in Victoria and Burnaby the accommodation was so badly needed and already so long delayed that little could be done to restrict the plans. Likewise with the plans for the Burnaby technological institute. The expensive provincial museum complex is similarly on the "must" list, inasmuch as it is the province's chief centennial construction project, is badly needed even though not in the same category of necessity as hospitals, and has already been started on a scale that could not be appreciably reduced. In addition, it is undoubtedly true that the public is solidly behind the government in its plan for a worthy and usable building of which the province can be proud. The Vancouver courthouse fountain is a relatively inexpensive project and little could be gained by abandoning or sharply reducing it.

It appears then that little more than gestures could be made in the direction of curbing expenditures on these works, and one gathers from Mr. Chant's remarks that there have been few changes in the $20-million program of construction items that are now under way or commencing.

Since these projects, in terms of direct economics, are unproductive, they will constitute an inflationary force which will not result in an increase in available goods. Their other desirable returns—in health services, cultural and educational advancement, and similar intangibles—give them validity even in an inflationary period. The thought of all ten provinces continuing with such construction work, however, makes clear the nature and danger of inflation and the need for encouragement of greater industrial productivity to help equate supply with demand.

We are caught in a trap of "desirables" and "necessaries" in public expenditure from which there appears to be no escape. Indeed, a sudden and drastic cessation of all unproductive construction might prove to be surgery so brutal that the patient could be long in recovering.

Lost Its Meaning?

RECENT COMMENTS ON THE Viet Nam situation by United Nations Secretary-General U Thant are not being well received in Washington—and, perhaps, not surprisingly, since his advice runs counter to the official prevailing beliefs about the war.

In essence the Asian statesman said that the war had lost all ideological meaning for many Vietnamese, that it was "illusory" to call the war a "mere contest between Communism and liberal democracy."

He also declared that "the passion for national identity, perhaps one should say national survival, is the only ideology that may be left to a growing number of Vietnamese." Stripped of diplomatic phraseology, this can mean only that many Vietnamese would "rather be Red than dead."

Finally, U Thant said that the best thing the United States could do would be to get out of Viet Nam on the least disadvantageous terms possible. And then it might be possible to reinstate the Geneva Accords of 1954.

The secretary-general is not a man who can be faulted as a sympathizer with the aims of the Communists. He is a humanitarian with strong pacifist and neutralist leanings.

"holy war" in an Asian land.

U Thant raises a difficult point when he asserts that many Vietnamese would rather come under Communist rule than see the country further ruined by fighting. If he is correct in this—and the disintegration of political life in South Viet Nam substantiates him to a degree—the question must be asked whether the Americans have the right to deny the people this choice.

Most Westerners would say that the Vietnamese would be choosing wrongly, tragically, to opt for Communism when they might have freedom. But political events in South Viet Nam for the past 10 years, unfortunately, have not indicated that under rule other than that of the Communists there has been much freedom for the common people.

Of course many Americans in positions of power choose not to think of the Viet Nam war in the terms of U Thant. Instead, they take the "global view" of the necessity to contain the spread of Communism, the need to discourage Communist-inspired "wars of national liberation," and the importance of maintaining a toehold on the Asian mainland.

To these people, the secretary-general's remarks may seem to be wishy-washy, impractical nonsense—but they will not be easily able to dismiss them in the prevailing uncertainty about the future of the Vietnamese war.

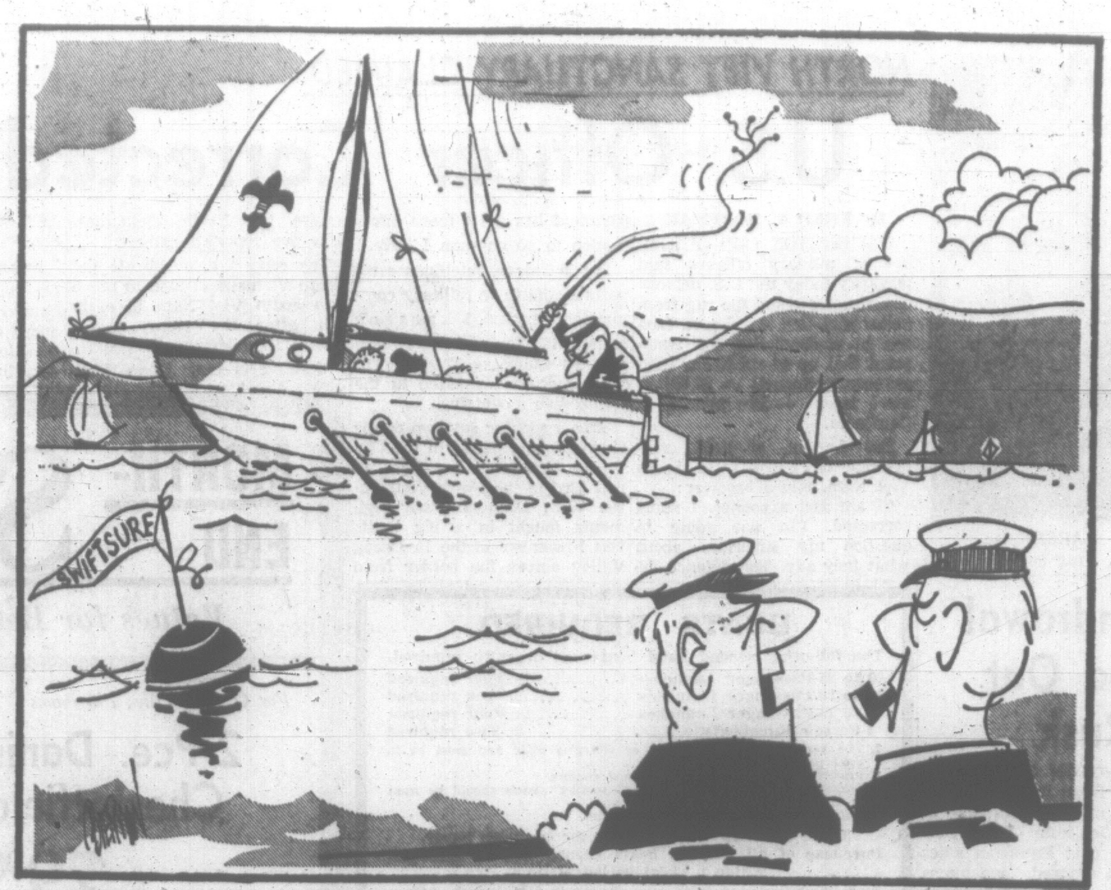
Past and Present

A STRONG NOSTALGIA IS FELT in reading the remarks of Senator T. A. Crerar delivered in the Senate this week. The 90-year-old veteran of nearly half a century of public life spoke of concepts and times which in retrospect are imbued with soundness, solidarity and security.

Tom Crerar was always noted for his conservative approach to political and economic principles. He had a stability and resoluteness which are still with him, and the address which may be his last major senatorial effort was exemplary in its clear thinking and plain speaking.

He spoke of the need for "respect for men in public life," of "the prestige of parliament," of the tragedy when "people commence to lose faith in their governmental institutions." He viewed the welfare state and wondered "just how much further we can go and still maintain our solvency." He looked to the "common sense of the Canadian people" to reject inflationary policies and urged the economic principle of budgeting for a surplus in boom times. He advised the establishment of special courts which could compel unions and management to settle their differences without strikes. The public interest must come first, he said. And he expressed his "unbounded faith in Canada and in the Canadian people."

Many of his ideas and phrases have either largely dropped out of public life or have been overworked in hustings rhetoric so as to lose their simple meaning. Like a voice from another, saner, but irrecoverable age, Senator Crerar reminded us of the principles by which he has lived—for only a decade less than Confederation itself.



"I can't quite put my finger on it but there's something fishy going on in George's boat . . ."

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

AS YOU ramble over the new trail at Goldstream Park, there are many different trees and shrubs to see.

Prevalent are the Douglas firs, some of which are very old. The "second growth" trees show how nature is beginning to recreate an established forest. Many of the young trees are tall and spindly; some have died, and others have fallen down. This is nature's way of making sure that the strong survive and the weaker go under to provide substance for the living.

In the damper regions there are Balsam firs or Grand firs with their flat, spreading branches. On the younger trees you will note many resin blisters.

There are several very fine Western Yews along the way, some of which are up to twelve inches in diameter. This shows that they are very old as this tree is a slow-growing one.

Along the higher open ridges you will see several very fine Garry Oaks growing with its companions, the Arbutus. Some little oak seedlings here ensure a new crop of this fascinating tree.

Perhaps the most beautiful of all the sights along the trail is the abundant flowering Dogwood. Some of the blossoms are more than six inches across.

FROM OTTAWA

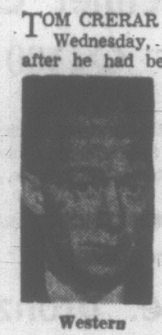
Tom Crerar Sings His Swan Song in a Vigorous Voice

TOM CRERAR sang his swang-song on Wednesday, almost half a century after he had been sworn to the Privy Council. Thus ended a parliamentary career withoug parallel. Other distinguished Westerners have crossed the public stage and three of them have become prime ministers. But none ever achieved such a perspective and he alone among Canadians had the distinction of serving as a minister of the Crown in both world wars. It was in the great crisis of 1917 that he entered the cabinet of Sir Robert Borden, to whose memory he paid tribute on Wednesday. It was after the resolution of a second crisis over the same issue of conscription that he retired, with victory in sight, from the wartime administration of Mackenzie King.



Western

For a man of 90 years, it was an extraordinary performance. Standing till and erect in the Senate, Mr. Crerar spoke in a strong voice, with only an occasional reference to his notes and with a lucidity which most Commoners would envy. It was a valedictory with a difference. The craggy Scot, so often a thorn in the side of opportunist governments, had not come merely to indulge in reminiscences and to make gracious farewells. He deemed it his duty, as usual, to speak his mind with the disciplined restraint which he commended to the House of Commons but with such frankness that no one in the chamber could mistake his meaning.

He dealt first with the failure of Parliament to maintain its standards and with the concomitant, a loss of faith in the institutions of government and of respect for men in public life. Having stated the problem, he did not shirk the answer. The way out, Mr. Crerar suggested, lay in a change of leadership in both major parties. There was a need for new men to re-establish the confidence which Parliament should enjoy in the country.

Turning to constitutional matters, the senator rejected the view that the British North America Act is in need of wholesale amendments. Our troubles are traceable, he thinks, not to the constitution but to the mixing of jurisdictions which had characterized the modern era of the welfare state.

The concerns of the federal government were intended to be national; it should not be Ottawa's responsibility to pay the costs of skating rinks in Saskatoon and street paving in Antigonish. Mr. Crerar, uninhibited by any regard for Keynesian theories argued for a massive shift to the provinces of tax fields and authority. Quite apart from Keynes, it appeared to me that he was leaving little beyond bare bones for a government of national concerns.

He struck hard at the costs of big government, at wasteful expenditures, at the erosion of purchasing power through annual rounds of inflation, at the economic nationalism of Mr. Walter Gordon, at strikes and lockouts by labor and management in contempt of the public interest. As the lawlessness of railway companies had been ended by the establishment of a public commission, so Mr. Crerar felt that the arbitrary behavior of big unions and big business should be curbed through the setting up of impartial tribunals with power to resolve disputes.

Having set himself against the trend of his times, Senator Crerar has been, for many years, a rather lonely voice on Parliament Hill. By all the advanced thinkers, he is dismissed in his own humorous description of Wednesday as "a sort of relic of the past." It is interesting to observe, however, that the critics very often meet themselves coming around the mulberry bush. The people who are so passionately for decentralization today are the same people who were most vociferously for centralism only a few short years ago. And it has, strangely enough, become fashionable at the moment to deplore the inflation which was completely invisible to the government a mere 12 months ago.

Despite the many fascinating backward glances in his speech, Mr. Crerar forebore to make one cardinal point which he was fully entitled to make. One may agree or disagree with his principles but his fidelity to them is incontestable (and no doubt irritating to governments). Of all our public men, he has been the most consistent over the longest period, as the pages of Hansard prove.

His philosophy was that of the pioneer farmers of Manitoba; he was, of course, president of the Grain Growers' Grain Company (later the UGG) before he entered politics. He came to Ottawa in 1917 on the issue of national service and, with Col. Ralston and others, he defended the same cause in the great crisis of the King administration a quarter of a century later.

He parted amicably with Sir Robert Borden in 1920 on an issue of principle; he could not square budget policy with his free trading principles. The same principles carried him into the leadership of the Progressive Party which for him was Western liberalism in revolt against the protectionist forces holding Mr. King captive. "Protection", he said, "is nothing more or less than a type of state socialism.'

He was accused of leading a class movement. This would have been a valid criticism of some Alberta leaders but it was simply not applicable to Mr. Crerar. His policy which sought the mutual benefit of townsfolk and countrymen was free importation of implements and tools of production, the freest possible entry for necessities of life

The themes changed little when he entered Mr. King's government or later. He goes out about as he came in — a rebel against the opportunism of the parties. There is a moral grandeur about such a man which, in Senator Crerar, was happily combined with a manner in debate recalling an earlier day when great men clashed in the Canadian Parliament.

On his form of Wednesday, it is quite possible that the country will hear more of Mr. Crerar. But he has made his last stand in the Senate which will have to get along with younger, less vigorous men.

A Grim Recital That Demonstrates the Credibility Gap

MORE than a third of those planning to switch their votes from Democratic to Republican this year are basing their decision on the administration's conduct of the Viet Nam war. This is the finding of private, scientifically conducted opinion polls commissioned by the Republican party. The polls also found a growing "credibility gap"—a growing conviction among the public that it is not being told the truth about the war. These polls were taken even before State Secretary Dean Rusk widened the gap still further with his spectacularly unconvincing insistence that South Viet Nam Premier Nguyen Cao Ky didn't mean it when he said his military regime intended to stay in power after the supposedly forthcoming elections, and would fight the victors if they were not to his taste.

Purser

A Republican candidate for the Senate from Illinois finds he is getting considerable mileage in his race against a popular, pro-Johnson Democratic incumbent by assailing the administration's refusal to inform the public fully about Viet Nam. The Republican Congressional Committee's May 23 newsletter criticized what it called the administration's "public misinformation policies." House Republican Leader Gerald Ford in a May 18 press conference attacked that apostle of "news management," Assistant Secretary of Defence Arthur Sylvester, for his claim of "the right to lie" by government.

Rep. Durward Hall (Republican, Missouri) recently suggested that Mr. Sylvester resign or be fired. He backed up his suggestion by entering in the Congression Record a grim recital that amply demonstrates why the credibility gap exists. It is an article by Morley Safer, a CBS correspondent formerly in Viet Nam and winner of several independent awards for distinguished journalism.

He won national renown—and the eternal enmity of the Pentagon's professional propagandists—for his television report of U.S. marines setting fire to Vietnamese peasants' huts.

Writing of a meeting in South Viet Nam between Mr. Sylvester and himself and other journalists, Mr. Safer says:

"There was general opening banter, which Sylvester quickly brushed aside. He seemed anxious to take a stand—to say something that would jar us. He did: "'I can't understand how you fellows can write what you do while American boys are dying out here,' he began. Then he went on to the effect that American correspondents had a patriotic duty to disseminate only information that made the United States look good.

"A network television correspondent said, 'Surely, Arthur, you don't expect the American press to be the handmaidens of the government.'

"'That's exactly what I expect,' came the reply.

"An agency man raised the problem . . . about the credibility of American officials. Replied the Assistant Secretary of Defence for Public Affairs:

"'Look, if you think any American official is going to tell you the truth, then you're stupid. Did you hear that? Stupid'."

Later Mr. Sylvester said: "Look, I don't even have to talk to you people. I know how to deal with you through your editors and publishers back in the states."

In a reply later entered in the Record, Mr. Sylvester characterized Mr. Safer's account of their meeting as "bull." He calls "utterly untrue" his alleged reply to the "handmaidens of government" remark above. Then he launches into abuse of Mr. Safer: "Additionally, I must say Safer is the only man I ever heard refer to another man as a 'handmaiden,' especially a newsman."

Then he picks up an innocent remark in Mr. Safer's article to the effect that he and his colleagues were looking forward to the usual cool drinks found at the villa where the encounter took place: "Apparently Mr. Safer's primary interest that night was in working over the drinks and then came his working over me as a clouded and confused afterthought. Perhaps I shouldn't squawk when I consider the distortion of the U.S. Marine Corps activity Safer perpetrated on CBS for which he won a prize and the undying contempt of the Marines."

Rep. Hall entered Mr. Sylvester's comments with a note "that the reply maligns the original article but does not deny its allegations." He had himself earlier brought up the question of whether Mr. Safer's reporting is accurate. "Based on my own experience," he said, "I have no doubt that it is."

This writer knows Mr. Safer personally—he was a CBC correspondent based in London before he joined CBS—and would agree with Rep. Hall. Mr. Safer's integrity and ability are beyond question.

Resurrected: 'A Gimmick for Ending Rural Poverty'

THE chops-licking the prairie provinces have been doing over the prospects of a multi-million-dollar free ride on the gravy train of the Agricultural and Rural Development Act seems to be abating. It may now be possible, therefore, to hear the rustling as the corpses of the cabinet of the late Hon. R. B. Bennett turn over and over in their political graveyards.

Gray

Here is the gimmick for ending rural poverty, that got the Tories laughed at in Saskatchewan in 1935, being resurrected and mildly acclaimed by the Liberals of 1966. The gimmick was known, in 1935, as the "township plan" and it was used by the Conservative Government to launch the Prairie Farms Rehabilitation Act.

The P.F.R.A went on to become one of Canada's glittering success stories, after the "township plan" was knocked on the head. It called for the Dominion Government to buy or expropriate one township in Manitoba, three in Saskatchewan and one in Alberta, and set up huge demonstration farms on them to teach the farmers how to farm.

Within the Palliser Triangle, there was "rural poverty" worse than anything Canada had seen before. Between 85 per cent and 95 per cent of the farmers were living on relief. Millions of acres of land were being ruined by soil drifting. To meet the problem, the Dominion Government decided to set up the township farms. (A township six miles square contains 23,040 acres.)

The idea of so huge a "demonstration farm" was regarded as such an impractical joke that it was quietly swept under the rug. The Dominion Experimental Farms at Swift Current, Lethbridge, Regina, Scott, Indian Head and Brandon had already solved all the soil erosion and dry farming problems. All that was left was to get the solutions into the hands of the farmers, stop the soil blowing and wait for rain to germinate the grain and grass seed. They knew how. The problem was to get it done on 75,000 farms.

This, of course, was a lot easier and quicker than setting up huge demonstration farms, though it took the better part of the next decade to complete. In the years that followed, most of the other problems that can beset a farmer on his land have been solved as well.

And what is A.R.D.A up to? Well, it has been making surveys. One such survey is in the area west of Edmonton in the Hinton-Edson-Whitecourt pocket. It has discovered about 1,000 low-income non-farm and 300 low-income farm families in the area. There are 1,000 individuals with a Grade 4 education or less.

The low-income non-farmers take in $3,000 or less a year per family while the low-income farmers have gross sales of under $2,500. These are the people A.R.D.A is proposing to move out of the district. It will buy the farms of those who can be persuaded to sell—and guess what?

A.R.D.A is going to set up large-scale government demonstration farms on which government certified Ph.Ds in agriculture will show the surviving farmers how to farm. When the lesson has been taught, the farms will be sold back to individual farmers.

Presumably, the big new farms will be equipped with the latest in modern machinery, and staffed with the highest priced hired men in all farming history. Agricultural Doctors of Philosophy do not come cheap, and they are not going to be content with the kind of machinery ordinary farmers can afford to buy.

Unhappily, the "elsewhere" where there are better opportunities for people with Grade 4 or less education is not defined.

One of the facets of the great A.R.D.A crusade that will intrigue survivors of the old Saskatchewan dust bowl era is the modern definition of farm poverty. That's a farm with a cash income of less than $2,500. A rich farmer in the dust bowl was one who could manage a cash income of $500 in most of those years.

What the A.R.D.A planners seem not to have been told is that creating a viable economic agricultural community in the west takes time, maybe three or four generations. It takes a lot of failure along with some success. Settlers move onto land, work it for a while and move off. A neighbor takes over; gives up. Somebody else comes along and takes a crack.

It may very well be that a subsistence farm in a marginal area is about as much opportunity as Grade 4 drop-outs are likely to find anywhere. It may be that some massive bootstrap lifting operation in those areas will help. But it would be interesting to get the reaction of the veterans of the Dominion Experimental Farm Service to the A.R.D.A "demonstration farm" brainstorm 30 years after the dust bowl and the "township farms" fiasco.

What the War Looks Like from Saigon

Mr. I. F. Stone, publisher of the widely-read Washington newsletter, "I. F. Stone's Weekly," has recently returned from a visit to Saigon to see at first-hand certain aspects of the Viet Nam war which he has strongly criticized. The following are excerpts from his report, personal and subjective, but very revealing of the difficulties Americans face in fighting a war in an alien land with only indifferently enthusiastic allies.

By I. F. STONE

What I remember most of Saigon is the heat, the squalor and the despair. I began by being terribly frustrated and ended by being terribly fascinated.

The frustration arose from trying to get things done in a country which seems engaged in a giant conspiracy to slow everything down; I'd hate to have to run a war in the vast snafu that is South Viet Nam; only an Eagle Scout like Westmoreland could stand it without going off his rocker.

Just what the fascination was I don't quite know, perhaps it was the ringside seat Saigon offers on the inexhaustible vitality and folly of the human race.

Streets leading off the main thoroughfares of Saigon, like the one shown above, are lined with bars and black market stalls. The stalls with canvass awnings draped over poles are crammed with American-made foodstuffs; liquor, towels, blankets and other goods. Much of these come from U.S. post exchanges through black market buyers and then to the makeshift stalls which appear just after sunup and fade away at night. (AP Wirephoto.)

The heat lay like a suffocating blanket on the city, and it was hard to know which was worse, the sunny days or the cloudy when a blue haze of carbon monoxide lay low over the teeming streets. At night with the windows open in a cheap hotel which charged New York prices, one slept not just naked but with every pore alert for an occasional hint of breeze.

After the midnight curfew one is awakened from time to time by the dull thud of mortars like a giant tapping on distant doors. One night the whole hotel shook, the doors went rat-tat-tat, as a huge armada passed overhead and dumped its deadly freight somewhere far off in the darkness.

The Sanctuary

There were three waves of this miniature earthquake and one suddenly realized the meaning of the term privileged sanctuary, for Americans in Viet Nam can sleep with the assurance that amid the heavy traffic overhead, there are no enemy planes. Goliath never had it so good.

Saigon must have been a lovely French Asian capital before the war with its broad tree-lined boulevards, open squares and shady arcades. Now it seemed an Asiatic honky tonk. Though it was siesta time, here and there U.S. soldiers in pairs sauntered dolefully past the many bars looking like Bill Mauldin types in search of an ersatz Mama.

Small boys were already out pimping in the hot afternoon, hinting in pidgin English at bizarre pleasures. The immemorial entrepreneur spirit flourished in the world's oldest commodity, women, but the soldiers seemed too shy to close such deals in broad daylight . . . .

Act of Deference

Before being permanently accredited as an American correspondent, one has to obtain a press card from the South Vietnamese government. This is the sole act of deference to Vietnamese sovereignty required of the visiting American.

The contrast between the two press headquarters reflects the real balance of forces. The Joint U.S. Public Affairs Office (JUSPAO) has taken over a multi-storied building on one of the town's most important squares. The Army of the Republic of Viet Nam (ARVN) press office is housed in a nearby second-storey loft, dark, grimy and cooled only by an old-fashioned fan.

A press card is issued without question, and for most U.S. correspondents that one visit to the loft is all they will make during their tour of duty . . . .

In the air-conditioned realm of JUSPAO, with its snack bar, its PX and — like oases — its clean water fountains, the American finds thimself, as the French say, chez lui, at home . . . . During the eight days I was in Saigon I met with nothing but courtesy from U.S. officers, civilian or military. The question in my mind was how so many well-meaning, friendly and intelligent people, with so much in the way of funds and Vietnamese informers at their disposal, could guess so consistently wrong about events in Viet Nam. . . .

The first thing that strikes one is the extent to which the Americans in Viet Nam live in enclaves — not just military but psychological enclaves. JUSPAO, the Embassy, the various AID missions and the military HQs in Saigon are like miniature fortresses in a hostile land . . .

But these fortresses are vulnerable from within; they depend on Vietnamese employees and there is no certain way to distinguish friend from foe. The situation must be apple pie for Viet Cong intelligence.

Our soldiers and press live in a world apart; few speak even such bad French as mine, much less Vietnamese. The mentality we develop is the compound complex which has always afflicted foreigners living as traders or soldiers in a foreign land. We bring America with us wherever we go, and live wrapped in a kind of cellophane which separates us from the rest of the people of the country.

Our relations with them are almost entirely mercenary, and the women, the informers and the soldiers we buy are about as unsatisfactory as bought love is anywhere. They must secretly regard us with amusement or contempt.

To watch the young Ivy Leaguers arriving briskly at the Embassy of a morning is to feel oneself on the eve of the Harvard-Yale game. The team spirit is bursting out all over; it demands optimism; patriotism is equated with euphoria . . . . Everything is public relations and public relations is make believe. Every top official is more concerned with his "image" than with unpleasant realities. To mention these is to get off the team.

Bright gimmicks are turned into speeches and proliferate into pamphlets long before anything has been accomplished or even after hopes have collapsed. The word is taken for the deed.

Imaginary Picture

As one moves from talking to the men who work in the field to those who work in Saigon and then thinks of the men in Washington, one sees that the further from the scene the more imaginary the picture we have created. The most confining enclave of all is this enclave in our heads.

Under the supposed benevolence of our policy one soon detects a deep animosity to the Vietnamese and a vast arrogance. We assume the right to remold them, whether they choose to be remolded or not. The war, like the cold war, has developed a vein of zealotry alien to the easy-going American character. An enthusiastic psychological warrior . . . told me that in working with captured VC he found that 95 per cent were "recoverable." It was my first evening and I did not dare ask what we did with the other 5 per cent — dispose of them like Kleenex?

Directives go down from on high to treat the villagers with some discrimination. But the poor GIs one encounters are too full of rage at the fate which has brought them there. A boy from Mobile told me 50 per cent of the people in Saigon were VC, 45 per cent indifferent and five per cent with us; he thought we ought to go all-out to win the war — smash Hanoi — or go home. . . .

Hard to Take

Terrorism is hard to take, to see a buddy blown up by a mine or knocked off by a sniper hardly makes one benevolent to the natives. One hears frightful stories of troops in the field setting fire to villages or, on evacuating them, defecating in the cooking utensils, out of sheer hate and resentment.

In Saigon, on R and R (rest and recreation), the bar girls gyp the troops with the skill of their sisters in the clip joints of Greenwich Village. A soldier can spend a month's pay on "Saigon tea" and emerge as virgin as he entered.

The soldiers feel that they are taken advantage of on every hand, and they are. I heard a burly sergeant explode one night at the Caravelle when he found, as usual, that advance reservations had been ignored.

Angry Shout

"We're out there in the jungle trying to hold this country together," he shouted angrily, "and this is what we get for it."

There is hardly benevolence in the words one hears so frequently at the daily military briefing — "search and destroy" — as if we were an Old Testament God. In the cool panelled classroom in which the briefings are held, the only theory of the war which seems to emerge is implied by the "kill count" as if we were on an insect extermination mission and could go home when all the termites had been destroyed.

Americans with cameras search out VC atrocities with [illegible], but the use of napalm and saturation bombing is regarded merely as another form of technology. The machine is forgiven atrocities many-fold more terrible than those of the guerrillas. The Vietnamese are expendable.

I came across cold warriors who operated in Germany, in Bolivia, in Brazil and in Santo Domingo and now, in all innocence, commit similar follies in Viet Nam. They place a very high value on the purity of their intentions and a very low estimate on the motivations of the Vietnamese. . . .

Every demand for democratic rights is regarded as perverse if not subversive; this is also the basic attitude toward elections. One often feels our people regard the Vietnamese as irrelevant to our world-wide holy war against Communism.

As my friend said, "After all it's only an accident that this war is being fought here. We have to smash the idea of wars of liberation." If Viet Nam and the Vietnamese are badly battered in the process, it's too bad. The growing awareness of this essential indifference to their fate is giving the Vietnamese a common despair that might some day prove stronger even than fratricidal passion.

A group of Buddhist neutralists published a volume in French and English called Dialogue. In one of them Pham Cong Thien writes, "Here is my Nada prayer: Lead us not into Salvation, but deliver us from Deliverance."

THE GALLUP POLL

Martin Still Tops List As Future Liberal Chief

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Paul Martin, minister for external affairs, continues to hold an impressive lead over other potential contenders for future leadership of the Liberal Party.

About a third of the voters (32%) name Mr. Martin as their choice for Liberal leadership, should Prime Minister Pearson resign. Even when Gallup Poll interviewers vary the question, by not suggesting names of possible leaders, Mr. Martin is first choice.

The two other potential leaders, suggested by Poll interviewers, were Mitchell Sharp and Robert Winters. Only about one in ten voters chose them. More Liberals—38%—than any other party adherents select Mr. Martin.

The question: "Here's an interesting question: If Mr. Pearson should resign as leader of the Liberal Party, which of these three men do you think would make a good leader to succeed him—Paul Martin, Mitchell Sharp, Robert Winters?"

	National	Conservative	Liberal	Others
Paul Martin	32%	30%	38%	34%

The smoldering crisis in central Africa flared anew with a tug-of-war between Zambia and Rhodesia over a jointly-owned railroad.

The railroad's financial situation has deteriorated steadily since Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence from Britain last November.

When Zambia rejected a demand that freight charges on Zambian goods sent through Rhodesia be paid in advance, the railway board banned shipment of all copper exports.

Since copper is the mainstay of Zambia's economy, this action threatened the African-ruled nation with bankruptcy. Alternative routes for export would be costly.

Britain has a double interest in the dispute — she is heavily dependent on Zambian copper in her manufacturing industries and wants to avert an open clash between Zambia and Rhodesia which could ignite the whole area.

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia has been critical of Britain's sanctions campaign and has been leading other African nations in demands for stronger measures to bring down the Ian Smith regime.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson sent his minister of state for Commonwealth relations, Mrs. Judith Hart, to the Zambian capital of Lusaka in a bid to pacify Kanuda and solve the railway dispute.

Wilson was reported, meanwhile, to be seeking to delay Commonwealth meeting tentatively set for July in order to give his economic boycott more time to squeeze Rhodesia.

Kaunda has said he would propose Britain's ouster from the Commonwealth if Smith is still in power when the summer meeting was held.

●

There was ferment in two other African Commonwealth countries during the week.

In Uganda, President Milton Obote ordered his troops to attack the palace of "King Freddie" Mutesa of Buganda, largest of the country's four kingdoms.

The socialist president has been steadily gaining control over the country and the palace attack was his culminating move to break the power of Mutesa. Mutesa is believed to have fled to a neighboring country.

●

Ironsi, who assumed power after a bloody military coup in January, said at that time the country would be handed back to civilian rule as soon as peace and order were restored.

This week he announced the army will remain in power for three years. Former semi-autonomous regions will be abolished, Ironsi said, as Nigeria ceases to be a federation and becomes a republic. He claimed his actions were necessary to forge national unity.

The Commonwealth gained its 23rd member, and first in South America, with the granting of independence to British Guiana.

Prime Minister Forbes Burnham officiated as the new flag of Guyana was hoisted up to replace the Union Jack. The country's former leader, Marxist Cheddi Jagan boycotted most of the independence ceremonies.

His opposition party is protesting continuation of the state of emergency declared during the inter-racial strife two years ago which resulted in his ouster by Britain.

Prime Minister Wilson declared a national emergency in Britain as a strike of seamen went into its second week.

Despite the declaration, Wilson held off drastic action while the government attempts mediation between the union and ship owners. A special court of inquiry was established to investigate the seamen's working conditions.

●

Wilson and West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard completed two days of talks in London and declared there should be some reorganization of the NATO alliance and agreement reached with France "on her continuing role in the alliance."

They failed to reach accord on another issue: Britain's request that West Germany meet all the foreign exchange costs of keeping 51,000 British troops in Germany.

●

Buddhist-led demonstrations continued in South Viet Nam but Premier Nguyen Cao Ky appeared to have broken the back of the resistance against his regime, at least for the time being.

In the battle against the Viet Cong, the U.S. disclosed that 146 Americans were killed and 820 wounded the previous week, one of the heaviest casualty tolls of the way.

Sharp Faces Liberal Split On Revision of Bank Act

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Newman

OTTAWA — At the start of last Wednesday's Liberal caucus, Prime Minister Pearson found himself the target of questions about a speech he'd delivered on Canadian economic independence to the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Montreal. When the supporters of both Walter Gordon and Mitchell Sharp began to insist that the prime minister had come down on their side of the issue, Pearson disarmed the two groups by quipping:

"It was my Walter Sharp speech."

The remark was vintage Pearson and it momentarily relaxed an otherwise tension-laden caucus meeting, called to deal with the contentious revision of the Bank Act. But it brought little comfort to Mitchell Sharp whose prestige as finance minister and future as an aspirant to the Liberal leadership depend on the support he can muster for his financial policies within the Liberal party.

Not Clear Yet

Although Pearson happily accepted Walter Gordon's resignation from the finance portfolio six months ago to install Mitchell Sharp, it's still not clear which man's policies carry greater appeal with the Liberal caucus.

The usually homogeneous Liberal party is splitting up into two factions of economic thought — a process crystallized by the publication of Walter Gordon's book, "A Choice for Canada." The main effect of the book has been to unite the anti-establishment elements of the Liberal party against Sharp, though it has failed to create a meaningful "Gordon for leader" movement.

This situation, brought into the open by the current dispute over the revision of the Bank Act has confronted Sharp with the trickiest challenge of his political career. He has so far failed to carry his proposals either through caucus or cabinet. It's beginning to look as though, instead of fashioning the kind of creative compromise he'd prefer, Sharp may have to either come down squarely on the side of the progressives in the party who want the present 6 per cent ceiling on bank loans retained, or do battle with them by aligning himself openly with the bankers.

Either move would call for its own kind of political courage.

Porter Preferred

Sharp's personal preference has always been for the Porter Commission's recommendation which called for the removal of the 6 per cent ceiling, accompanied by measures to force more competition into the banking field. This is also the position taken by the Economic Council of Canada.

But when Sharp first brought up the matter at the Liberal caucus on Jan. 26, he was bitterly attacked by Gordon and several other MPs, who maintained that no truly Liberal government could allow the banks to raise their interest rates, since this would be "an illiberal act."

Sharp then fashioned his compromise of maintaining the 6 per cent ceiling on loans under $25,000 and setting the banks free to collect whatever interest they could get on larger loans.

This was the proposal brought to the last two meetings of caucus, and again Sharp ran into concerted opposition, led this time by Maurice Lamontagne, the former secretary of state.

Drive Up Rates

Lamontagne insisted that the proposed measure makes no economic sense because it would drive up interest rates during a period of already tight money; because the small borrowers are the largest risks and should not be charged the lowest interest; and because there would be no way to force the banks to maintain their proportion of low-interest small loans.

He also threatened that if Sharp proceeds with his plan enough Liberal backbenchers would stay out of the House so that the government might be beaten on the issue in Parliament.

Since both the NDP and the two wings of the Social Credit would have to oppose the legislation on ideological grounds, this would allow John Diefenbaker to jump on the issue and defeat the government.

Cabinet Support

This view has also won support in cabinet discussions, where Sharp has run into strong opposition for his scheme from Paul Martin and Paul Hellyer. A final cabinet decision on the matter is due next week, but it will have to gain caucus approval as well.

Although Sharp's prestige as minister of finance is clearly committed on the issue, he remains undaunted by the semi-public retreats he's been forced to make.

The most important influence on his thinking was a private meeting he held with some young Liberal backbenchers in a parliamentary office last Tuesday night, the day before the full caucus. It was there Sharp became fully aware that the economic and political aspects of the Bank Act revision are entirely separate problems, whose solution run in opposition to each other.

Split Revision

Sharp is now exploring the possibility of splitting up the decennial Bank Act revision into a short-term solution (applicable to the current tight money climate and political minority situation) and a long-term solution (which would eventually force more competition into the banking field and free the bank rate).

One decision already taken is to call a federal-provincial conference on consumer credit. This would deal with the elimination of the many "hidden charges" which banks and other leading instituitions use to circumvent official and advertised interest rates.

The final disposition made of the Bank Act will decide not only the future prospects of Mitchell Sharp, but the economic direction of the Liberal party.

STRAY FROM BEATEN TRACK

To cater for travellers who prefer to go where they like when they like one of Australia's largest car-rental operators recently introduced a rent-a-plane service.

Because of Australia's size and pattern of settlement, this new service is of particular value to travellers wishing to stray from the beaten track.

Australia is 3,000,000 square miles in area and more than half the population of 12 million lives in the state capitals, which are spread around the coastline at from 150 to 2,000 miles apart.

Hire-plane travellers may now visit every unpopulated area of the interior and far north not serviced by the airlines.

So far 300 aircraft are available for hire at 90 centres throughout Australia. The aircraft range in size from single-engine, two and four-seaters to 60-passenger airliners.

The smaller aircraft are proving to be the most popular. Large touring groups usually hire several small planes in preference to a large one. The advantage is that they can set down anywhere there is a level spread of open ground. Larger aircraft have to by-pass all but the regular airports.

Long-distance hire-plane tours are becoming a vogue. Groups have rented planes for crocodile and buffalo hunting expeditions in the wild Gulf of Carpentaria country in the far north, for sightseeing and skin diving excursions to the islands of the Great Barrier Reef and for jaunts into the interior of New Guinea.

Most popular of the regular long distance tours are "Aerial Safaris" organized and led by a veteran bush pilot. These operate for groups of small planes three times a year and cover 6,000 miles of outback country seldom visited by tourists.

Rental costs range from $13 to $17 per flying hour for two and four-seater aircraft to about $200 per hour for a 60-passenger airliner with a crew of four.

Observation Gallery Opens

The observation galleries and restaurant at the top of the 620-foot Post Office Tower in London open this month. After the opening ceremony by the Postmaster General, Anthony Wedgewood Benn, and Sir Billy Butlin, the public will be able to have a panoramic view of London.

The revolving restaurant is to be called the Top of the Tower. The charge for visiting the tower, which is open from 9:30 a.m. until 10 p.m., is 60 cents.

LONGER TRIP IS FASTER

If you take an air trip of between 100 and 200 miles, you travel at an average speed of 56 miles an hour. According to the B.C. Automobile Association, this takes in ground time, door to door, and the ground time, on the average, is more than twice the time you spend in the air —2.7 hours on the ground compared with 1.3 hours in the air.

In these days of fast, 500-miles-an-hour jets, you fare better on longer trips.

Colorful Procession Highlights June Fiesta

SAN DIEGO — Fiesta! . . . gay in color, costumes, dance and song, and spiced with tradition, this is an event symbolic of Southern California's early heritage.

Stemming from the Indians' love for fun and life, the fiesta became an integral part of all special occasions. Early in California history the Padres began to celebrate religious feasts with great liturgical splendor and devotions, well seasoned with the "Fiesta" fun and frolic. Today this early tradition still lives.

During June one of the oldest and certainly the most authentic fiesta celebrations will be held for the 150th consecutive year. On June 12 the Indians of the Mission San Antonio de Pala will again celebrate the "Corpus Christi Fiesta."

HOLY DAY

Annually visitors are invited to attend the festivities and to witness the devout Indians of Pala celebrate a 700-year-old Catholic holy day in their own way.

Each year, the fiesta begins at 9:30 a.m., when the faithful are called to worship at a Solemn High Mass by ringing of the bell in the old campanile which stands in front of the mission.

When the Mass is over a colorful procession through the village streets begins. Indians on horseback proudly lead the procession followed by representatives of each reservation, carrying gay banners of Patron Saints of the various chapels located in the outlying villages.

Small Indian girls, dressed in white, scatter flowers in the path of the procession as the Indian Choir sings old traditional Spanish hymns. Acolytes in red and white vestments carry ceremonial torches, with clergy and villagers following.

The "Fiesta" flavor is prominent in afternoon events. Ancient Indian games and dances are combined with traditional Mexican music and entertainment, a spectacular barbecue and a variety of other events and attractions.

All entertainment is free; proceeds from the sale of food will go to support the Mission and Indian school.

Mission San Antonio de Pala, founded by Fr. Antonio Peyri in 1816 as an assistencia to Mission San Luis Rey near Oceanside, is the only mission which still serves its original purpose of ministering to the Indians.

The Mission is located in San Diego County, 25 miles east of Oceanside on State Highway 76.

Play Re-enacts Colorful Period

King Henry VIII was a much-married monarch. He had six wives and spent five honeymoons at his lovely palace beside the Thames, Hampton Court.

From June 30 until Sept. 24 the romance of this colorful chapter of English history will be re-enacted through the magical medium of Son et Lumiere before the West Front of Hampton Court.

The voices of the men and women who lived there reveal the intrigues of the court, the conflict between the king and the pope over Queen Catherine's divorce, and the ambition of Anne Boleyn, who achieved the throne only to find herself condemned to the executioner

Southern Spirit In Barren North

By RICHARD GOTT
The Manchester Guardian

REYKJAVIK — Iceland is still one of the most fascinating, exotic, and unspoiled places that can be visited without the expense involved in getting to the southern hemisphere. For it belongs in spirit to the South Seas.

A land of volcanoes and geysers has no business floating off the coast of Greenland.

It is a country where you can find subtropical vegetation, fruit like grapes and melons growing among bananas and fig trees. They all grow, admittedly, in greenhouses, but these are heated not by conventioaal means but by the hot springs that bubble perennially under the volcanic crust of the island. Indeed, the whole of Reykjavik, the northernmost capital in the world, is heated by natural hot water. As a result the atmosphere has a weird soft sulphurous quality that you notice immediately at the airport.

IN 24 HOURS

It is known for people to "do" Iceland in 24 hours. The cut-price flights cross the Atlantic stopover at Keflavik, the American base, and it is possible to break one's journey for a brief spell.

In the summer occasional cruise liners halt for a day and allow their passengers time off to gawk at the natives. In 24 hours, it is true, you can see the odd geyser or two, eat shark in Reykjavik's restaurants, and take in a lava field.

Most people prefer to spend a fortnight or so exploring an island which still gives the impression of being undiscovered, and of which much remains desert and uninhabited. The map is dominated by the vast white expanse of the Vatnajokull — the largest glacier in Europe — and other glaciers and lava fields split up the island's lush pastures.

SAVAGE LAND

The islanders have grafted a veneer of civilization on a basically hostile and savage environment. For in spite of over a thousand years of history and the oldest parliament in the world, the Icelanders still have a wide-eyed attitude towards the benefits of modern industry.

Travel Writers to Inspect B.C.

Three travel editors will be observing the attractions of British Columbia next week as guests of the B.C. section of the Pacific Northwest Travel Association.

Here to see what the province has to offer tourists will be Ben Avery, of Phoenix Arizona Republic; Andrew Snaddon of the Edmonton Journal and Maurice Dagenais of Montreal La Presse.

The visiting journalists will arrive at Vancouver airport Sunday for a two-week safari.

After a two-day circuit of the metropolitan area under the guidance of Greater Vancouver Visitors Bureau officials, they will tour Vancouver Island before embarking from Kelsey Bay by B.C. Ferries new "Queen of Prince Rupert."

P.E.I. LIBERALS CLAIM:

Tory Plan 'Small Potatoes'

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Walter R. Shaw and Alex B. Campbell, opposing leaders in Monday's Prince Edward Island election, wind up their campaigns tonight.

Mr. Shaw, 78, the Progressive Conservative premier, made his last television and radio appeal Friday night, three hours after the 33-year-old Liberal leader spoke. Regulations prohibit political broadcasting within 48 hours of the election.

About 54,000 Islanders will be eligible to vote between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. ADT Monday.

The premier ended his campaign in Mr. Campbell's home riding of Summerside. The Liberals' biggest rally of the campaign was held here Friday night.

Mr. Shaw said he offered the voters 'the confidence, experience and knowledge "that comes with age."

SPEAKS OF STRUGGLE

Mr. Campbell said the premier and the government have been struggling to catch up and in doing so they have offered "the sun, moon and stars as well as little fish and small potatoes."

Both leaders devoted part of their television and radio addresses to a review of the issues. Both repledged $100 old age pensions and stressed their promises of increased aid to education.

Mr. Shaw said his government's industrial development program had already created 4,000 new jobs and it would create 7,500 more in the next five years.

Mr. Campbell, who calls Island wages the "great shame" of the province, said "there is a growing and spreading fear that if the same government is returned the same conditions of wages and working conditions will exist."

Thirty seats are at stake. The legislature had 32 seats but the election in two - member Kings 1st has been deferred until July 11.

Conservatives held 17 seats in the last legislature, Liberals 13. Redistribution added two seats

Son Catches Up To Father In Education

The father is Professor Hugh E. Farquhar of the faculty of education at the University of Victoria. He has won a $2400 fellowship in educational administration at the University of Alberta.

His son, Robin, 27, has almost completed his doctoral studies in educational administration at the University of Chicago. He will receive his doctorate next month, a year ahead of his father.

Professor Farquhar, now on leave of absence from Uvic, was formerly executive assistant to the principal of Victoria College and director of summer sessions at Uvic.

Mr. Farquhar, a Victoria High School graduate, earned his MA at UBC, and has accepted a position as associate director of the University of Ohio's Council for Educational Administration.

Gerda Probe Inspires Bill On Reporting

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyer Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) introduced a bill in the Commons Friday which would place restrictions on the reporting of government-ordered inquiries.

Mr. Brewin's bill, which got automatic first reading, would prevent publication of "any defamatory matter disclosed at or during the course of an inquiry unless such evidence or matter is relevant to the matter under inquiry and would be admissible in a court of law."

It will be debated later in the session.

In an interview outside the Commons, Mr. Brewin said his bill was inspired by the Gerda Munsinger judicial inquiry and others in which he has appeared as counsel.

He said inquiries must be "free-wheeling" and rules governing them cannot be restricted as at a public trial. This was necessary so that commissioners could hear all submissions in order to get "to the bottom of the matter under inquiry."

"Nevertheless, however unrestricted such inquiry should be in the pursuit of truth, it should not be the occasion for blackening the reputation of individuals needlessly."

CITES EXAMPLE

As an example, he said a document released by Mr. Justice Wishart Spence in the Munsinger inquiry contained a statement by the German blonde about a conversation she said she had with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

The document quoted Mr. Diefenbaker as commending Mrs. Munsinger for the good job she was doing for Canada.

Such an unsworn statement would not have been admitted in a court of law, Mr. Brewin said. Under his bill, the press would not have been allowed to publish it.

The Toronto MP said the bill doesn't affect the conduct of inquiries or royal commissions. It did lay down "guidelines for the press," which he believed would be happy to receive them.

Private Charge Gets Conviction

A privately-laid charge of careless driving at the A and W Drive-in, 1921 Oak Bay Ave., brought a conviction in traffic court Friday.

Douglas Edward Sawatsky, address unavailable, was fined $35 after the court was told he was the driver of a car which charged from the drive-in, tires squealing, and failed to stop at the stop sign at its exit May 12.

The drive-in has been the object of numerous complaints from residents in the neighborhood who have objected to noise.

John Whyte, supervisor in Victoria for the drive-in chain and the man responsible for laying the charge, said more legal action will be taken if there is not co-operation from the drive-in customers.

ALARMING JUMP IN ABORTIONS

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Despite advances in birth control methods, a study group for the United Nations children's fund says abortion still appears to be the most widely used means in the world today.

"Illegal abortions are increasing in many places where families feel competing pressures between large numbers of surviving children and rising aspirations for them," says the report.

Drawn up by a team headed by Prof. William M. Sehmidt of the Harvard school of public health and by children's fund executive director Henry Labouisse, the report recommended the UN fund's participation in government family planning programs.

It was submitted to the annual session of the fund's executive board here but the board did not reach a decision on whether UNICEF should enter the field of family planning. Instead, the board unanimously adopted an 11-nation compromise resolution deferring action until next year but giving approval to UNICEF to consider limited family - planning assistance on the request of governments.

The study group noted that in the United States nearly half the maternal deaths in large cities are the result of illegal abortion.

Studies of Santiago, Chile, show one woman in every four has had at least one induced abortion.

PRACTICED WIDE

Canada, Australia, India, Korea, Nationalist China, the United States, and the countries of Western Europe and South America were cited as nations where illegal abortion is "practised more or less widely."

The report says that in a number of countries legalized abortion is the leading method of birth control although most regard the wider spread of contraceptive methods as preferable.

Some other countries permit abortion for defined medical, eugenic and social reasons and for pregnancies resulting from sex crimes.

"Liberalization of restrictive abortion laws no doubt lessens or removes the guilt-producing shadow of clandestinity," says the report. "It also greatly reduces the risk of complications."

In Japan and some countries of Eastern Europe, for example, the mortality rates are quite small, with risks actually significantly lower than those of childbirth.

But where liberal abortion policies are followed the total number of abortions often equal or exceed the number of live births, the report noted.

Man Jailed 30 Days

Joseph Planes of Milnes Landing was sentenced to 30 days in jail Friday when he pleaded guilty in central court to impaired driving.

Police said they stopped the accused's car on Esquimalt Road early today after it was spotted crossing the centre line.

Planes received the jail term when Magistrate Ostler was told accused had been convicted of the same offence in March last year.

Fined $350 for the same charge was Alfred Venables, of 485 Island Highway. He had been previously convicted after police said they spotted him driving erratically on the Trans-Canada Highway May 22.

Saskatchewan Baritone Plans Local Concert

One of the rapidly rising young Canadian vocal artists is baritone William Fleming, who is currently engaged in recital appearances in Western Canada.

Mr. Fleming will give a recital in Victoria next Saturday at St. John's Memorial Hall, Balmoral Road.

Born in Saskatoon and educated in that city, he attended the University of Saskatchewan, majoring in music under Murray Adaskin.

His vocal studies were made with Frances James Adaskin and Donald Forbes in Saskatoon and with Ernesto Vinci at the Banff School of Fine Arts.

At present he is with Jan Van der Gucht, head of the vocal department at the Regina Conservatory. A high school music teacher, he is director of choral music at Balfour Technical School in Regina.

Mr. Fleming has performed extensively all over his native province in recital, oratario and opera, as well as making appearances with numerous choral and orchestral ensembles, including the Regina and Saskatoon symphonies.

He has also sung frequently on CBC programs.

Assisting at the piano will be an accomplished young pianist and accompanist of Regina, Mel Bowker.

Songs by Hugo Wolf, Bach, Beethoven and Ravel will be included in Mr. Fleming's Victoria program, as well as a group of Irish folk songs which he himself has arranged.

There is no ticket sale but a collection will be taken to defray expenses.

Term End Concert

The end of term student concert presented annually by Victoria School of Music, will take place June 19 at McPherson Playhouse at 3 p.m.

Brilliant young violinist Vivienne Abbott will be the featured artist for the whole of the concert's second half.

Following the tour of the National Youth Orchestra this summer, Miss Abbott leaves to join the Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra.

Another gifted Victoria violinist, Mark Butler, who will spend the summer with the NYO, is also going abroad, having won a Royal College of Music, London, scholarship.

On June 9 at 8:30, he will be presented in recital by the Registered Music Teachers' Association at Oak Bay Junior High School.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

The news is out. Paul Revere and the Raiders will play in Victoria on June 23. The scene will be Memorial Arena where the concert will also feature two other U.S. groups, the Impacts and the San Diego group the Syndicate of Sound whose record Little Girl is climbing into the top 10. Here, as well will be the Action Kids from the Where the Action Is TV series. The same show will appear in Vancouver the day before and some Vancouver talent will replace local acts to cut rehearsal time. Anyway, it should be a great show and tickets are now available at the Arena box office.

Last Monday's parade was somewhat upset by the appearance of The Cult of the Mouldy Tweed who were described as ". . . sanitation workers making themselves useful."

The Cult, Victoria's newest band, has revealed its distinctive sound only twice, both times creating quite an upset. The leader of these mad fools is, of course, Philip Linfield of former Victorian Sect. Philip and three friends, Arnold Sessions, Jim Jennings and Cyril McColgan began practising in Linfield's garage a few weeks ago. It was there that they got their sound that "you've got to hear to believe." Anyhow, they assured me that they are determined to make some changes in Victoria, the only question is, changes in what?

Theatre Guild Will Present Family Comedy

Last play to be presented in Victoria's regular theatre season will be a family comedy presented by Victoria Theatre Guild at Langham Court Theatre.

Never Too Late by Arthur Sumner Lang will open June 11 and run through the following week to June 18.

Director is Edna Kowalchuk and in the cast are Helen Phillips, Bill Howard, Bob Kimber, John Britt, Lorraine Bowman, Jan Andrew, Alan McKenzie and Dave Foster.

The last three are well known for their valuable work back stage but seldom appear before the footlights.

Song Workshop Quits Campus For Victoria

An event of musical distinction and international interest is to take place in Victoria next August.

For the first time in the history of an organization that covers the United States, one of its famous annual workshops will take place in Canada.

The National Association of Teachers of Singing Inc. Northwest Region, will hold a six-day seminar at the Empress Hotel from Aug. 14 to 19.

Such seminars have heretofore been held on various American university campuses. The decision this year to leave the campus and come to B.C.'s capital city arose from a suggestion made at the University of Idaho last year by Stanley Hoban.

DIRECTOR

Mr. Hoban, a singer and teacher well known throughout the Pacific Northwest, resided for a short while in Victoria, now makes his home in Seattle. He is the director of this year's workshop.

The workshop will be divided into numerous sessions under various distinguished artists in the particular fields.

They will deal with choral direction and choral arrangements, opera in English, the singer's preparation for operatic roles, 20th century repertoire and performance practices, among other subjects.

There will be four sessions each on A Phonetic Solution to the Language Barrier and teaching demonstrations.

These will be conducted by Hubert Kockritz. Mr. Kockritz is associate professor and chairman of the voice and opera departments of the College-Conservatory of Music of the University of Cincinnati.

SYMPHONY

He has appeared widely as a singer in this country and in Europe and has set a record of more than 50 appearances with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra under Eugene Goossens and Thor Johnson.

Another internationally renowned personality is Gwendoline Koldofsky. She is known as the female Gerald Moore among accompanists and is one of the world's most famous artists in this capacity.

She has just finished a world tour with opera star Marilyn Horne. Among the many great artists Mrs. Koldofsky accompanied regularly in concert tours was Lotte Lehmann, and she has for many years taught at summer sessions of Madam Lehmann's Academy of the West in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Koldofsky's sessions will deal with the art of accompaniment in many phases.

STARS OF MET

Ruth Miller Chamlee and her husband, Mario Chamlee, Metropolitan Opera stars who were contemporary with the Golden Age greats such as Bonelli, Melba, Scotti, Caruso, will conduct sessions under the titles, History of the Art of Singing, Five Types of Singers — How They Differ and Agree, Varying Techniques and Repertoire, Teaching Demonstrations, Tenors, and the operas, La Traviata and La Boheme.

The Chamlees' vocal studio in Hollywood has produced some famous alumni such as Anna-Maria Alberghetti and Mary Costa.

SPECIAL CONCERT

The workshop is open to any Victoria musician who wishes to register. A fee of $32.50 for the week allows the registrant to attend all sessions including a special concert by a guest artist at the McPherson Playhouse.

Those who are interested only in one or two sessions may attend for a fee of $7.00 per day.

Summer School of Drama To Be Launched at Uvic

An exciting new non-credit program will be inaugurated at University of Victoria, July 4.

The summer theatre workshop will be under the direction of the Theatre Division's Robert Hedley. It is open to high school students, teachers and community theatre enthusiasts.

Six weeks of acting, stagecraft and design will culminate in a major production directed by Mr. Hedley.

Fee for the entire course is $60 but students may enroll for any of the three sections through the University Summer Session Office.

Faculty will be Mr. Hedley, acting; Wolfgang Baba, stagecraft; Joseph K. Rider, professional designer from Fort Wayne, Indiana, design, and Miss Jane Cowell of Central School of Speech and Drama, London, England, speech.

The university has provided 29 scholarships this year for talented young actors and technicians from Grades XI and XII.

Signs Said Sinatra But One Was Junior

At 4 a.m. Sinatra Jr.'s telephone rang.

"So it's 'Senior' now, is it?" growled his famous father. "Look, kid, I don't like being 'Senior.' "

Frank Sr. was kidding, of course. The fact that he has attended 10 of his son's performances in several cities suggested a father proud of a son following a remarkably similar career.

The respect is mutual. Says Junior: "Without question he is the man of the era. He sets the style."

Young Sinatra is 22, his father 50. They have the same walk, the same square shoulders, the same slender build and tough, articulate manner of speaking.

Swarthy, with dark brown eyes and hair, Junior vaguely suggests his father's looks and, of course, voice.

"The critics said in the beginning I was a blatant copy of my father," the son said the other day. "Now they sometimes notice only a vague similarity. And that I have my own musical personality which has taken time to perfect."

OTTAWA (CP)—A bid by the publicly-owned CBC to operate a French-language FM radio station in Vancouver will be considered by the Board of Broadcast Governors at its next public hearing.

Offer on Airport

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has offered to purchase Calgary municipal airport and spend up to $20,000,000 on new facilities there, it was learned Friday.

NORTH BREEZES

Our maitre d' Les Szabo sized up the tall, tanned guest with the sun-narrowed eyes and the weathered skin.

As he shook out his napkin, Les saw his hands were like leather. And he seemed to sit with a slight list as if on a racing yacht in white water. Les greeted him as a visiting skipper here to race in the Swiftsure this weekend.

"For a saltwater man," said Les, "I recommend the Dungeness Crab Legs on ice, or the Gulf of Georgia, fresh-caught shrimp cocktail—or half a dozen Fanny Bay oysters."

"Not me surely," said the guest. Turned out he'd earned his weathered visage and his list leaning against a telephone pole waiting for the Cedar Hill bus. And his hands, why, he's a gardener in Beacon Hill park.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

It seems to be the fashion among newspaper commentators that whenever anything in the nature of a festival has taken place they must dig down and conduct a microscopic post mortem on the departed.

In fact, it is not entirely unknown for some with more ego than good taste, to conduct the PM while the corpus is still in being.

With competitive festivals, it being a journalistic faux pas to contradict the adjudicator in cold print, newspaper critics are under bond to keep their lips buttoned on whatever opinions they harbor.

Undoubtedly this accounts for the rush to "get it out of their systems" as soon as the adjudicator's back is turned.

* * *

I'm fully aware of a sense of anti-climax in saying anything further on the subject of the Dominion Drama Festival.

But my resolve to let it go without comment is weakening.

Let's face it, we critics are as egotistical a bunch of people as you will find—deny us our say and who knows in what direction our frustration may vent itself.

So, just a word or two on the subject, for if I read the signs aright we may have come to bury Caesar.

* * *

There were many evidences of morbidity in this year's Dominion Drama Festival, which were not to be found a half-dozen years ago.

This will not be the last festival, but unless many things alter, unless the DDF format changes considerably within the next two or three years, it seems to me highly unlikely that it will survive much beyond that.

For one thing, the standard as a whole this year was a definite shock to those of us who clearly recall the DDF of earlier days.

Even when it was a one-act play festival and in the first few years after the war when it became three-act, the standard was incomparably better.

* * *

Three reasonably good productions out of seven supposedly representative of the best resources of amateur theatre across the country—surely this is a terrible average.

But there it is. And furthermore, two groups from the populous and favorably located zones of Ontario were at the very bottom of the depressing heap.

Worst of all—because the value of the festival might have been retrieved considerably if the participants had met with the stimulous of shrewd, constructive analysis—adjudicator Marius Goring was altogether the wrong man for the job.

* * *

Why was he chosen? I am told that it is very difficult to get a suitable person who is both fluent in our two languages and can spare the time to do the job.

Contrary to the belief of some people, top men in the theatrical fields are by no means snapping at opportunities to adjudicate amateur drama festivals.

On the other hand, it should have been obvious to those responsible that the task of adjudicating finals of a Canada-wide festival must be entrusted foremostly to a person experienced in the judge's difficult and comprehensive craft.

* * *

As Mr. Goring has lived almost his whole life in the theatre and is demonstrably a fine actor, one can only suppose that inexperience in this instance, and perhaps the subjectivity of the actor's vision, caused him to be so inconclusive and weightless in his adjudications and so puzzling in his awards.

Actually, 14 awards could not be distributed by anyone to the entire satisfaction of any other person, but when they all go astray, in the opinion of nearly everyone except the recipients, this is a real foulup.

Most incomprehensible to me were the lighting and design awards. Death of a Salesman, which took the former, was poorly plotted, the lighting was without subtity and clumsily handled.

As for "best designer"—this award must take into consideration costumes as well as scenery, and there was no comparison between Les Bonnes (which won it) and Mother Courage.

* * *

I'm afraid it is true indeed that Mother Courage was robbed.

Whether or not Mother Courage and The Knack should have been reversed for the top two trophies could be a matter of opinion; certainly Mother Courage had weaknesses, though it demanded far more of all concerned with the production than did the comedy.

But even though I found Lucille Walker in the title role neither harsh nor bold enough, nor of sufficient range, I am convinced that she should have had the best actress award.

* * *

As for the original Canadian play, R.I.P. should be written and let us pass on.

Except for wondering how a group such as The Questors of Toronto—which I understand is about to turn professional—could have chosen the script, or, having chosen it, could have gone beyond the early rehearsal stages without recognizing its appallingly pedestrian writing.

Possibly Mr. Goring felt the author of such a play was not worth encouraging. Nevertheless, it's a pity he found it necessary to add to the discomfort of the audience a further embarrassment by lampooning the playwright to his face.

* * *

And now, having uttered some last words (time and distance notwithstanding), I have a few words to eat.

A couple of weeks ago I prophesied that there would be rows of empty seats at festival sessions, due to high ticket prices.

I was wrong.

In point of fact, my unofficial estimate would be that there was an average nightly attendance of between five and six hundred.

For the players the houses were encouragingly full, though what this means in terms of cash at the box office it is hard to say, without knowing the ratio of complimentary tickets.

One more last word on the subject. Flop though it may have been in terms of quality and adjudication, the 1966 DDF finals were not entirely a failure and for this the Victoria executive committees and the hosts and hostesses can take full credit.

For their sake, particularly, I hope the financial picture is good.

Once Exposed, Ellington Fever Lingers

By LEONARD FEATHER
The Los Angeles Times

Before leaving for the Far East, Duke Ellington stopped off at the RCA studios in Hollywood to record an album.

A session with the Duke has none of the clock-watching rigidity that enshrouds many recording dates. The blue cloud that settles over an Ellington studio is less mist than mystique.

CAMP FOLLOWERS

Gathered always in the control room is a nucleus of the loyal Ellington camp-followers: A businessman friend who becomes his unpaid social secretary every time the band hits town; an ex-sideman or two; an assortment of glamorous ladies awaiting that magniloquent moment of Ducal flattery ("I knew you were here, because the whole studio was suddenly aglow with a turquoise radiance"); an agent, an ex-agent now turned old friend; even an ex-recording executive from a rival company.

NEVER REMOVED

Nobody once exposed to the aura of Ellingtonia ever accepts total removal from the man or his entourage.

Today's project was a familiar one: A package of new versions of songs that have made Ellington a permanent guest in the global household.

"It isn't easy to do these things," said Ellington. "If one wants to attract people who heard the tunes years ago, one must retain the original flavor so they'll think they are listening to the same arrangement; yet we must add new dimensions, broader voicings.

"Other people's versions aren't what bother me. The opposition I contend with on these songs is not from Count Basie or Woody Herman; it's from Ellington."

Montreal Gets La Scala Opera

Negotiations to present La Scala Opera of Milan at the World Festival to be held in Montreal have been completed by Expo 67 and the government of Italy.

This will be La Scala's first appearance in North America and its only appearance on this continent in 1967. The company will present nine performances in the 3,000-seat Grande Salle of the Place des Arts, Oct. 5-15.

CHAMBERS

PALMER
. . . but first a concert

City Man Eyes Michigan Study

Gifted Victoria musician, David Palmer, will leave the city in August to undertake his final year toward his Bachelor of Music degree at the University of Michigan

Making one of his last Victoria appearances, he will be presented in an organ recital by the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Monday night.

The recital will be held in the church commencing at 8.

Victoria-born, Mr. Palmer began studying music at the age of 10 and his local teachers have been Mrs. B. A. Mitchell, Miss Noel Smith, Graham Steed and Richard Proudman.

He has been organist at St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church and is presently organist-choirmaster at Fairfield United.

His assisting artist — also a native Victorian — will be baritone Martin Chambers.

Mr. Chambers will graduate this spring from the University of British Columbia with a Bachelor of Music degree.

He has spent the last four years studying there with Donald Brown. Previously he had taken vocal lessons from Kay Paulin of this city.

He now plans to teach for two years before going to Europe for further vocal training.

A collection will be taken in aid of the choir's Centennial Chimes Fund.

Granted $1,000

A $1,000 grant from the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation has been made to Notre Dame University of Nelson.

The grant will be to assist the 1966 summer school of the arts in the ballet and vocal music divisions, E. D. Baravalle, director of the school announced.

Second annual arts school, it will also offer courses in pottery, painting, drama and band music.

$150 FROM OKLAHOMA

Following the successful run of Oklahoma at McPherson Playhouse, president of the Victoria Operatic Society, Miss Margaret Duff, presented a cheque for $150 to John Wade, vice-president of the Victoria School of Music.

The amount was the society's contribution to the school's memorial piano fund, proceeds of which will be used to defray the cost of the new German made Steinway concert grand piano now en route from London to Victoria.

Mayfair Manager On Pollution Board

A vacancy on the city's air pollution advisory board will be filled by Mayfair manager A. G. Coning.

City council appointed him Thursday, following his numerous protests over the smoke and fly ash problem in the north Douglas area.

Founder Endows Gallery

During the last 20 years, when he has made his home in Switzerland, Hon. Mark Kearley has sustained an active interest in the Victoria Art Gallery which he was chiefly instrumental in founding in 1944.

His most recent of numerous gifts to the gallery is a substantial sum of money for investment.

Part of the income is to be used for an annual prize of $50 to be awarded to the Vancouver Island secondary school student submitting the best painting depicting some aspect of the British Columbia environment.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

Robin Doesn't Impress Skelton

The annual exhibition of the Saanich Peninsula Art Centre is always enjoyable and this year's show was more enjoyable than ever. Part of the fascination derives from the indiscriminate nature of the proceedings; all works submitted are hung, and the consequence is a representative cross-section of all the artistic taste and talent (and lack of them) in the community.

Skelton

Thus this event acts as an annual survey of the visual culture of our part of the island; the result of this years' survey is, to me, encouraging.

There are fewer really impossible pictures than ever before, and fewer instances of really gross sentimentality.

Of course, the best works in the show tend always to be by the professionals, and this year they were well represented by good things from Michael Morris, Fleming Jorgensen, Maxwell Bates, and Myfanwy Pavelic.

Elza Mayhew's two sculptures I found somewhat dull; they revealed little tension and their forms were predictable.

Herbert Siebner's contribution was elegant, but slight. John Andre contributed a pleasingly dramatic nude, however, and, among the more conventional works, I derived great pleasure from three small oils by Verna Petrie.

The two stars of the show were, however, for me Mollie Privett and Bruce Wright.

Mr. Wright is still a very young painter but his work has great vitality and courage. His painted construction was perhaps a little chaotic, but, like his tachiste painting, it had lots of zest.

•

Mollie Privett's group of oil paintings and nude studies delighted me, the large oils owe something to her studies with Herbert Siebner. Their colouring and their manipulation of volume reminds me of his work of some years back.

They are, however, beautifully composed, and the human figures in Bathers have a sculptural solidity that is truly impressive.

The nude studies are less derivative and very successful indeed. They have both strength and lyric charm; the formal elegance of one of the reclining figures impressed me considerably.

I look forward to seeing a less ephemeral exhibition of Mrs. Privett's works in the near future.

Unfortunately I cannot tell you to go to see the works I have mentioned, as the exhibition is now over.

•

I can, however, suggest that you visit Pandora's Box to see the exhibition of collages by Robin Skelton.

Mr. Skelton is, of course, an artist with whom I have some sympathy. I have been very close to him for more than 40 years, and have grown to distrust his judgments and question his taste.

His collages are made, I understand, in the intervals between his periods of literary composition, and several of them betray an interest in the poetic at the expense of the pictorial.

Thus his large Leda and his smaller Tragedians and Cytherea seem to me to be merely decorative variations upon literary themes, while In Memory of All the Men has a slick surrealist look about it which disturbs me.

Nevertheless, there are some interesting works here.

I am myself fascinated by the near-comedy (intentional or not) of some of the photo-collages, which approach parody as often as they approach pastiche, and I find myself wondering whether or not this kind of work would not be more appropriate to some ironic book than to an art gallery.

Such doubts are, perhaps, inevitable in this case. One always approaches the writings of a painter or the paintings of a writer with some hesitance, and the hesitance is often justified.

I think of the appalling paintings of D. H. Lawrence, and the ichoate drama of Picasso, and realize that there has only been one Michaelangelo and one William Blake.

Nevertheless, this exhibition does present interesting questions. Mr. Skelton is a notorious art critic as well as a poet; to what extent does his work reflect his critical attitudes?

•

Can the critic also create? Do his collages do more than reflect a superficially sophisticated taste for art, or do they reveal real talent?

I am at a less here. Skelton is a hard man to understand; I've spent years attempting to take his measure.

Do go to see this exhibition, though. There are some excellent paintings in the adjoining room.

THE WORST STORY IS CLEVER BOOK

Reviewed by GLEN ALLEN

One autumn night about seven years ago two young psychopaths shot and killed a Kansas farmer, his wife and their two teen-age children.

It was a grotesque crime; last year the two assassins were hanged for committing it.

Truman Capote whose brilliant non-fiction works include documentaries of an American show company's trip to Russia, an interview with Marlon Brando and travel pieces (his description of a Spanish milk run — "the train pulled away so slowly butterflies came in and out at the window") has written In Cold Blood, a "non-fiction novel" about the murderers, the murdered, Kansas, America, death, crime and punishment.

Between act and execution, for a full five years, Mr. Capote talked with anyone who ever knew anything about Richard Hickock and Perry Smith or their victims, Herbert Clutter, his wife Bonnie, their children Kenyon and Nancy. He talked with police who investigated the murders, with postmistresses who handled their mail, hired men, convicts, travelling salesmen, storekeepers and cowhands.

In Cold Blood is, as a result, a spectrum, a panorama of all the events and all the social phenomena bound to what happened one single ghastly November night.

MET HICKOCK

Smith met Hickock in jail. Smith, a Cherokee half-breed crippled in a motorcycle accident, beaten in orphanages, left by parents, subject of every kind of social catastrophe life has to offer was a likeable, intelligent intermittently insane man who had, untill he met Hickock, never done much worse than rob a grocery store.

Hickock, confidence man, vain, cunning, befriended Smith because he thought Smith capable of murder in cold blood.

He was, as things turned out, right.

The two met on their release, went to the Clutter farm intending to rob the house safe — Hickock had learned of it from a cellmate who once worked for Clutter — and surprised the family in their beds.

In a horrible and fascinating sequence Capote puts together that night and the next morning. Each member of the family was shot in the head with a shotgun. Smith pulled the trigger.

DEATH ROW

They came back, were arrested, convicted and were tenants of death row through appeal after appeal until their luck ran out.

Hickock died, as they say, bravely, Smith with apologies for what he had done, if he never quite understood what he had done.

As well as any work of fiction could, this "creative" documentary evokes the patterns and kinds of life the principals of the sordid drama led.

It is especially evocative of the prairie Methodist, Republican life the Clutters lived and the uncanny and sinister fraternity between Hickock and Smith.

But America itself is under Capote's knife. The lives of its misfits are emblematic of a society that can't look after its own.

SIDE ISSUES

That declaration, and side issuses concerning the ethics of Capote's doing the job at all, are extraneous to its worth.

The book has a credability gap.

How in the world Capote ever knew the images and the wording of poor Bonnie Clutter's dream sequence is impossible to say.

What, in exact words, Nancy Clutter said to her boyfriend the night before she died, Capote could never really know. Yet he pretends to.

The book is five years of dialogue, dialogue at second and third hand, dressed up by Capote who is, happily, an accomplished writer of dialogue.

In Cold Blood then, whatever it is, (and there is no reason why it could not be sui generis), is an admirable bewildering book.

SOMEBODY PAID

Its classification is not crucial to its success. It is a good book because it tells a very important story, one of the worst ever told, though it is repeated substantially every week somewhere or other.

It is the story of the tragedy of six people and perhaps a country.

It is the story of how, as Perry Smith explained to his friend Capote, someone finally had to pay for what the world had done to him.

Novel Reader Comes To Gruesome Ending

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Patrick White is an Australian. Among the novels to his credit, The Happy Valley and The Aunt's Story have received some critical and popular approval. The Solid Mandala is his fifth novel.

Twin brothers, Arthur and Waldo Brown, are the central figures in this work. Arthur is the visionary, the emotional man; Waldo is the man of reason, the practical one.

The two brothers are complementary; not only are they bound together by their blood relationship, but by the strange mutual love-hate that manifests itself in many peculiar ways.

Mr. White is at his best when depicting the subtleties and depth of his characters; he is correspondingly weak in his handling of plot, for his story lacks both variety and interest.

In fact, the technique employed in The Solid Mandala may strike many readers as tedious rather than interesting, for Mr. White tells the same story twice, first giving Waldo's view, then Arthur's.

Most readers are apt to judge the novel tedious and dull, with a conclusion that is at once unexpected, gruesome, and revolting.

FOR THE HANDICAPPED

NEW REHABILITATION CENTRE

One of the many areas in which people learn ways to earn livelihoods is the repair of small electrical appliances. Here Hilmar Falkenstern, 1136 Caledonia, makes repairs to an electric toaster.

At Goodwill Enterprises our product is people. People—handicapped people—have set the pace for Goodwill Enterprises, and Goodwill Enterprises has set the pace for handicapped people.

The purpose of Goodwill is to provide evaluation, training and rehabilitation services for those handicaped, disadvantaged people able to move forward into normal, regular employment . . .

ALSO, to give work opportunities at Goodwill to persons too severely handicapped for work in normal, competitive commerce.

A person, while somewhat restricted, may still live a full and satsifying life with only one lung or leg, or with emotional problems, or with mental retardation, or with being over the usual age of employability—but, to do this, he must retain his feeling of usefulness. Goodwill, daily, provides handicapped people a means of being productive, of maintaining the dignity of self-support, and of "graduating" to jobs in regular industry.

Goodwill Enterprises is a non-profit, society serving the handicapped of Vancouver Island without regard for race, national origin or creed.

For over eight years Goodwill Enterprises has provided the community with a growing program of rehabilitation services for the handicapped.

Goodwill has always been determined to create and establish ever more adequate and effective services.

Through the years Goodwill has developed and grown to meet the needs of the ever-growing number of handicapped people who depend upon her. As a result of amplified support by a concerned and far-sighted public, many of yesterday's goals have been achieved.

The Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped Rehabilitation Centre is both today's accomplishment and tomorrow's assurance of continuing service.

Two Sides Of Woods Dispute

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

In less than three weeks, the two-year agreement between companies and union in the B.C. lumbering industry will expire.

The 26,000-member International Woodworkers of America, the province's biggest union, has voted 94.18 per cent for strike action if necessary.

On the other side are 120 companies represented by Forest Industrial Relations.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson has appointed Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz as an industrial inquiry commissioner to look into and make recommendations on the dispute.

Union:

- An extra 50 cents an hour for everyone in a one-year contract;
- An 8½-hour day for loggers from marshalling point back to marshalling point;
- Fifteen cents an hour more differential for afternoon shifts and 20 cents an hour more for graveyard shifts;
- Longer vacations with more pay — three weeks after one year with 8½ per cent pay; four weeks after five years with 10½ per cent; five weeks after 10 years with 12½ per cent.
- No contracting out of work unless under conditions of the master contract;
- Union members not to be required to handle products from strikebound companies or pass through a recognized picket line;
- Double pay for overtime;
- Negotiation of provisions for adjustments to new production methods or machines;
- One extra statutory holiday — Boxing Day for loggers and at Easter for mill workers; with pay;
- Up to six months leave of absence for compassionate reasons and for employee retraining in special skills;
- Changes to modernize the 10-year job evaluation program in plywood plants;
- Vacations with pay to be timed to meet the needs of workers and families;
- Elimination of "competency" where the present agreement reads: "The company recognizes the principle of seniority, competency considered" and "the last person hired shall be the first released, subject to the competency of the person involved."

Companies:

- Arbitration machinery to fix blame for illegal work stoppages and assess compensation for the injured party;
- A five-day 40-hour work week within seven days, to keep machinery running all week instead of the present five days Monday to Friday;
- Conference on falling and bucking to seek a "viable solution" to "serious distortions in the wage scale." Average daily wages now are $55 and $95 a day isn't uncommon;
- Extension of plywood job evaluation to other branches of the industry;
- Where a statutory holiday falls on a Tuesday or Thursday, this be changed to Monday or Friday for a three-day weekend for employees;
- Payment of the minimum job rate for travel time instead of the employee's job rate;
- Increased daily board and lodging rates in camps, to $4 per man from $2.50;
- Seniority protection for foremen to allow them to accumulate seniority with the company;
- Limitation on retroactive pay "where there has been any unreasonable delay on the part of the union in initiating or processing grievance."

WALL ST. LEADS WAY

Market Picture Brighter

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Paced by a rising New York market, Canada's stock markets this week snapped a five-week decline.

The New York market started its upswing Monday on reports that a narrower U.S. budget deficit is expected for the fiscal year beginning June 30, lessening the chances for a tax increase.

A number of analysts feel the market is levelling off and they point to the fact the market weathered a mid-week announcement by the U.S. auto industry that mid-May sales suffered a 12-per-cent decrease compared with the same period in 1965.

However, others say the sales drop had been anticipated and that investors discounted the decline last week.

At Toronto, volume continued to be on the light side totalling 13,393,092 shares compared with 16,970,865 last week. The market was closed Monday because of the Victoria Day holiday. Volume at Montreal was 4,598,346 shares compared with 5,910,284 last week.

BANKS ADVANCE

Banks led the advance on the Toronto market following reports that revisions of the Bank Act are to be made to Parliament shortly with a partial lifting of the six-per-cent interest ceiling considered likely.

The bank index was up 4.63 to 143.82. Montreal climbed 3¼ to 62, Toronto-Dominion 2⅝ to 63¼, Imperial-Commerce 2¼ to 66, Royal 1½ to 76½ and Nova Scotia 1¾ to 71.

Among other industrials, Bell Telephone gained 1⅞ to 53½ on 67,591 shares following an announcement by the company Wednesday of an eight-cent increase in its latest quarterly dividend and that it expects to pay $2.50 annually in the future instead of $2.20. It was Bell's first dividend increase in more than six years.

Massey-Ferguson moved up 1⅛ to 36⅛ after the company announced a record profit for the first six months ended April 30, of $21,200,000 or $1.37 a share from $8,100,000 or 54 cents a share a year earlier. CPR increased 2⅞ to 60, General Motors and B-A Oil 2 each to 92 and 33½, Dofasco 1 to 24 and Distillers Seagrams ⅞ to 33⅛.

Losses went to B.C. Telephone, down 3¼ to 61¾ and Atlantic Sugar ⅞ to 26⅝.

CPR Profit Soaring

MONTREAL (CP) — The CPR Friday reported net earnings of $7,782,419 for the month of April, compared with net earning of $3,041,625 for the corresponding period last year.

The earnings were realized on railway revenues of $46,814,054. Expenditures amounted to $39,031,635. In April, 1965, revenues were $42,184,492 and expenses $39,142,867.

Net earnings for the first three months of this year totalled $17,402,707 compared with $10,556,554 for the first three months of 1965.

A statement issued by the company said the figures include federal allowances related to recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission and under the Freight Rates Reduction Act. A federal allowance of $7,300,000 in respect of wage increases granted in 1964 is also included.

Japanese Eye Joint Program

TOKYO (AP)—Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta said today he has found many Japanese industrial firms are interested in joint development of natural resources in western and northwestern Canada.

Pulp Future In the Chips

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said here he foresees the day when whole logs will be used exclusively for dimension lumber, not pulp.

He told the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association that sooner or later pulp mills will use only wood chips and by-products.

The minister said he has some difficulty in convincing pulp mill operators that some day they won't be using logs.

25th ANNIVERSARY

DONALD K. SMYTH

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada has announced that Donald K. Smyth, a member of the Victoria sales force, has completed twenty-five years of service as a representative of the Company.

Mr. Smyth, who is a native of Victoria, is very active in community affairs in this city, and has been associated with numerous fund-raising activities. It is of interest that he has been honored by having been elected an Honorary Member of the International Association of Firefighters (Local 730).

So Who's in a Hurry?

If an investor is offered a fixed return on a debenture or preferred share investment, he's often sold on the soundness of the investment by the "increased earnings" or the "rapid expansion" of the company concerned—none of which provide him with any security at all! As a matter of fact, too fast an expansion has been perhaps the largest single reason for bankruptcies over the years . . . and as far as increased earnings are concerned, no benefit accrues to the debenture holders' credit, but only to the Common Shareholders.

Victoria Mortgage is growing too, like almost every company these days, but our director is not "a man in a hurry." Low-risk mortgages are selected that will stand on their own in the event of recession; many mortgages are as low as 20% to 30% of prime real estate security. OVER 25% OF OUR MORTGAGES ARE AGAINST SECURITY THAT INCLUDES WATERFRONT PROPERTY. In addition, the company has substantial share capital and bonds guaranteed by the B.C. Government.

Make sure your money is as soundly invested as Victoria Mortgage Debentures. There's no need to take greater risk . . unless you're in a hurry.

Five-year 7½%; 2½-year 7%; 1-year 7%. Interest paid quarterly. No acquisition cost.

Phone EV 4-7128 to have an easy-to-read booklet, including prospectus, mailed.

Newspaper Advertising Stimulates Buying

Marketing---Building Materials

The successful candidate will be responsible for the promotion and selling of special Company products, including the development of new uses and markets.

As a technical background is desirable, preference will be given to graduates in Agriculture or Civil Engineering with related experience. Consideration will be given, however, to other recent university graduates.

Please Reply to Victoria Press Ltd., Box 603

CARD PROMOTION

American Firm Spreads Credit

By AB KENT
Times Business Writer

American Express Co. will press 11,000 new credit cards into the hands of Canadians this year bringing its total in this country to 50,000.

Although the move could be looked upon as a stimulant to buying and hence an instrument of inflation, American Express looks on it as one means of marking more than 100 years of service to Canadians.

And when Canada celebrates its centenary next year, American Express will add another 100,000 credit cards to its list of holders in the 10 provinces.

IN VICTORIA

Lawrence G. Peters, senior executive of the company in New York, was in Victoria Frday as part of a Canadian tour dealing with the appointment of 14 travel firms as American Express agents.

Blaney's Travel Service Ltd. is the local firm chosen to handle Vancouver Island trade in travel, credit, travelers' cheque and other services offered by the company established in 1850.

Mr. Peters would not say what his company grosses in the travelers' cheque business but $60 million a year is paid out through loss of cheques and fraudulent conversion.

It recently was made general agent in the U.S. to handle Expo 67 passports, the daily, weekly or season tickets obtainable for the rest of this year at a discount.

American Express also was given authority to designate banks as official Expo ticket and information centres and will supply advertising materials without charge.

TRAVEL BILL

All this is founded on an astronomical figure supplied by Mr. Peters, who said Americans spend a staggering $50 billion a year on travel.

The link with Expo has special significance because half of the 30 million visitors expected at the fair in Montreal between April and October 1967 will be from the United States.

American Express in Canada has been largely confined to travelers' cheque service through Canadian banks, and in other ways to the metropolitan centres of the east.

LOOKING WEST

Now, like many other eastern Canadian and American businesses, it has discovered the west, and will encourage the use of credit cards to obtain a wide range of services and even cash.

Recently 5,000 banks were linked in an alarm network stretching across the continent to Europe to give early warning of stolen cheques that are likely to be passed.

The company has its own private security force that works closely with the FBI, RCMP, Scotland Yard, Surete, Interpol and other law enforcement and crime detection agencies around the world. Its methods keep step with jet-age thieves and forgers.

CANADIAN BBB MEETS ON WEEKEND

Advancement of BBB liaison with business is expected to be the keynote of an address by Willard M. Zurflieh, of New York vice-president of the bureaus' international association.

Mr. Zurflieh comes to Victoria from the BBB international convention in San Francisco this week.

Also coming to take part in the three-day conference will be A. J. Frost, chairman of the Canadian association of BBB — a lawyer, accountant and executive of Guaranty Trust Co. — and Fraser M. Fell, QC, president of the Toronto BBB association.

Oil Find Announced

CALGARY (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. announced Friday the discovery of two oil pay zones totalling 190 feet in a well drilled a year ago in the Rainbow Lake area of northwestern Alberta.

A company spokesman said a 90-foot zone was found starting at a depth of 5,973 feet and a 100-foot zone in a different geological formation starting at the 6,397-foot level.

The well is about 14 miles southwest of the Banff Oil Ltd. Rainbow discovery well, drilled in March, 1965. It is outside the Rainbow oil field, in an area where several wells have been drilled.

The Imperial well, which hit oil about 11 months ago, was drilled to a total depth of 7,048 feet. The company did not give estimates of reserves or recovery figures.

Expo in the Bag

DRIVERS FAVOR ANDRETTI . . . . . . TO WIN CAR-RACING CLASSIC

Indy Fans Wonder if Mario Can Wheel all the Way

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — One of sports' biggest crowds began filling Indianapolis hostelries and side streets today, chattering about what makes Mario Andretti move so fast and whether he can do it for 500 miles Monday.

A nationwide poll of 68 auto race writers established the little Italian-born driver as the favorite, a status he already enjoyed on the basis of a record - breaking qualification at 165.899 miles an hour for the Golden Anniversary 500 - mile auto race.

There were plenty of skeptics, however.

Against Andretti's 20 votes, defending champion Jimmy Clark of Scotland received 16; Dan Gurney of California 11; two-time winner A. J. Foyt of Houston, 7; and former winner Parnelli Jones, 7.

Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Tex., and Gordon Johncock of Hastings, Mich., received two votes each, and Cale Yarborough of Charlotte, N.C., one.

Fans, possibly 300,000, hoped for a better contest than the 1965 race. Clark and Foyt were the only leaders, and Clark had no opposition after the former U.S. champion's engine failed.

But it could be another runaway if Andretti's rebuilt Brabham-Ford, third last year, holds together.

Carl Williams of Kansas City, a standout among the seven first-time starters, commented:

"If Andretti runs real consistent instead of trying to make it a trophy dash, he can lead most of the way. He runs easy a couple of miles an hour faster than the rest of us when we're hurrying."

BILLY FOSTER

The only Canadian qualifier is Billy Foster of Victoria, at 159.49 miles an hour.

The odds were heavy against the rookies, who included England's Graham Hill, a former world road racing champion and Jackie Stewart of Scotland, the Monaco Grand Prix winner last Sunday.

No first-time starter has won the race since George Souders of Lafayette, Ind., in 1927.

Rodger Ward of Indianapolis is the only former winner in the field besides Clark, Foyt and Jones. He and Jones will be driving cars with supercharged Offenhauser engines; new power plants which haven't been as effective in practice as the special Fords pushing Andretti, Clark, Gurney and most of the other high ranking drivers.

The switch to rear - engine cars, started three years ago, lacked reaching 100 per cent by a single vehicle. Veteran Bobby Grim of Indianapolis made the lineup with a front engine car, but it has a new turbocharged Offenhauser which performed beautifully in the trials.

The field, with 22 Fords and 11 Offys, averaged a record 160.251 m.p.h. in the trials against 153.774 last year. Clark's 1965 record for the full race was 150.686.

Driver Chuck Rodee of Indianapolis was killed in a qualifying run May 14, bringing to 57 the number of persons who have been killed at the speedway since it opened in 1909 with a series of short races.

The 500 was inaugurated in 1911, with Ray Harroun, still an interested spectator at the age of 87, winning at 74.59 m.p.h.

Hal Malone
LOOKS AT SPORTS

Hurtling around and around a track at 160 miles an hour in a funny looking automobile doesn't excite my metabolism. If you want to get dizzy what's wrong with getting caught in a revolving door?

But some men like to take a stroll on the bottom of the sea and others prefer to ride above the clouds in a balloon. Like car jockeys, they are aware of the death probability factor of their avocation or vocation, but they figure it's more fun than washing dishes or hanging wallpaper. That's all very well for them, but would you want your daughter to marry one?

At Indianapolis Monday, 33 candidates for psychiatric study will slide into cars you never see in a church parking lot on Sunday mornings. After the starter bellows, "Gentlemen, start your engines," they will attempt 200 laps around the 2½-mile Speedway.

For 49 years the winner's circle of the Indy "500" has been the exclusive privy of American and European chauffeurs. No Eskimo, Russian or Canadian has ever disturbed the pattern.

A few years ago a Canadian attempted to qualify but ran into a low-flying seagull in his time trials. The bird hit the windshield of Ed Kostenuk's car with such force they picked glass out of his face for days.

Bill Stayed Close for 90 Laps

Last year, William Foster, 27, native and resident of this outpost, qualified and hung on for 90 laps of the main event before his motor abdicated. He finished 16th. Nobody was killed but several made good tries.

They haven't even been to the starting post this year and the box score reads: one driver (Chuck Rodee) dead, seven cars smashed.

Foster doesn't have to play Russian roulette with souped-up spark plugs to earn a living. He once operated a service station. He has a soft-sell personality that earned him the sales manager's position with a substantial car dealer.

But after he had whomped the whey out of all the competition from Edmonton to Salt Lake City, he aimed for Indianapolis "because I would never be satisfied wondering if I could be the best if I didn't give it a shot."

On Monday in the Ear-Splitting Derby, Foster will pilot a rear-engine Ford for Rolla Vollstedt of Portland, Ore. His qualifying time of 159.49 miles per hour placed him on the outside of the fourth row.

Garage Looked Like Chinese Soup

In his breezy, always calm and concise fashion, he talked about his car, his qualifying spin and his plans on the blower Thursday from the Indianapolis pits . . .

Q. "How's your car look?"

A. "It looks a mess. It's in pieces. The whole (Vollstedt) garage looks like Chinese soup. We've got three cars in here. One isn't going anyplace. Mine is being shaken down and so is Cale Yarborough's—he qualified 24th."

"Were you pleased with the car in the qualifying run?"

"Surprised more than pleased. We were a week later than we planned on getting here. I only did 10 laps before the test."

"A story out of Indy said you might have gone faster if your clutch hadn't slipped. What did that cost you in miles per hour?"

"Maybe two miles an hour. And you could add another two miles for the driver."

"How's that?"

"I probably would have driven more aggressively if I had put in more time on the track. You don't go out and burst right away. You build it up a mile at a time over a week."

Next Big One Will Be at Le Mans

"What's the potential of your car compared with say Andretti's?" (Mario Andretti captured the pole with the quickest time of 165.89 mph.)

"I know I can turn 164. That doesn't get me past Andretti or some of the others, but they've got to go the route. You never know how far you'll go or what dizzy thing will happen. You check and double-check and some 15-cent part might knock you out of it."

"What are your plans after Indy? Will you come home?"

"Not for a while. I go to Milwaukee, Langmore, Lamont, Atlanta, Colorado Springs and back to Langmore."

"Not Lamont. Le Mans. In France."

"That's a big one on the European circuit. Is this part of the Ferrari deal?" (Foster and Andretti had been invited to Italy by carmaker Ezio Ferrari.)

"No, I haven't heard any more from Ferrari. I'll be driving a Ford XI for the Ford people."

Friendly Banker Could Use Loot

"Isn't Le Mans where you drive through villages and cow pastures?"

"Yes, some times. But that won't bother me as much as the traffic. Some of the cars will be little jobs, good for about 80. The XI is supposed to do 215. There should be traffic."

"Do you feel any different about the 500 or is it just another race?"

"You tell yourself it's just another race, but you know it isn't. This one opens the door. This is the Kentucky Derby of auto racing."

"Should we bet the bundle on you? Take as long as you want to answer. It's your life and our money."

"The odds aren't good—33-to-one. You have to go into the race with confidence. You have to think you can win. I do. But there's too many good drivers and fast cars to say 'I will win'. That wouldn't be realistic."

"What's the winner's share?"

"I'm not sure. I believe it's $180,000."

"You could hardly use that much."

Lansdowne's Late Kick Pays Off in Team Title

Lansdowne showed its best at the last, and that was good enough to bring the school the coveted team championship in the annual junior high track and field championships.

Dominating Friday's track finals with six firsts and five seconds in the 19 events run off at Macdonald Park, Lansdowne overcame an 18-point deficit to nip Central for the team championship.

Lansdowne picked up a total of 74 points Friday to top the schools' parade with 112 points. Central (101), Gordon Head (76), Oak Bay (63), Colquitz (60), S. J. Willis (35) and Esquimalt (35) followed in that order.

DOUBLE WINNERS

Athletes, under regulations instigated to encourage participation, were allowed to enter only two events and a relay

Only two — Markem Johnson of Oak Bay and Central's Gloria Young — managed to score double victories. Johnson won the junior boys' 220 and broad jump while Miss Young won the senior girls' 100 and broad jump.

Friday's results:

TICKET PACE AVERAGE FOR 'INDY' TELECAST

The sponsoring Vancouver Island Track Racing Association says there are still "a number of good seats" available for Monday's closed-circuit television showing of the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race classic.

VITRA president Hugh Burkmar said Friday the advance ticket sales indicate a turnout "every bit as good as last year." Just over 900 Victorians watched the race at the 1,455-seat Royal Theatre last year.

Major interest, of course, will be focused on Victoria driver Billy Foster, making his second straight appearance in the Indy grind.

Can Bat-Swinger Ever Be Trusted?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A Vancouver baseball player, Santiago Rosario, was suspended today from professional baseball for one full year as a result of a fight in which he struck another player with a bat.

Phil Piton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, not only refused to decrease the penalty imposed on Rosario by the Pacific Coast League, but made the suspension tougher.

He indicated Rosario, a native of Puerto Rico, might be permanently suspended if the injured player does not recover.

The league suspended Rosario for the rest of the season. Rosario appealed only to have Piton suspend him until next May 11. Piton said the incident "is bound to create a real doubt as to whether he can ever again be trusted on the field of play."

Seattle catcher Merritt Ranew suffered scalp wounds and a concussion when he was hit on the head by a bat during the brawl in Seattle May 11. He is still in a hospital and Piton said his doctor reported "he is definitely out of baseball through 1966 and possibly for all time."

WARNING ISSUED

Piton said Ranew's condition led him to impose the tougher suspension on Rosario.

He said his office would consider next May whether Rosario could be reinstated. He said this decision would be based on whether Ranew had recovered fully by then.

Piton coupled his action with a warning to all players "that the deliberate employment of a baseball bat . . . may lead in any given case to permanent expulsion from the game." He ordered all clubs to assemble their players to notify them of his warning.

REPORTED under consideration for job as general manager of Seattle Totems of Western Hockey League is Colin Kilburn, former player and coach with Victoria Cougars. Totems are seeking replacement for Keith Allen, who resigned after 10 years with Seattle.

VANCOUVER CLUB STAYS . . . . . . IN WESTERN LEAGUE

Canucks Will Go 'First Class'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cyrus McLean said Friday night that his organization — though rejected in a bid for a National Hockey League franchise — intends to carry on the Vancouver Canucks in minor hockey until the team is reconsidered for NHL entry.

"We have the firm intention and certainly the financial means to carry on as a minor league operation (in the Western League) until, if and when Vancouver is reconsidered as an NHL area.

"We, of course, hope to have a new coliseum by the 1967-68 season. With a new building, we are convinced that an interim or otherwise minor league hockey operation here is a sound proposition."

The Vancouver businessman said he was issuing the statement "in response to press criticism which contains an improper interpretation of our recent actions and misrepresentation concerning our future operation."

Contrary to some reports, the Canucks will operate in the WHL next year, he said. It will be "a first-class operation" — not an operation cut back because of financial losses.

"We are not perturbed over the loss ($90,000) incurred last season nor concerned over the likelihood of another such loss in 1966-67," said McLean.

TWO ACES FOR GOLFER

Stottlemyre Drops Sagging White Sox

By Associated Press

The sagging Chicago White Sox sank past the surging Yankees into eighth place in the American League Friday night as Mel Stottlemyre pitched a three-hitter for a 4-1 New York triumph.

It was the 10th loss in the last 12 games for Chicago, and they made it easy for New York with three errors helping the Yankees to two unearned runs.

That was all Stottlemyre needed as he set the Sox down on just three singles and retired 19 in a row at one stretch. He lost his shutout with two out in the ninth when Roy White dropped a fly ball for a two-base error.

Stottlemyre also struck out eight and walked only two to lower his earned run average to 1.91 and give him a 5-3 record for the season.

TWINS SLUMP MORE

The victory was the seventh in the last eight games for New York and gave manager Ralph Houk a 13-4 record in the three weeks since he took over from Johnny Keane. Stottlemyre has turned in four of the victories

Elsewhere in the league Friday night, Cleveland Indians edged slumping Minnesota Twins 5-4, Baltimore Orioles downed Kansas City Athletics 4-2. Washington Senators nipped Boston Red Sox 5-4 and California Angels shaded Detroit Tigers 3-2.

SADECKI SHELLED

In the National League, Roy Sadecki, San Francisco's 25-year-old left-hander, was battered from the mound for the fourth straight time since coming to the Giants as Philadelphia Phillies crushed the Giants 9-2 Friday night.

In four starts with the Giants he has lasted only 13 1-3 innings while allowing 11 runs for an astronomical 7.62 earned run average.

Take away his first start in which New York Mets scored three unearned runs off him in five innings, and his ERA is an even more astronomical 12.38.

His latest effort ended before he could get anyone out in the fifth inning. The Phillies already had scored three runs in the first four innings, and when John Callison and Dick Groat singled in the fifth, manager Herman Franks decided Sadecki needed help.

PERRY ON SHELF

The Giants may need some, too. They've won only five of their last 13 games, and they must do without their No. 2 pitcher, Gaylord Perry, for the next 15 days. Perry, suffering from a sore ankle, was placed on the disabled list Friday night.

In other National League games, Los Angeles Dodgers blanked New York 4-0, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped Houston Astros 6 - 0, Cincinnati Reds edged St. Louis Cardinals 6-5 and Atlanta Braves defeated Chicago Cubs 5-3.

McCOVEY, HALLER HOMER

Claude Osteen broke a personal four-game losing streak, gaining his first victory in a month with a three-hitter over the Mets. Los Angeles scored all four of its runs in the sixth inning with the help of errors by Bill Murphy, Ken Boyer and Dick Stuart.

Minors Getting $28,500 Plum

MONTREAL (CP) — Minor hockey clubs across Canada are $28,500 richer today, thanks to grants approved by the executive committee of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Fred Page of Vancouver, new president of the association, said Friday night the group had approved grants of $3,000 to each of its nine established branches for minor hockey and one of $1,500 to its newest member—Newfoundland.

Canada's 10th province became a full member at the week-long annual meeting of the association, which wound up Friday.

Page replaces Lionel Fleury of Quebec City. Art Potter of Edmonton was named chairman of the CAHA's rules committee.

Earl Dawson of Rivers, Man., former chairman of the rules group, was elected second vice-president to replace Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, Ont., who was named first vice-president, the position previously held by Page.

Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., secretary-manager, said the executive had decided Drumheller Miners, this year's Allan Cup champions, will defend the Ahearne Trophy in Sweden Dec. 26 to Jan. 2, 1967. In addition, the Miners will play 11-games in Europe after the Ahearne Trophy tournament.

REGALS NEXT IN LINE

Juckes said if Drumheller is unable to go to Sweden or a second European tour is available, Guelph Regals will fill in.

At the request of the North American Ice Hockey Federation, Juckes said the CAHA is nominating Page for the position of second vice-president of the IIHF.

Page and Juckes said they will be interested to see how the National Hockey League will approach a proposed meeting with the CAHA to negotiate differences in the pro-amateur agreement.

"Nov. 27, 1964 was the last date we negotiated with the NHL," Juckes said. "If they still feel there is no common grounds why would they ask us to negotiate?"

HAPPY WITH KINGSTON

Executive members said they were happy with the selection of Kingston, Ont., as the site for their 1967 centennial project—a Canadian midget hockey championship to be held Easter holiday week.

Page said legislation raising the age limts by five months in all categories below the junior level was a major step forward.

Also the new rule to have two goalies dressed and three available for all inter-branch playoffs will help streamline playoff competition.

He said the executive was pleased with the rise in revenue for both the Allan and Memorial Cup playoffs this year.

CHIEFS MEET CARDS AGAIN HERE MONDAY

Cardinals nipped the Chiefs 29-28 before 1,800 fans last Monday as the roller-skating sport returned to Victoria.

Harlean Khien of the woman's squad scored nine points for the Cards and Jim Cook added eight as the Northwesterners collected their sixth victory in 10 clashes with the Chiefs.

Softballers Move In Yo-Yo Fashion

Up one day, down the next. . .

That's the yo-yo action taken by Senior Men's Softball League teams these days as only one game separates the six entries.

Friday, it was McLarens' turn to move up for a share of the lead while Luckies went down. That movement was stirred by McLarens' come-from-behind 5-4 victory over Luckies at Heywood Park.

A three-run uprising in the eighth inning, highlighted by pitcher Denis Beaulac's bases-loaded double, did the trick for McLarens.

Beaulac was the winning pitcher, Brian Pearce the loser. Each allowed eight hits.

Fitness Grants Total Climbs Up to Million

OTTAWA (CP) — More than $500,000 in fitness and amateur sport grants were announced Friday by the health department.

Sports governing bodies will get $261,646 for the training of coaches, leaders and athletes and to promote their sports. Another $115,000 is for the holding of national championships, $44,000 is for Canadian participation in international events and $111,000 will help sports groups cover administrative expenses.

The health department has paid out $1,000,000 under the Fitness and Amateur Sport Act so far this year.

Biggest of the grants—$47,289—goes to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for its leadership training institutes to be held in Montreal this August.

Pott Warming Up

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Johnny Pott continued his torrid pace in the $57,000 Oklahoma City open golf tournament Friday by shooting a three-under-par 69 in the second round.

Pott, whose 64 Thursday set a course record at the 7,173-yard Quail Creek Golf and Country Club course, held a four-stroke lead over Tony Lema and Tom Weiskopf.

Pott had a 11-under 133 for 36 holes.

Lema, who suffered a two-stroke penalty on the 15th hole, finished with a 68 for 137. Weiskopf had a 69 for his 137.

From there it dropped to 139 for Texan Terry Dill. Holding fourth place at 140 were Don Massingale, Butch Baird and Bruce Devlin.

Tourney to Name New Golf Queen

The field numbers 68, but defending champion Joan Lawson of Uplands will be among the missing when the annual Victoria city women's golf championship tournament is played next week.

A European holiday for Mrs. Lawson creates the abdication situation and throws the favorite's role at former champion Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale.

Percival Draws Support As Charges Investigated

TORONTO (CP) — Lloyd Percival of Toronto denied Friday that he ever gave his athletes stimulants and sedatives and a growing list of supporters backed him up.

The charge against Percival, one of Canada's best-known sports trainers, were levelled by Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., considered among the world's top half-milers, in a letter to the Central Ontario Track and Field Association March 31.

The letter says Percival gave his Don Mills Track Club athletes stimulants and sedatives and that the athletes had taken them.

ALL 'NONSENSE'

Dr. John Palmer, physician for Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference, termed the whole affair "nonsense."

"Both dexedrine and tuinal are commonly used by prescription and this whole affair is a lot of nonsense," Dr. Palmer said in an interview Friday night.

Two of Percival's associates, Dr. Hudson Kerr and George Arnold, both denied knowledge of drugs being given the athletes

Dr. Kerr, the Don Mills club's physician, said that to his knowledge Percival had never prescribed drugs for his athletes.

Arnold, who coaches the club with Percival, said he had no knowledge of athletes ever being told to take drugs.

NOT ADVOCATED

Jim Mossman, coach of Canada's Olympic paddlers in 1960 and 1964, said:

"Lloyd not only helped us 100 per cent on latest training methods that put us ahead of our field. . . . He never at any time advocated stimulants."

Meanwhile, Fred Foot, chairman of the Central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union and Crothers's coach, Union and Crothers' coach, written the letter and that an investigation is under way into the charges.

The case has been forwarded to Pete Beach of Toronto, national track and field chairman of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Percival said he is being guided by legal counsel.

"I'm not interested in anything but complete clearance of these charges concerning me, my associates in the Don Mills Track Club and my athletes of the Don Mills Track Club, and I intend to pursue this to the ultimate."

Graham Wave of Excitement Fades Quickly—Minister

A Victoria clergyman today expressed doubt as to the spiritual effectiveness of evangelistic campaigns of the type conducted by Billy Graham.

"They create a lot of excitement at the time," said Rev. Albert King of Metropolitan United Church, "but I have the impression they are quickly forgotten."

"I personally don't care for this kind of approach, or the appeals for money that go with them."

Mr. King said the work of the church is a slow progressive development which goes on day by day and year by year.

"The individual witnesses to the faith that is in him at his church, at his work and at play. If he is brought into the church by evangelists, it is all to the good But in many cases I feel he is caught up in a wave of excitement which soon passes."

Several Times readers, referring to an article in last Saturday's church page, have pointed out that Dr. Graham has gone to England at the invitation of English people.

BY INVITATION

"He never goes anywhere unless he is invited, said a former U.K. resident, "and there is no doubt his crusade is badly needed in London to combat a general decline in moral standards."

In a circular letter to Victoria residents, Dr. Graham said his London crusade will be held in the Earls Court arena, seating 27,000 people, from June 1 to July 2.

He quoted a British friend as saying:

"Unless Britain has a spiritual awakening and a moral rearmament within the next two or three years, we may be finished.

"We feel that the forthcoming crusade may be the last hope."

No Spooks . . . Just Joy and Love

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

"Spiritualism is not a belief in spooks — it is a religion of light, joy and love," says Rev. Elsie Tingley, minister of Victoria's Open Door Spiritualist Church, 1600 Cook Street.

"I can't understand why certain periodicals depict us as something sinister and frightening. Surely there is nothing sinister in trying to contact loved ones."

Mrs. Tingley — an attractive grey-haired woman — admits there is a certain amount of hocus-pocus in the kind of spiritualism that is practised in darkened rooms.

But she insists that the majority of spiritualist churches, the world over, are engaged in a sincere pursuit of Truth.

"With all the marvels of science around us, why is it so hard to believe that persons who have left their bodies, and passed into a new dimension, should be able to communicate with the people they love?

"We have proved that they do, but so many cling to the idea there is nothing beyond the grave. Yet it's no more remarkable than sending out radio signals which can be picked up a million miles away."

At her Sunday meetings in the Open Door Spiritualist Church, Mrs. Tingley conducts a simple service that is little different from those in gospel halls.

Much the same hymns are sung, there are Bible readings, prayers and a sermon. The difference is that, after the service, Mrs. Tingley gives clairvoyant descriptions of dead persons to members of the congregation.

In most cases the descriptions seem to be recognized, viz.

"I'm coming to that lady over there — did you know someone named Tom? He wore a green eye-shade. He was stockily built and he worked with his hands."

"Yes, that was my uncle—he was a printer."

"Well, he wants me to tell you . . . ."

A personal message followed and it seemed to be understood by the lady whose uncle was a printer.

Mrs. Tingley gives the sermon and plays an electric organ in her little church. She also sings solo and duets with musical members of the congregation.

But the hall is fully lit and there is nothing spooky about it.

"We spiritualists have no fear of death," says Mrs. Tingley. "We greet it with a smile, for we know it is simply a passing from one dimension to another.

"For many it is like shedding a heavy overcoat and floating into happier sphere of existence."

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

MUSIC OF BACH will be directed in St. Matthias Anglican Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. by Eric V. Edwards, organist and choirmaster. This Whit-Sunday eve, the choir will present Cantata 6: Bide With Us. Soloists will be Kathleen Gresham, soprano; James Mainguy, tenor; Arthur Irwin, bass, and Jennifer Allen, violin. Bach's Organ Concerto No. 1 will also be rendered.

First Communion for 46 Marks Pentecost Service

Churches throughout Greater Victoria will join with Christians throughout the world in observing Sunday as Pentecost, or Whit-Sunday.

The Pentecost message, issued by presidents of the World Council of Churches, will be read in many languages in the council's 214 Protestant, Anglican, Eastern Orthodox and Old Catholic member churches in 90 countries and territories.

Pentecost Sunday comes 50 days after Easter.

In Saint Luke's Church, Cedar Hill, the feast of Pentecost will be observed with Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and a full choral eucharist at 11 a.m.

Forty-six young people who were confirmed by Archbishop Harold Sexton two weeks ago will receive their first communion.

The boy's choir and the senior choir, directed by Herman Bergink, will sing All People At This Hour and Come Holy Ghost.

* * *

At the evening service in First Baptist Church, the Religion-Labor Council of Victoria will observe Industrial Thanksgiving Sunday and, at the close, there will be a panel discussion on Religion and Social Change.

Rev. John Watson will speak on Thy Will Be Done.

* * *

Dawn Benoit, soprano, will sing The Publican in Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning.

"This song is usually sung by hefty bass baritones," she said, "but I'm going to have a go at it!"

At the evening worship, Rev. William Hincks, a missionary from Zambia, Africa, will be the guest speaker. The Sanctuary Choir will sing O Brother Man, accompanied by William McNeil.

* * *

"There is no such thing as a solitary Christian is the New Testament," writes Dean Brian Whitlow. "Our Lord called into being a company of believers. They were described as disciples, saints, followers of The Way, Christians.

"To belong to this group was to enter into the redeemed and redeeeming society . . . It came into existence at Pentecost and has been in the world ever since, with people of every generation entering into it."

* * *

Rev. Frank L. Pickering, for 5 years a missionary in Japan, will be guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service Sunday in Central Baptist Church.

At the 7:30 service, Rev. Robert Holmes will have as his topic The Final Victory, concluding the series on The Resurrection from 1 Corinthians chapter 15.

* * *

After the evening service at St. John's Sunday, Miss Eva Hasell will speak and show colored slides of her work with the Canadian Sunday School Caravan Mission.

During the summer months the Caravan Mission travels the northern dioceses of Canada holds vacation schools and makes contact with children in remote places.

Miss Hasell was awarded the MBE for her outstanding contribution in founding and running this mission over the years since 1920 when it first operated in the Diocese of Qu'Appelle, Sask.

* * *

In Emmanuel Baptist Church, Rev. N. K. Archer will speak on Watching and Waiting at the 11 a.m. service. This is Part 5 of the Abraham series.

In the evening, he continues the series on The Early Church and speaks on Election Day.

The choir will sing Dear Lord and Father of Mankind, and Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace.

* * *

Continuing his sermons on How Can I Find God, Rev. H. R. Whitmore will ask Sunday, are we hiding from Him in our service to man?

The anthem at Garden City United Church will be Son of My Soul and at the 11:15 a.m. service at Wilkinson Road United, Just as I Am.

* * *

In Oak Bay United Church Sunday at 9:30 and 11 a.m., H. H. Wren will sing I Heard A Voice and the choir, directed by Robert Kroeger, will present the anthem Saviour, Thy Children Keep.

Rev. Alexander Calder will speak on Turn of the Tide.

* * *

Ven. A. E. Hendy, rector of St. Dunstan's, Gordon Head, and sometime rector of St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, will speak at the 10 a.m. service in the Church of the Holy Saviour, Victoria West.

This service marks the church's 75th anniversary. There will be a festal evensong at 7 p.m.

* * *

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the morning worship in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday morning and at a shortened service following the evening worship.

Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, will speak on A Question About God.

* * *

How To Stop Grovelling and Start Repenting will be the subject of Pastor Lloyd Mackey in Parkdale Free Church.

"Many people spend much time feeling sorry for themselves when they face defeat," says Mr. Mackey. "They should realize that God will forgive the sins which contribute to their defeat."

At the evening service Rev. Albert Dalman, dean of students at Vancouver Bible Institute, will be the guest speaker.

* * *

The second of two sermons of The Fruit of the Spirit, Patience, Kindness, Goodness — will be given by Rev. Robert Morris in First United Church Sunday at 9:30 and 11 a.m.

John Smith will sing He Shall Give His Angels Charge and the choir, directed by W. H. Gregory, will present the anthem Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled.

At 7 p.m. in the chapel Rev. Marvin Fowler will speak on Crisis of Life.

LEAVING for Toronto Monday, Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, will attend the 92nd general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The assembly is made up of ministers and laymen from 49 presbyteries in Canada. Dr. McLean was moderator of the assembly in 1954.

Church Merger Approved

MILVERTON, Ont. (CP) — The Canada Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church has approved — by a narrow margin—a plan for union with the United Church of Canada.

The conference today announced results of Thursday's balloting on two questions concerned with union.

On the first, the conference voted by a 56-per-cent majority to join the United Church if the EUB church in the United States joins the Methodist Church there.

On the second question, a 52-per-cent majority favored union here even if there is no union in the U.S.

Nun Ends 8 Years Solitude

LONDON (AP)—An Anglican nun who shut herself off from the world in a cell Friday saw other people for the first time in eight years.

The nun, whose name and age remain secret, has not even seen herslf in a mirror since 1958, when her bishop gave her permission to live all her life in solitary confinement.

Only two Church of England nuns in Britain are under such vows of solitude. There are believed to be no women recluses in the Roman Catholic Church in Britain.

The other one, in her sixties, has been 30 years in her cell, also at Walsingham Abbey.

Witness Supervisor Speaker at Seminar

Montague Mais, district supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses in British Columbia, will be the key speaker at the Duncan training seminar of the Witnesses scheduled for June 3 to 5.

Mr. Mais has been acting as district supervisor for the Witnesses, replacing Reginald Arnett who held the position for the past two years. Mr. Arnett has received an appointment at the Witness Canadian headquarters in Toronto.

For the past five years, Mr. Mais has been training local congregation minister in the capacity of circuit supervisor. He has been a full time minister of the Witnesses for 23 years and is a graduate of the Watch Tower Bible College of Gilead in New York.

Mr. Mais will deliver the feature discourse at the convention of the Witnesses to be held in Cowichan Senior Secondary School at Duncan, Sunday afternoon, June 5. His talk is entitled, Does God Have Influence in This Twentieth Century?

"Witnesses are currently intensifying their campaign to build faith in the Bible as a guide to modern living by offering — free home Bible study courses to all interested persons," says Pastor Clifford Roberts.

A topic of discussion at the three-day assembly will be the forthcoming Witness convention at Empire Stadium, Vancouver, this August. More than 35,000 persons from the Pacific northwest are expected.

Dedicated To Serving The Blind

J. M. Le Marquand, director of services of the Christian Record Braille Foundation for Canada spoke on the foundation in Seventh-day Adventist Church today.

Founded in 1899 it is incorporated under the Provincial Societies Act in B.C. It began its free services to blind people at the turn of the century from a hand-wringer press, turning out only 75 copies of braille journal per month.

Today the organization produces some 13,000,000 pages of braille material annually.

Distribution of English language periodicals and books is made without charge to blind people in 83 countries, but principally to persons in Canada and the U.S.

The foundation, which in its early years drew direct financial support from the Seventh-day Adventis Church, is independant and self-supporting from public contributions and is dedicated to serving blind people without regard to race, color or creed.

It produces more free services for blind people than any non-government-supported organization in the world. It sends its material throughout the North American Continent and 83 countries of the world.

Uvic to Honor 260 Graduates

The Gordon Head campus of the University of Victoria, where flowerbeds and new construction compete for the visitor's attention, will be the setting for the university's Spring Convocation Monday.

This year 260 students will receive the bachelor's degree. Degrees to be conferred are: bachelor of arts, 119; bachelor of science, 57; bachelor of education (secondary), 28; bachelor of education (elementary), 56. Last year, 214 degrees were conferred.

Members of the graduating class, and their families and friends, will hear a report by the university chancellor, Judge J. B. Clearihue. Chancellor Clearihue, whose term of office expires this fall, has been associated with the institution since 1903, when he and seven other students took part in the first classes of Victoria College.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws (LL.D.) will be conferred upon chancellor Clearihue by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, "visitor" of the University of Victoria. (The "visitorship" is a ceremonal office held by a distinguished friend and patron of the university.)

Chancellor Clearihue will then confer the same degree on three other well-known British Columbians — Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Dr. Phyllis G. Ross, retiring chancellor of the University of British Columbia, and Leon J. Ladner, a noted Vancouver lawyer and industrialist. Premier Bennett will give the convocation address.

Ceremonies begin at 2:30 p.m. when the academic procession enters the university auditorium. The procession will include the candidates for graduation, wearing own and mortar board, and members of the faculty in academic regalia. Candidates will be introduced in turn by the dean of arts and science, Dr. A. J. Wood, or the dean of education, Dr. F. T. Tyler. As each candidate' name is read out, he or she will be formally admitted to convocation by the chancellor. The candidate will then be congratulated by the president, receive a diploma, and leave the platform.

At the close of the ceremonies, graduates and their guests are invited to a reception in the lecture wing of the Elliott Science Building. A second reception will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Georgian Lounge of the Empress Hotel. The graduation ball follows at 9 p.m. in the Empress Ballroom.

On Sunday, May 29, at 3 p.m., the graduating class will attend the annual baccalaureate service in Christ Church Cathedral. The service will be conducted by Dean Brian Whitlow, of the Cathedral.

Empty Bomb Threat Empties High School

About 500 students at Mount Douglas High School hustled from the building Friday afternoon after an unidentified caller claimed a bomb was going to explode in one of the lockers.

"There's a bomb going off in my locker in five minutes and don't think I'm fooling," the male caller said.

The call to the school came shortly before 3 o'clock and both police and firemen hurried to the scene.

Det. Sgt. Robin Stewart said the search of the 500 school lockers would continue during the night.

Regina Man Wins Grant

The University of Victoria has awarded a $1,200 fellowship to a Regina man for graduate study at Uvic in marine biology.

The award was made to R. M. Dunnill, a graduate with first class honors of the University of Saskatchewan. The award is made under a program to attract promising graduate students to Uvic's new school of graduate studies.

WITHIN FEW THOUSAND YEARS

Senile Human Beings Will Occupy World

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical research is promoting a time when "the surface of the earth will be completely occupied by human beings" and "more and more of them will be senile," a famous British physician warned Thursday.

"I find this a terrifying prospect, and I am glad that I shall be dead and will have ceased to make my contributions to this catastrophe long before it happens," Sir George W. Pickering of Oxford University declared.

"We may ask ourselves whether it is not time to halt the program of research and development which will make such a thing possible," he told a symposium at Columbia University on research and the future of medicine.

"The hint of such an idea by a man who has spent the bulk of his adult life in research of this kind savors of intellectual treason," Pickering said.

"Nevertheless, we must face up to the probable consequences of our ideas and ideals, and be prepared to revise them.

"This is something which thoughtful folk should be expected to do, and have not done. It is time we did."

Pickering, 61, described strides in research to overcome degenerative diseases, and ultimately to make possible the trans-planting or borrowing of human organs for the old. But the human brain probably can never be transplanted, he said.

"The goal of medicine . . . is that of indefinite life, perhaps in the end with somebody else's heart or liver, somebody else's arteries, but not with somebody else's brain.

"It has been estimated that if we go on reproducing ourselves and prolonging the expectation of life at about the same rate as now, the surface of the earth will be completly occupied by human beings within a few thousand years. More and more of them will be senile."

Nun Fined $15 For Striking Boy

TORONTO (CP)—A woman described as a lay nun of the Old Catholic Church was fined $15 Friday on a charge of assaulting an altar boy by slapping his face April 28.

Mary Elizabeth Wilson, 24, also known as Sister Mary of St. Joseph's Metropolitan Mission, pleaded not guilty.

James Billy Etwell, 13, told Magistrate Donald Graham he was in the mission's recreation room when Sister Mary accused him of drinking sacramental wine.

CONTROVERSIAL radio priest of the 1930s; Ontario-born Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, 74, will retire in June as pastor of church near Detroit due to failing health. His political and economic views stirred debate before war.

Regina Hints Car Insurance Hike Coming

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's automobile accident insurance fund has just been through the most disastrous year in its history and a general increase in premiums may be necessary, welfare minister Dave Boldt said today.

Mr. Boldt, minister in charge of the Saskatchewan government insurance office which administers the fund, made the statement in a press release.

"If the present upward spiral in accidents is not reversed immediately some general increase in premiums may be necessary."

He said accident claims increased less than 10 per cent during the fiscal year ended March 31 compared with the 1964-65 fiscal year.

But the cost of public liability during the year was $2,600,000 compared with $1,500,000 during the 1964-65 fiscal year, an increase of 67 per cent, Mr Boldt said.

CLAIMS INCREASE

During the 1965-66 fiscal year property damage claims increased 22 per cent and fire and theft claims 24 per cent.

Saskatchewan's compulsory automobile insurance, purchased with licence plates, became effective in 1946 with the passing of the automobile accident insurance act. Since then the fund has received $120,000,000, Mr. Boldt said.

Claims have been paid amounting to $98,000,000 with paid for driver education and training.

Inside City Hall

GROUNDED ALDERMAN UP IN AIR

By JIM HUME

The past week will not go down in the annals of city hall as one of the best for travellers.

Ald. Michael Griffin started the foul-up trend when he decided to take a quick trip to Gold River the province's famous instant town.

Planning carefully Ald. Griffin measured his time wisely and well. Arriving at Strathcona Lodge late in the evening and up bright and early the following morning, he arrived at the private logging road gate barring entrance to the last 13 miles of road around 6:30 a.m.

Hume

A Pinkerton guard, pleasantly smiling even at that hour of the morning, asked for the signed permit required before entrance could be granted.

Ald. Griffin, having been assured that he would have no trouble getting through, lacked the necessary document.

Permit Refused

Suffice to say that the doughty alderman drove back to Campbell River to obtain the vital papers. A permit was refused. He could go in after six at night and before three in the morning, and he could come out during the same hours.

With no hotel, no restaurant and no other vital essentials, Gold River does not yet beckon the overnight traveller.

Undeterred Ald. Griffin caught the afternoon bus—no permit required but you have to sign your life away when you board lest disaster overtake the unwary — whipped back along the gravel road he now knew by heart and finally arrived on the west coast. But only for little more than an hour. After that it was the same bus back to Campbell River and home.

Having started a week like that the worthy alderman finished in a blaze of snarled glory.

Luck Ran Out

The flight from Victoria to Vancouver was uneventful. But that was the end of the Griffin traveller's luck.

At Vancouver engine trouble held up the flight one hour. At Kamloops a high crosswind prevented the aircraft destined for the Cariboo from taking off for several hours. And on the way home (the convention went off without a hitch) the word debacle is the only one fitting the situation.

Ald. Griffin is now the only man in civic history to travel 600 miles to catch an aircraft to fly he and his wife to the coast.

Here's the way it went.

Anxious to get home last Sunday, Ald. Griffin asked if there were any flights from Prince George a little more than three hours drive away. Told there was a flight with two seats if he could get to PG in two hours the alderman thought discretion the better part of valor.

Any other flights? Yes, indeed, Flight 19 would get him to Kamloops and thence to the coast but it was some hours away.

Off to Kamloops

Rather than twiddle thumbs in Williams Lake, the Griffins decided to ride with friends as far as Kamloops and catch the flight there.

But when traveller Griffin goes sour, he goes all the way.

"I," he announced at the airport," am Mike Griffin. "I have two reservations on Flight 19."

"Good," said the airport official. "Flight 19 was withdrawn from service two years ago so you're a little late. Try Kelowna, there's a flight out of there later on today."

Fortunately the friends with the car were travelling back to the Kootenays, so down the Okanagan trooped the Griffins.

They made Kelowna airport with a good two hours to spare. And here was a flight to Vancouver. But alas it was not only booked solid but had a waiting list.

Tide of Disaster

"Any chance?" asked Ald. Griffin, knowing full well that there's no sense in bucking a tide of disaster in full flood.

"Stay overnight," said the airport official brightly. "I can get you on a tomorrow's flight or, if you're really anxious to be on your way, you could squeeze on the earlier flight from Castlegar."

In for a penny, in for a pound. Back to the car and away over Anarchist Mountain and through the Kettle Valley to Trail-Castlegar.

Said Ald. Griffin Tuesday, still not quite sure whether he was home: "I felt sure at Castlegar they would tell us we could catch a flight at Cranbrook and that from there we'd be sent to Calgary. But I knew we'd be fine if we got to Calgary. From there we could have flown to Toronto and caught one of the big jets home. Might have been quicker at that."

RCMP PROSECUTORS UNDER FIRE

Lawyer Closed Shop Wide Open

VANCOUVER (CP) — City lawyer J. Raymond MacLeod says many courts in British Columbia have been improperly run for years.

Mr. MacLeod said Friday he believes the courts are improperly constituted whenever an RCMP officer appears as the prosecutor, which he said happens in many cases.

"I believe thousands of dollars in fines should be returned."

"And what do you do about people sent to jail, who have completed their sentences?" he asked.

The lawyer said he bases his argument on a B.C. statute which says that only barristers and solicitors are allowed to practise law in the province, subject to certain exceptions, which do not apply to many magistrate's courts.

Mr. MacLeod said he wrote to the attorney - general's department, and received a reply stating the department does not agree with him on this question. The reply quoted the Criminal Code of Canda, the B.C. Summary Convictions Act and a privy council decision as authorities.

Mr. MacLeod, however, said that the authorities quoted do not apply, because of a third act, known as the B.C. Legal Professions Act, which says that, except in rare cases, only members of the Law Society of B.C. may engage in the practice of law.

He said also that witnesses would tend to be nervous when a policeman acts as a prosecutor.

And He Grew Up To Become a Sea Captain

LAD'S DREAMS KINDLED BY SMALL BOATS

This is the sixth of a series of articles on local marine personalities.

By TERRY IZZARD
Times Marine Reporter

As a young boy, Gordon Irving sat for hours watching the deep-sea freighters entering and leaving Juan de Fuca Strait.

Often his mother would scold him for daydreaming on the porch of their Harling Point home, just below Gonzales Hill.

What she couldn't have known at the time, and what young Gordon himself didn't know, was that one day his dreams would come true.

Only nine years old, he was particularly fascinated by the comings and goings of a small harbor craft which scurried out to meet each incoming ship.

●

In fair weather or foul, the tiny boat would bob out into the strait to pull alongside the giants of the sea.

Although Gordon was too young to realize, the boat was putting a pilot aboard to steer the merchantman through the many tricky channels of Vancouver Island's east coast.

Today, less than 30 years later, Gordon Irving, now a fully-fledged captain, knows all there is to know about the pilot boat.

At 35, Capt. B. Gordon Irving is the youngest superintendent of pilots in B.C.'s history.

Quiet and unassuming, he reached his present position last October after persuading a department of transport interviewing board he was best man for the job.

And that was no easy task to accomplish.

Among those applying for the seat were a number of veteran skippers with many years more experience than the young Victorian.

But get the job he did, and judging by the respect with which he is treated by the men under him, he was a good choice.

IRVING
. . . a long way

The balding father of three has come a long way since leaving Oak Bay High School at the age of 15.

It was just 20 years ago that he applied for and got his first job as deckhand with the old Victoria Tug Co. Ltd.

The hands which now wield a ballpoint pen eight hours a day were then used to shovel coal into the furnace of the tugboat Swell.

In the next four years the $72.50-a-week deckhand rose to be mate in the tugboat Spray before joining B.C. Forest Products as tug boat operator and boom man.

Then at 20 he decided to pop the question to the girl next door, pretty Shirley Boyer.

Since the age of 12 the two had been neighbors and it came as no surprise to the parents when the two announced their wedding plans.

After two years of marriage, Gordon moved to Dockyard in the spring of '53 as a civilian seaman aboard the auxiliary naval vessel, Dundurn.

During the next 11 years, up to his resignation from Dockyard in 1964, he studied for, and passed all the exams, including his coastal master's ticket.

●

With this feather in his cap he joined the department of transport as mate aboard the cutter Ready.

In the next 18 months, up to his present appointment, he sailed aboard a number of the department's vessels, including the ice breaker Camsell.

If certain people were surprised at such a young captain being appointed to the important position of superintendent of pilots, no one was more surprised than Capt. Irving himself.

Yet he seems to have settled into the top seat remarkably well in such a short time.

CHAIRMAN of new Science Council of Canada will be Dr. O. M. Solandt, 56, chancellor of the University of Toronto, whose appointment was announced today in Ottawa. Appointment of the 25 members and four associate members of the council will be made in the near future.

PROMISES PASS $500,000,000 MARK

Election Campaign Proving Expensive for Lesage

By RUSS PEDEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Keeping promises made in the heat of an election campaign can be an expensive proposition.

In the campaign for Quebec's June 5 provincial election, Premier Jean Lesage has announced plans for projects expected to cost more than $500,000,000.

One of the major items—widen and resurface the 700-mile highway circling the Gaspe Peninsula, a job expected to cost $200,000,000.

Another $200,000,000 project is the integrated steel mill the Liberals are committed to build at Becancour, on the south side of the St. Lawrence River opposite Trois-Rivieres.

A third item is the $100,000,000 light water atomic energy electricity generator, described as Canada's first, on which Hydro-Quebec is to start work at Becancour this fall.

HARNESS FIVE RIVERS?

The government also, was studying the possibility of the hydro-electric development of five rivers flowing from northwestern Quebec into James Bay. Surveys were in progress, but no cost estimates were given.

Between them, Mr. Lesage and Health Minister Eric Kierans have announced the construction of nine hospitals and have stated the estimated cost of four of them—one for Chandler at $5,300,000; a 175-bed institution for Val d'Or, $540,000; a 250-bed psychiatric centre for Val d'Or, $3,500,000; and a 70-bed institution for Baie Comeau, $1,615,000.

Hospitals have also been announced for St. Hyacinthe, St. Johns, Thetford Mines, Shawinigan and Ste. Anne des Monts.

The $32,000,000 cost of improvements to Highway 8 in the Hull region would be shared with the federal government. There also were plans to build an $8,000,000 education centre in Hull and to span the Ottawa River with two interprovincial bridges. The cost of the bridges was not disclosed.

The promises of the other parties in the campaign are more difficult to evaluate.

ALL IS CALM

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Six days after they set out for England in a 15-foot rowboat, two English journalists were out of touch with the rest of the world.

The U.S. Coast Guard reported Friday it had not been in touch with the Puffin and its two occupants since the cutter Conifer spotted it Wednesday about 10½ miles off shore. David Johnstone, 34, and John Hoare, 29, were waiting for favorable winds.

Nearly-Free Trade Area Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Jay, British board of trade president, said this week Commonwealth and European countries should work toward a nearly-free trade area.

This long-range development would stimulate trade in all directions and benefit all countries involved, including the emerging Commonwealth nations.

Mr. Jay told the Canadian Club of Ottawa the Commonwealth and Europe are becoming separate free trade areas.

"It would be best for all countries, developed or less-developed, if both the Commonwealth and Europe were to become a more nearly, and not less nearly, complete free trade area in the future.

"There is no reason in the long run why the Commonwealth and Western — and indeed Eastern — Europe should not both be steered in this direction, and the benefits spread to all other countries by multilateral tariff concessions if we all show sufficient wisdom and patience."

Second Bloc Proposed For Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—John W. Holmes, director-general of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, suggested Thursday that Canada should participate in two Commonwealths—the British and the French-speaking community of Africa and Asia.

Canada could thus try to prevent a gulf growing between the English and French-speaking nations of Africa, Mr. Holmes told the Senate external relations committee.

Senate Speaker Sydney J. Smith said Canada could make an important contribution by sending French-speaking engineers to Africa but Quebec itself is short of them.

Mr. Holmes said the future of the British Commonwealth was never more precarious. But it was also never more useful than now because it was no longer running away from major world problems.

Hazard 'Low' But 50 Fires Still Burning

British Columbia completes its first month of forest fire season with hopes current low to moderate hazards will continue over the next few days.

The B.C. Forest service Friday reported there are still 50 fires burning in the woods after 41 were put out during the past week at a cost of $4,300.

Since May 1 there have been 448 fires reported and $58,900 spent in suppression compared with 341 fires and an expenditure of $21,200 for the corresponding period last year.

The hazard is listed as "low" in Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island.

J. F. Kennedy Thesis Nuclear Disarmament On NBC White Paper

Excerpts from an unpublished thesis on nuclear disarmament by John F. Kennedy, titled Let's Try an Experiment in Peace, will be read by Henry Fonda on The Early Years, first program in the two-part NBC White Paper, The Age of Kennedy, to be telecast Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

"The Early Years" traces the life and the political development of Kennedy from 1939, when he was a junior at Harvard College, to his victory in the 1960 Democratic National Convention.

Al Wasserman, producer of The Age of Kennedy learned about the early unpublished thesis by Kennedy from a reference to it in a magazine article. He mentioned the thesis to Senator Robert F. Kennedy, who arranged to make a copy available from the family files at the National Archives in Washington.

"Lets Try an Experiment in Peace" was written shortly after John F. Kennedy was discharged from the Navy in 1945. Still acutely aware of the horrors of war, he foresaw the development of inter-continental ballistic missiles and cautiously explored the concept of world-wide disarmament.

Referring to the German V-2 missiles, for example, he wrote, "It is not an exaggeration to expect that these missiles will be developed to a point where theoretically any spot on the globe can send to any community in the world, with pinpoint accuracy, a silent but frightful message of death and destruction."

Describing the research involved inproducing "The Age of Kennedy," Wasserman states, "There is abundant material about Kennedy as President, but we had to dig for material pertaining to his early life and career. The digging was made much easier by the assistance we received from Kennedy's friends and relatives, from the staff of the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston and from his former classmates and early political supporters, to name just a few."

Headquarters

As an example of such co-operation, Wasserman and his associate producer, Gabriel Bayz, were allowed to set up an office in temporary headquarters of the John F. Kennedy Library at 122 Bowdoin Street, Boston. The office was in the apartment Kennedy occupied as a representative from the Massachusetts 11th Congressional District. "It's right across from the State House and next door to the Hotel Bellevue where Kennedy's grandfather, 'Honey Fitz,' lived," notes Bayz.

Night People

Five persons whose nocturnal jobs bring them in constant touch with the public will talk about "The Night World and the Night People" on "Open End" Sunday, at 12 a.m. on Channel 5.

The guests are:

— Louis Jennings, soda jerk at H. Hicks & Sons, which is open until 2 a.m.

The guests are individualists with an outlook that is somewhat different from the average person who works during the day, socializes in the evening and sleeps at night.

All of them have interesting stories about the kind of work they do, and the people they meet.

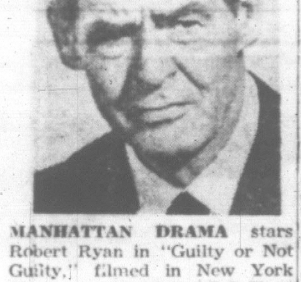
Though they disagree about some things, they agree about the advantages of their peculiar hours and way of life.

Winter Exercise

In March of this year troops of the NATO ACE (Allied Command Europe) Mobile Force, including the First Battalion of the Royal Highland Regiment of Canada, were delivered in full battle order some 200 miles inside the Arctic Circle.

The Canadians (The Black Watch), together with member troop contingents from the U.S., Britain, Norway and Italy, joined forces near the town of Olsbord, Norway, to take part in a special exercise called Winter Express.

A CBC film crew was on hand to film the action during the exercise, which dealt with warfare conditions in the Arctic. Results of the filming will be seen in Diary of a Canadian Corporal, on CBC-TV's 20-20 series, Sunday at 4:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.



MANHATTAN DRAMA stars Robert Ryan in "Guilty or Not Guilty," filmed in New York City for colorcast on "Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theatre" Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 2, 6. Ryan stars as a district attorney who attempts to restrain a vigilante committee from taking over from police in Manhattan.

At press time, NBC (Channel 5) announced plans to telecast a 90-minute filmed summary of U.S. Senate hearings every Surday until Congress adjourns. Sceneduled for Sunday: the use of the hallucinogenic drug LSD. Senator Robert F. Kennedy heads the investigating group. Time of broadcast to be announced.

Bible as Guide

How archaeologists have during the last century used the Bible as a guide to discovering new knowledge about the past is illustrated vividly in "Of Picks, Shovels and Words," a "Southern Baptist Hour" color presentation on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. on Channel 5.

The program was filmed on location at ancient sites in Iran, Iraq, Egypt, Jordan and Israel. It shows, among other things, the long-lost city of King Solomon and the caves in Qumran, Jordan, where in 1947 the Dead Sea Scrolls were found. Ted Perry wrote the script, and Whitfield Connor is the narrator.

"The real importance of Biblical archaeology is that men have been able to clarify and illuminate those parts of the Bible which were once strange, unfamiliar and even obscure," the narrator says. ". . . After the many violent battles between religion and science, the air is still saturated with suspicion—in both camps. How strange, then that in one area the two sides should meet so agreeably, even to the point of creating a term like Biblical archaeology—a religious science, or, if you prefer, a science of religion.

Choir of Washington

A dazzling and colorful spectacle comes your way in the one-hour special broadcast, honoring the 900th anniversary observance of Westminster Abbey on "Whitsunday" Sunday, at 10 a.m. in color on Channel 12. (Pre-empts Lamp Unto My Feet and Look Up and Live for one time only.)

The presentation chronicles the activities of the men's and boys' choir of Washington Cathedral, through the eyes of one boy. Starting with a typical day at the Washington Cathedral, you continue through preparations for the trip, sightseeing in London and all the other events leading up to and including the choir's performance at the Westminster Abbey celebration.

David Bruce, U.S. ambassador to Great Britain, and Sir Eric Abbott, Dean of Westminster Abbey will also partake in the stunning ceremony. Lady Churchill will appear in the service at the Abbey and then later she will meet the choir of thirty boys and twenty men at a private reception.

THE AVENGERS

U.K. Series Welcomed By U.S. Web

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

WASHINGTON — No one has yet figured out just what kind of vengeance The Avengers are seeking. There is even some confusion about the reasons why John Steed and Mrs. Emma Peel seek out and destroy badmen every week.

This lack of motivation bothers few viewers, for the simple reason is that The Avengers are long on cool, usually in violent conflict, and one could hardly ask for a more droll pair than Patrick McNee and Diana Rigg.

The series was a British success long before ABC decided it was needed to patch up a Monday night schedule. The original female lead was Honor Blackman, but she moved on to play Pussy Galore in Goldfinger.

No matter. The Avengers without Honor is just about the best TV show to come out of England since Secret Agent.

NO COMPARISON

Not that those two shows can be compared. Patrick McGoohan is an upright, moral servant of some unknown agency of her majesty's government. He doesn't play around and each week the fate of the western world depends on his skill.

"The Avengers," as far as I can tell, work only for themselves. None of that grubby spy work for the elegantly attired John Steed. No lofty speeches, either, from the suggestively costumed Mrs. Peel.

Miss Rigg just happens to have left the Royal Shakespeare company for a fling at karate and television. She is one of the most exciting females in the world and when she visited here before the program came to the United States, she had not the slightest illusion about "The Avengers."

Some asked what such a splendidly trained actress was doing in such a program. Diane simply pointed at McNee and said: "I am a foil for John Steed."

Did Miss Rigg understand why such elegant, educated, rich persons as Steed and Mrs. Peel chose to fight crime? Said Diane: "It's fun."

EMPTY PLOTS

British TV reviewers had complained often that the plots of "The Avengers" frequently make no sense. Did Diane understand the stories. Quite primly, she responded: "Yes, quite often."

McNee, a versatile fellow who was producer of the TV documentary series on Sir Winston Churchill, had a long fling at Hollywood before settling down to "The Avengers."

"I loved California," he said, "but Walt Disney kept casting me as a villain.'

In London (before "The Avengers"), things were different. McNee was usually cast as the heel who loses the girl.

There's little hope for many shows of the ABC-TV "Second Season." Certain to disappear are "Blue Light,' "The Double Life of Henry Phyffe" and "The Baron. Nor is "The Avengers in the fall schedule but it will probably be held as the network's first standby, the show that will be used to replace the first failure.

It is certain to be back, at some time.

Scherchen to Lead CBC Orchestra For Art of Fugue

Point and Counterpoint, Festival's third concert of its current end-of-season music series, presents the renowned conductor Hermann Scherchen rehearsing the Festival orchestra in his own orchestration of Bach's Art of the Fugue, Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

Point and Counterpoint, the Festival program, marks Scherchen's first appearance on CBC television, and his second visit to Canada. He first performed in this country in the spring of 1965, when CBC Radio invited him to conduct the Toronto Symphony in the Canadian premiere of Mahler's Symphony No. 7.

Scherchen, now 75, confined his performances to the concert stages and recording studios of Europe until, two years ago, he paid his first visit to North America. He made his American debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra in a concert in New York.

His fame preceded him by many years, mainly by way of the more than 90 LP recordings he has made — many of them in the fields of bargoque and modern music. He is noted interpreter of Mahler.

In the New York Herald-Tribune at the time of his New York debut, Scherchen was termed "the best-known unknown conductor in modern times." The newspaper writer also declared, "Hermann Scherchen is reminiscent of Furtwaengler: the hectic jabbing with the baton, the furious flailing with the left fist, the movements in and out of a crouch. . . ."

At a press conference in Toronto the following year, when he came to conduct the Mahler work on CBC Radio, he was quoted as declaring "Art is dead . . . It is possible that music will be forgotten for a long time. Things in this age of rapid increase of knowledge are progressing too quickly . . . Orchestra musicians have lost the sense of quality. . . ."

German-Born

The German-born Scherchen lives in Switzerland in a home overlooking Lake Lugano. He has five children by his present marriage, ranging in age from six to 14. A son by a previous marriage teaches at Cambridge University in England.

The conductor's recent visit to North America was for a concert tour of the eastern United States. He also conducted the Toronto Symphony at Massey Hall, taped the CBC-TV Festival program Point and Counterpoint, and the CBC Radio performance of his new orchestration of Art of the Fugue.

AGENT IN DISGUISE is Maxwell Smart (Don Adams) who impersonates a German surgeon to rescue The Chief (Ed Platt), from a KAOS ice box in "Satan Place" on "Get Smart," tonight at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Videotaped in CBC-TV's Toronto studios, Point and Counterpoint gives music lovers a rare opportunity to see Hermann Scherchen in closeup as he rehearses the Festival orchestra in his orchestration of the Bach work.

Composed in 1749, near the end of the composer's life, Art of the Fugue consists of 21 fugues and canons. Scherchen's version is the most recent of the many orchestra versions which have been made in the past century. The original work, probably meant for harpsichord or organ, appeared in manuscript only during Back's lifetime and the original copper plates were sold for scrap a few years after the great composer's death.

Two Funny Films

Two half-hour situation-comedy film shows starring comedian Roy Kinnear will be presented Monday, and June 6, at 10 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

The films are from the popular BBC comedy series A World of His Own which was seen on the CBC network last summer.

Kinnear, one of the original team of That Was the Week That Was, appears as Stanley, an ordinary man leading an ordinary life, with an ordinary job — except for one thing — he is a day dreamer whose astonishing adventures of the mind rival those of James Thurber's Walter Mitty. A slow mover in real life, Stanley conquers space, time and probability in his dream life.

In the first episode for instance, Stanley had day-dreamed off to a fairground side show where his presentation of 'the sensuous harem dancers of the mysterious East' lands him into two problems; the girls refuse to remove their woolen underwear and he has rival attraction in topless bathing suits.

Something Different

Song stylist Lena Horne will present an hour-long special program, entitled "Lena," on "Something Different," Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

The program is a repeat of the second Lena Horne special televised in January of this year. The sophisticated entertainer is featured by herself . . . with little scenery and no gimmicks or guests.

Part one of the three part special features "Movie Songs," and includes "Hello, Young Lovers," "Somewhere," "Wives and Lovers," "Softly As I Leave You" and "I've Found a New Baby."

Part Two, entitled "Lena in Session" features "A Fine Romance," "Days of Wine and Roses," "It's Not Unusual," "It Happened in Monterey," "Never On Sunday," "Some Day My Prince Will Come," "Wouldn't It Be Luverly" and "Singing in the Rain."

MAD GEOLOGIST Burgess Meredith plants a delicate mercury switch on captured Robert Conrad in order to set off an earthquake that will devastate the state of Wyoming on The Wild West, Friday at 7:30 p.m., on Channels 7 and 12.

If launch preparations for the Gemini 9 space flight are as scheduled, the networks plan to go on the air between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. pre-empting regular Wednesday programming, to colorcast the pre-launch operations and lift-off of the Atlas-boosted target vehicle.

Progress reports will be presented until splash-down.

Finally, Lena sings a "Cities Medley," that includes songs about America, Britain, France and Italy. Among them are "Lonely Town," "London Pride," "Autumn in New York," "Long Way From St. Louis," "I Love Paris," "Summertime in Venice" and ending with "I Left My Heart in San Francisco."

Musical background is provided by the Jack Parnell Orchestra conducted by Lennie Hayton. Due to special Memorial Day telecasts, "Something Different" will be presented at 9:00 p.m. on this date only.

N.W. Traveler

Next stop on KOMO-TV's travel-adventure show. is Malaya, which will be highlighted Wednesday, at 7 p.m., over Channel 4, in color.

"Eight Years in Malaya" was filmed by Ian M. Forrest of Vancouver, B.C., who was assigned for eight years in the country by his insurance company. Forrest will be an in-studio guest of host George Carlson.

Exploration

"Exploration Northwest" takes viewers on an exciting, action-packed river run Monday at 7 p.m., over Channel 4, when they join skin diving enthusiasts for a turbulent ride down five miles of white water.

In "River Run," divers Lynn Emrich and Ed Thomas are joined by host of the adventure series, Don McCune, who is also an expert scuba diver. The divers use rubber suits and inner tubes as floats for their river run on the middle fork of the Snoqualmie River.

Sound-On-Film cameras record the run, as the divers spin through "souse-holes" and over "haystacks." Three cameramen film the run, using all available vantage points.

Also included in the story is film of a run by the northwest divers several years ago, when 22 divers went over dangerous water fall accidentally on the Skykomish River.

Q. We will make an automobile trip with friends, who will share our car expenses. Do we need a special endorsement to cover the passenger hazard?

A. Since your friends might be considered paying passengers you would be well advised to ask your insurance company for an endorsement SEF R-6 to cover the "carrying of passengers during a trip."

Classes Stressed by Goodwill

Visitors touring the new Goodwill Enterprises Rehabilitation Centre at its dedication Tuesday will see, besides the workrooms, storage rooms, salesrooms and offices, a four-room furnished apartment.

The living room, bedroom, kitchen and bathroom are unoccupied and seem unrelated to the busy and functional core of the centre.

But those four rooms, incongruous as they may at first seem, are an index to the future of a most unusual and forward-looking social agency.

FIND THEM JOBS

"When they gain some domestic training, we should be able to find them jobs in hotels, motels and institutions," said Mr. Rea.

"And that is the emphasis here. To get as many handicapped people as we can employed in private industry."

The half-million dollar repair and training plant is well equipped to do this.

When all equipment is installed and facilities are being used at full capacity, about 25 trades will be represented.

Phases of the 41,000 square-foot Goodwill operation that will catch Tuesday's visitors' eyes will be, among others, the complex and ingenious handling of used clothing and bedding.

LEAVE PICKUPS

Material is stacked, sorted on a conveyor belt apparatus, and sent to the wash or a huge $15,000 dry-cleaning machine.

When cleaned and pressed the garments are hung on a network of overhead trolleys and shunted to repair, pricing and packing departments.

At the other end of the building is a loading dock. Trucks will take the cleaned, repaired clothes to Goodwill Enterprises retail outlets in the city and in Duncan.

"We eventually hope to serve the whole island," said Mr. Rea.

Other departments conducted along the same lines are furniture and electrical appliance workshops.

An especially intriguing project will be housed in a soundproof room off the centre's main suite of offices. The National Cash Register Company is lending the centre a $7,000 accounting machine for the training of potential office workers.

RETAIL OUTLET

Other features of the airy building are a cafeteria, a sales room, to be used to supplement the main retail outlet on Yates Street, and doctor's and personnel offices.

The rehabilitation centre is

BLAKENEY
. . . his dream

the fruition of a dream of Fred Blakeney, founder of Goodwill in Victoria, and men who followed him.

The Rotary Club of Victoria over the past years has raised almost $100,000 for the building.

"We have 90 working here now," said Mr. Rea. "We could, in time and with more material employ twice as many.

"There should be neither a dearth of material nor of handicapped people to restore it to good condition," said Mr. Rea.

He explained that the centre's workers were handicapped in any one of a number of ways.

"They could be physically disabled, mentally retarded or recovering from mental illness, or what you could call socially handicapped—that is handicapped by an alcohol problem, or any other kind of social disability.

"That includes parolées, and older workers."

Kids Design Stamp

LONDON (AP)—Postmaster-General Anthony Wedgwood Benn Thursday invited school children to design Britain's first Christmas postage stamps. An announcement said all entries will have to be accompanied by a certificate from a teacher saying the child is 15 or younger and was not aided. First prize will be $60.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

If nights are now warmer in your area, put out the salvia, dwarf dahlias and zinnias.

Water and feed peonies as buds develop. If planted where they receive light shade in afternoon, blooms last longer.

Sow succession crops of lettuce, radish and onions. A pinch of seed sown thinly in a 12-inch row every 10 days is a good plan for a small family.

Inept Cost Estimates Scored by Institute

OTTAWA (CP) — The tendency of some architects to think of their work as the creation of individual masterpieces and the inability of others to furnish reasonably-correct cost estimates are criticized in a special report prepared for the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada.

A special committee headed by Herbert Moody of Winnipeg was commissioned by the institute in 1964 to study "those areas in the building industry where the architect should be, and is not now, effective."

The report, compiled from interviews with architects and contractors in major cities in all provinces, was released this week. It is to be studied by the institute's annual meeting in Jasper, Alta., next week.

Architects interviewed said design and estimating costs are areas where the profession was most in need of improvement.

"Remarks, from the mildly deprecatory to the openly scathing, were made on the tendency of some practitioners to think of their work as the creation of individual masterpieces of architectural aesthetic," said the report.

"Not only the public but architects and contractors are critical of the architect whose desire is to erect a monument to himself, and architectural schools were chided for the tendency to engender, however unintentionally, the ego-centric designer."

Architects who have been unable to furnish reasonably-correct information on estimated costs "have led to frustration and irritation on the part of the client, and embarrassment and loss of reputation for the architect," says the report.

Some contractors called this the main weakness in architects' education. One architect said it was the cause of much ill-feeling for the profession by the general public.

The report made a number of recommendations to the institute including a code of professional conduct, greater uniformity in provincial architects acts, a program of continuing education for architects, and said standards of performance and a fee structure should be uniform across Canada.

Safe Shower Requires Mat

CHICAGO (NFS) — A really good mat for tub or shower is a "must" safety-first feature for the bath.

New from Republic Molding Corporation, Chicago, is a mat which combines prime safety features with the quality of easy care.

Of a new non-slip, all-vinyl Polly Flex, Republic's mat has twice the grip and life of rubber mats, according to W. R. McDonald, vice-president and director of marketing for the firm.

GARDENERS NEGLECT IMPORTANT WORK

Crucial Season for Pruning

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

This week I am back on pruning again — the pruning of the winter and spring flowering heathers, the spring flowering shrubs, including the cultivated brooms, forsythias, spiraeas, weigelas, and tamarix.

As I travel around the city, driving the different streets and visiting numerous gardens, I find that very few gardeners have made any attempt to do this important work.

During fall and winter there will be hundreds of calls to know if this, that, and the other shrub can be pruned, and the answer will always be, "No." For the simple reason that fall and winter are not the seasons for pruning flowering shrubs. Only fruit trees are pruned while dormant and bush roses are pruned in late March.

TERMINATION

All the spring flowering shrubs, those that have their flowering season before the end of June, make their flowers on growths that are produced in the period between the termination of one flowering period and the end of the growing season. Any pruning done during winter, or just one month after flowering, will remove the wood that is needed for next year's flowers.

Once the flowers fade, the new growths are rapidly produced, and to make these growths strong and capable of bearing quantities of flowers, the old flowered wood has to be removed as soon as it has served its purpose.

Forsythias and spiraeas have the oldest wood removed right at ground level, keeping the new growths made last year, and all the new canes coming from soil level this year.

SHEAR BROOMS

Brooms must be sheared as soon as the last blossoms fade, using the hedge shears to cut back the growths just beyond the lowest flowers on each stem. This keeps the plants small and bushy and prevents the occasional severely cold winds of winter from splitting the main stems, as so often happens on old plants that have been allowed to grow tall and leggy.

Prunus triloba, the Chinese double flowered almond, needs severe pruning to keep it strong, removing all parts that have borne flowers. It seems drastic because the flowers are carried almost the entire length of the stems but after a few weeks the strong new growths that replace the old growths that have been removed will make the shrubs look handsome for the summer.

Arthur Mayse

We have in this university town a group of students who share a most perplexing problem, and must soon arrive at their individual decisions.

These young men and women have completed two years as elementary school teachers in training. If they so wish, they may go out to teaching posts in September on temporary certificates.

Should they or shouldn't they? Would it be better to slug out two more study-years on campus, or complete the courses required for a bachelor of education degree piecemeal at summer school?

Or should they split the difference: return for the third on-campus year which will earn them their permanent certificates?

Some have already settled the matter by accepting positions on Vancouver Island and the mainland. This fall, in fact, one little elementary school will be staffed completely by the three young people who visited it for a practice teaching bout in April.

But many others, including a brisk teacher-to-be who sometimes lends me socks from his supply, are still uncommitted.

I have been lucky enough to meet and talk with quite a few of these. Without exception, they fairly blazed with enthusiasm for the work they had chosen — a fact, incidentally, which speaks well for the quality of their instructors.

They want to get out and teach. But . . . should they?

Between them and an elementary teacher's degree stretches a lengthy grind during which, as the education faculty program now stands, they won't set foot in a classroom.

Their practice teaching is behind them. From here on out, their courses are academic entirely. (As a layman, I hesitate to criticize what our senior educators in their wisdom have decreed. Still, the system does seem most curiously lopsided:)

They are mostly in their early twenties, and yearning for independence. The summer job rarely pays them enough to meet all the expenses of a university year. They're weary of taking out loans or accepting financial help from their parents.

Some are engaged or, in the terminology of their generation, engaged to be engaged. They want to get married.

After all, they can score the credits they need for permanent certificates and eventual degrees in the summer

But . . .

That's doing it the long way. Once out of the classroom, the return to the role of student is going to call for a considerable wrenching of gears. Better, maybe, to put off teaching until the permanent ticket at least is in the bag.

"Am I ready to take full responsibility for a class? Am I mature enough . . . have I learned enough?"

So there you have it, an argument that concerns parents as well as those who will pilot their children through the important early years of schooling in which lifetime attitudes and outlooks may be shaped.

I'm not equipped to answer the questions raised, and will not try.

However, I hope that at least one teacher experienced in the profession will spare time to advise his or her juniors in their dilemma, and I'll make space here for letters on this subject.

Ask The Times

Q. How substantial an increment to China's food supply is Canada's export of wheat to her? R. D.

A. The wheat Canada sells to China is about two per cent of China's food supply, says B.C. Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark.

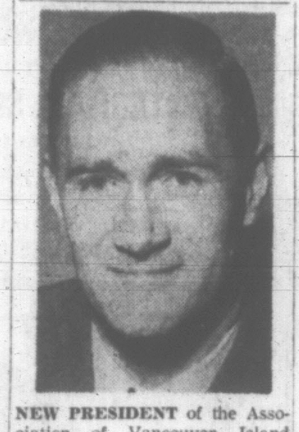
Q. What were the last plays Shakespeare wrote? D.A.

A. An approximate and not unanimously agreed upon chronology of the plays lists the last plays written as The Winter's Tale (1610-11), The Tempest (1612), and Henry VIII (1612-13). Shakespeare died in 1616.

2,000 Give Loud Sendoff To Yachtsmen

By TERRY IZZARD

Victoria's Inner Harbor wore festival dress Friday night as a record number of Swiftsure entries lined up in preparation for today's big event.



NEW PRESIDENT of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities is Oak Bay councillor J. D. Watts. He was elected at the Association's annual meeting in Campbell River Friday. He succeeds Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni. Elected vice-president was Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni. (See other stories on Page 28.)

There was a holiday mood in the air.

And although it was an occasion to relax, one could sense the tension building up as skippers weighed up the opposition.

In all 87 vessels, Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca race entries, ranging from the smaller Cal 20s to the naval yacht Oriole, were on display.

But it was the sort of harmless impression given by a shark before it charges.

The talk was of sailing — of course.

ACTION COUNTS

They know from the past that the Swiftsure can't be won with words.

When the starter's pistol sends them scurrying into the strait, it is skill and luck that matters.

As last minute adjustments were made by anxious competitors, Mr. Swiftsure himself, Humphrey Golby, read out the full list of entries.

Many of the names were there last year. Others were being read out for the first time.

All were wondering which of the 87 would be read out in similar fashion when the winners are announced Sunday night.

HEEL KICKING

While the racing sloops were centre of attraction, a square dancing team on the lawns of the Empress Hotel attracted a fair following.

To cap it all off, Rainbow Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps staged a colorful and moving sunset ceremony on the lawns of the Legislative Building.

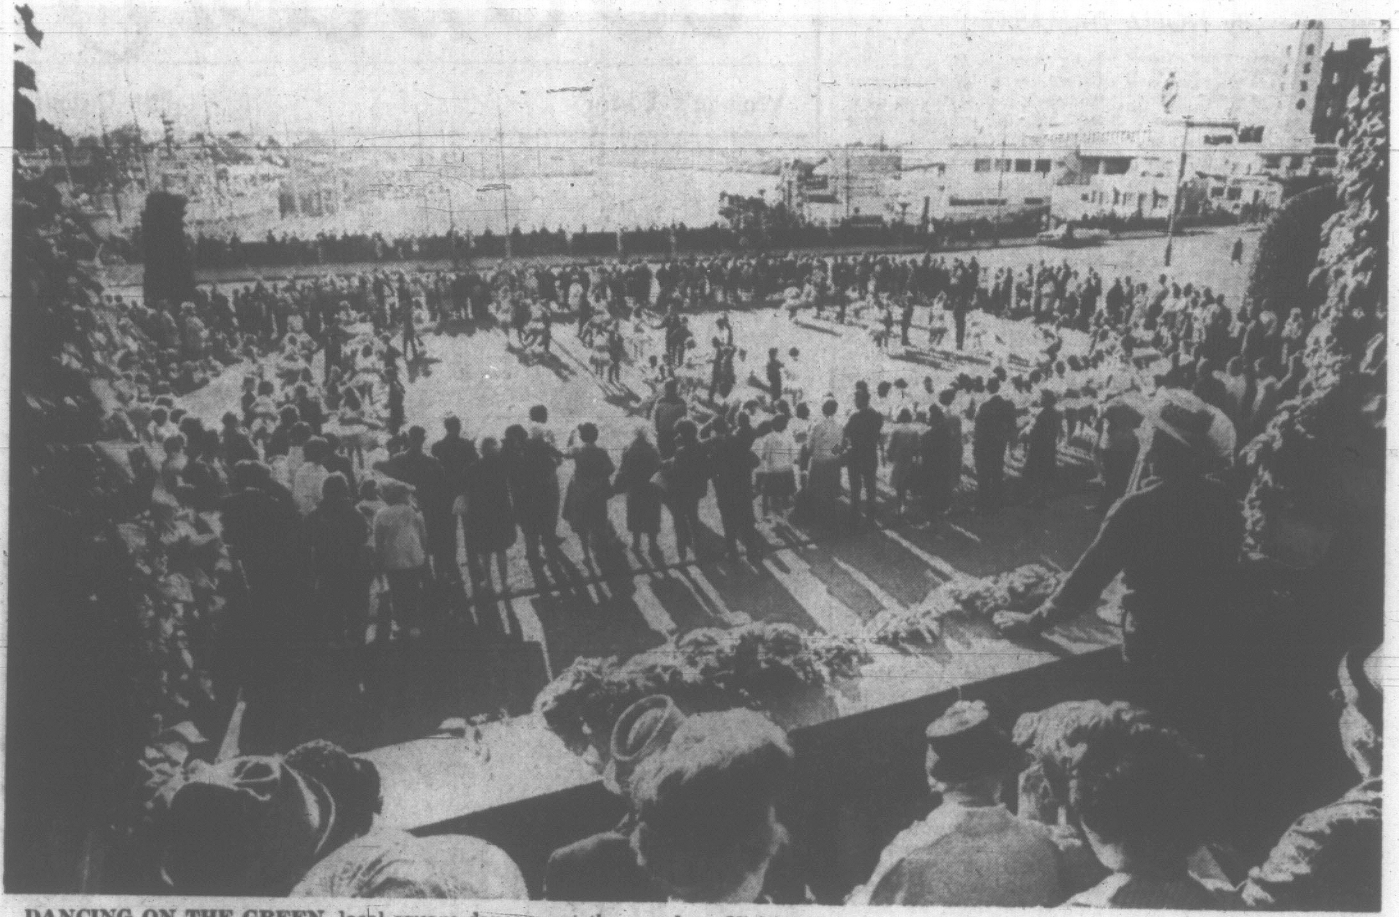
Another Swiftsure Eve was over. But the real thrills were yet to come.



DANCING ON THE GREEN, local square dancers set the mood for pre-race festivities Friday night at Empress Hotel as Swiftsure entries flew a shower of pennants off the Causeway. Sendoff wound up with sunset ceremony on lawn of Legislative Buildings. Visiting between crews of yachts from distant ports continued until small hours. About 2,000 persons jammed Causeway to view the fun. Traffic on Government was closed off and parking at a premium.

Rites Monday For Former B.C. Deputy

He was deputy minister from 1951 until his retirement in 1954. For many years he was provincial horticulturist.

Born in Halifax, he had lived in Victoria for the last 54 years. He was a veteran of the First World War.

Funeral services will be held in Sands Mortuary Chapel of Chimes Monday at 3 p.m., Rev. R. J. Morris officiating. Cremation will follow.

Janitors Meet On Dispute

Maintenance employees of the Greater Victoria School Board will meet next Friday night to discuss their contract dispute with the board.

The employees accepted a conciliation board report recommending a nine-year wage formula remain in effect, but the school board turned it down.

Under the formula, wages of janitors are tied to rates paid to construction laborers in Victoria, less five per cent.

GOOD SHEPHERD BUGGED

Mother Cecilia Tape Offered City Radio

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A woman known as Alexian admitted in Victoria county court Friday she taped conversations between herself and Mother Cecilia Mary and offered the tape to a local radio station.

She said the conversations were taped without the knowledge of Mother Cecilia, head of the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter.

They were said to have taken place on an inter-com system linking the shelter at Mill Bay with the Marion Lodge Kennels on the same property.

Contents of the recordings were not divulged in court.

On the witness stand, Alexian stated that, after recording the conversations, she offered about 6,000 feet of tape to a Victoria radio station.

(This would represent about four hours of conversation if recorded at 3¾ revolutions per minute.)

"Yes," Alexian replied.

MOTHER CECILIA
. . . on the record

Eviction Judgment Reserved

Judge W. Kirke-Smith reserved judgment on Mother Cecilia's application to have Alexian evicted from her property.

Alexian — a youthful-looking woman — took the witness stand as Bernadine Renault, her given name. She wore a brown robe and hood with a rope round her waist and sandals on her bare feet. She said she was a sister of the Universal Temple of Revala and had been educated in Europe.

In a soft, French-accented voice, Alexian said she came to Victoria last year because she thought Mother Cecilia was being "persecuted" by the Roman Catholic church.

She said Mother Cecilia made her a director of the Good Shepherd shelter and gave her a home "in perpetuity."

For that reason she refused to obey an eviction order.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Taylor, Alexian said she found it "impossible" to work with Mother Cecilia. She added that, in her opinion, the shelter was inefficiently operated.

When Alexian first came to Victoria, she said, Mother Cecilia had been ordered by the Roman Catholic church to give up her work for abandoned animals.

She refused and joined another order.

Agreement Made on Profits

Mother Cecilia agreed that she (Alexian) should establish a dog kennels on the property and that any profits from it should go to the Good Shepherd shelter.

Mr. Taylor questioned Alexian concerning certain sums of money she received from Mother Cecilia. Alexian said they were needed to operate the kennels.

Asked why she had broken off relations with Mother Cecilia, Alexian replied:

"I was appalled by conditions in the shelter."

She further alleged that a member of Mother Cecilia's staff got drunk and rode a wild horse on the premises, but did not amplify the statement.

"Are you a doctor?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"Yes," Alexian answered.

Oak Bay Urges Ban On Dogs

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was the lone dissenter at the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities meeting in Campbell River to an Oak Bay resolution calling for legislation to enable municipalities to ban dogs from certain public beaches and parks.

"Are we trying to get rid of animals?" he asked.

"First its horses, now it's dogs. Pretty soon there won't be any animals behind the crumpet curtain."

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox expressed surprise at the opposition from Ald. Edgelow.

"For a man who has followed horses as much as he has I'm surprised that he doesn't know what a dog can do—on or off the leash," he said.

Driver Suffers Head Injuries

Police said the small foreign car struck a utility pole before running into a front yard. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Boy Scouts Aided

Group committee for the Christ Church Cathedral Boy Scouts will hold a coffee party Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Memorial Hall, 912 Vancouver.

Proceeds will go to the B.C.-Yukon Provincial Jamboree, to be held in Penticton July 9 to 16.

4 Months Jail For Phone Theft

A Calgary man was jailed for four months Friday for stealing a radio-telephone he had rented from B.C. Telephone.

Ean Keats was also ordered to pay $140 in outstanding rent.

He had pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing and admitted selling his car with the radio-telephone in Calgary.

AND DARNED FEW DANCERS

All Chiefs, No Braves Attend Unveiling of New Totem Pole

Chiefs from the south and Chiefs from as far north as the Alaska border were present for the totem-warming.

Among them was Chief We Shakes of Port Simpson, Chief Andy Frank from Comox, Chief Albany of the Esquimalt Songhees, Chief Robert Clifton (who said he did a sundance Friday to end the bad weather), Chief William Scow of Gilford Island and Chief John Hunt.

Chief Hunt from Kelsey Bay, the 84-year-old father of the totem's carver, Henry Hunt, was drummer and singer in today's ceremonial Kwakiutl song and dance.

The three-part dance, a condensed version of festivities that, said Kwakiutli Chief William Scow, "used to last all winter," was performed by Indians from Victoria, Courtenay and Comox.

The dance organizer, Mrs. Henry Hunt, said she had to do her "darndest" to find Kwakiutl people who knew the old ways well enough to take part in today's ceremonies.

OLD DAYS RECALLED

Chief Scow, also chairman of the Indian Provincial Commission, said "in the early days a whole congregation of tribes would get together and pass the winter in ceremonial dances around a totem pole."

He said one of the dances, the "Cannibal" dance, a tame version of which was performed today, involved the gouging out of part of an honored Chief's arm.

Mr. Hunt's 13-foot pole, one of 20 to be made by B.C. carvers for the Haida route, will remain at the corner of Belleville and Government Sts.

It represents a grizzly bear with a frog on its head, "and other designs appropriate to the area," said Chief Scow. He added that a scholar of totems could often "read" the history of an area simply by its totem poles.

MEDICAL DIRECTOR QUITS FOR NEW JOB

Dr. Ralph Adams, medical director of St. Joseph's Hospital for the past four years, has resigned.

MAN FINED $78.50 FOR 30 TICKETS

A Saanich man was fined a total of $78.50 in court today for failing to pay 30 parking tickets.

Cornelius Hughes, 716 Daffodil, pleaded guilty. The tickets were for meter violations between Feb. 12 and April 30.

On six occasions Mr. Hughes received two tickets the same day and on one occasion, three tickets in one day.

He was fined $2.50 for each offence and $3.50 court costs.

Two men who caused $40 damage when they fought in a washroom at Holyrood House, 2315 McBride, early today were each fined $25 and ordered to split the cost of repairs.

Gerald Johnson, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, was fined $350 and barred from driving for six months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was arrested by police Friday night after his car was seen speeding on Cadboro Bay Road. The auto mounted the sidewalk and narrowly missed hitting a parked car, officers said.

Brian Navratil of 2220 Arbutus was sentenced to eight months in jail in a court appearance Friday. He pleaded guilty last week to stealing a car and dangerous driving.

The youth, who led police on a high-speed chase through city streets May 20, was also given a four-month indefinite term on the theft charge and a one-month concurrent sentence for dangerous driving.

STUDENTS' CARS DEFENDED

'Time the Schools Got With It'

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

A spot check of students driving away from the school Friday afternoon showed they have closely followed what their elders have been saying recently about the need to provide parking for student cars at new schools.

And the students, who are quick to point out they pay taxes like any other motorist, claim they are entitled to needed facilities.

"As long as they are given a licence, they must be considered like any other motorist," he said.

He said there may be some question as to whether it is desirable for some high students to have cars but added, "This is not the issue."

And W. Robert Hunter, principal of the school being built on Reynolds Road, said "Cars are a fact of school life today."

It was protests from residents in the area around his school that started the fuss about school parking.

Saanich council wants the Greater Victoria school board to provide parking for student cars. But the school board said the provincial government would not share the cost of buying land for this purpose.

ANNOY RESIDENTS

If nothing is done, the students will park on the streets around the school to the annoyance of the residents.

Mr. Hunter said the trend nowadays is to greater community use of school facilities. He said such use requires that public parking be available close by.

Mr. Hunter said, "If we are serious about getting greater use out of school facilities then parking must be provided. And students could then use this parking during the day."

School Trustee Peter Bunn has suggested a way around the problem. He said municipal councils should be asked to buy land for off-street parking as soon as a new school site is chosen.

"This would be far-sighted planning," he said.

He pointed out school boards are not allowed to do this because it is illegal for them to buy land for parking purposes.

Sherry Messerschmitt, 775 Middleton, said she has to be at school by 8 a.m. for band practice and, if she didn't go by car, she would have to get up at 6 a.m. to be at school on time.

Paul Blakey, 884 Runnymede, lives many miles away from school and says a car is "a necessity" for him.

Russ Curry, 3275 Alder, needs a car on the days when he works after school, but he agreed that it is "more a convenience than a necessity on other days."

Brenda Lageri, 964 Ambassador, said there is no direct bus connections between her home and the school.

Several other students, who asked not to be identified, said they bring their cars to school strictly for convenience.

Language Bar Broken By Warsaw 'Welcome'

By NONA DAMASKE

Nona Damaske, Times' fashion editor, is presently on a tour of Iron Curtain countries with other members of the Canadian Women's Press Club. In this column she gives her impression of Warsaw.

WARSAW — It is somewhat disconcerting to climb into a taxi and have the driver turn around and say "I love you!" The thought flashes through your mind that you'd better make a quick exit at the stop light. But, when you discover that these three words are the driver's entire English vocabulary you settle back with an amused smile.

Damaske

Every moment spent in this capital city of 1,200,000 is filled with wonder and excitement. Bright sunny skies combined with representatives from Royal Dutch Airlines and Orbis to give us a warm welcome to Eastern Europe.

The wide cobblestone streets are lined with lush green trees, round cement tubs of pansies and bushes of deep purple lilacs that all add color to the boulevards. Fragrant bouquets of lily of the valley are offered by women, who stand at entrances to the hotels and restaurants, clad in peasant dress.

Flowers seem more brilliant because of the sombre grey of the stone buildings and the somewhat drab colors of the clothing worn by people on the streets.

Local fashion is quite uninteresting. All items of haute couture are imported and expensive. Polish magazines and newspapers rely on pictures of Parisian designs. Local dressmakers adapt these styles for the relatively few Polish women who can afford them.

There is very little merchandise in the stores. Long queues are a sure indication of a small supply of something new. My curiosity, piqued by a large group of women in a department store, led me to examine some cotton print dresses.

These were styled like our popular 'house dress' of 10 years ago and made of fabric that seemed full of dressing. The sleeve edges and skirt hems were turned up by visible machine stitching in dark blue thread, regardless of the dress color. The approximate cost in American dollars was $30.

The currency is called zloty and there are 24 zloty to a dollar. Many of us were approached on the street and offered 80 zloty for an American dollar but our instructions on behaviour in the communist countries had included the warning that we must not deal in black market money.

Slips and brassieres are very basic. They seldom have adjustable straps and stretch straps are non-existent. Imported nylons are few and expensive. One pair would cost one twentieth of the average office girl's monthly salary. Those made here are cheaper, about 50 cents in our money, but they are far from sheer and often harsh in color.

The weather now is in the high 60s and low 70s and local women seem to have decided to dispense with hose. The girls in the shops, waitresses and office workers wear sandals and many have painted toenails.

I have not seen one woman or teenager on the street in slims. The young girls seem to favor a blouse and skirt while the more mature woman chooses a print dress in silk or cotton. There is an obvious lack of foundation garments and a trim figure is the exception rather than the rule.

One sees many modes of dress in the lobby of our hotel, Hotel Europejski, which is considered the finest in Warsaw. The hotel is situated on the corner of Krakowski and Przedmiescie, so you can easily understand why we all carry a pamphlet which can be presented to any taxi driver who will deliver us safely to our hotel and perhaps leave us with "I love you!"

SHOPPING GUIDE

Now Anyone Can Make Expert Doll Outfits

By PENNY SAVER

The pride of every little girl is her doll and the extensive wardrobe that she has accumulated for her charming companion. I can remember robbing my mother's button box of all its pretty buttons to add to very unprofessional cut-out clothing that I had made for my dolls. I'm afraid I never was much of a seamstress, as my raw-edged dresses never did make it to my doll's closet. Mother, with her magic touch, furnished the most wonderful creations to my imagination and extreme pleasure.

Now, making doll's clothing is no problem at all. The fad among little girls seems to be to have the smallest doll possible, which can lead to complications in making authentic outfits for them. I found a doll accessory kit that takes all worries away.

Not only that, this contains two zippers that are about one-and-one-half inches long and the perfect size for a little dress. Metal snaps and sets of spring hooks and eyes are also included, as well as pearls and assorted beads for decorating the costume.

This complete set sells for just 98 cents and is your key to perfect clothing for the children in your young daughter's "family". Your little girl will be proud of the exquisite clothing that you will be able to make with these accessories.

Putting dolls aside for a minute, there is one very familiar problem experienced by most people. It's having blouse ends slip out of a skirt or slims. Nothing is more uncomfortable. I found an item that will guarantee that shirt-tails will stay where they belong.

It's a garter-like Y-shaped piece of elastic that attaches to your blouse and to your nylon stockings to keep the blouse in place. The elastic, of course, eases as you bend so that there is no chance of the retainer popping either.

Two of these blouse retainers, one for either side of the blouse, sell for $1.29.

Garden Setting for Cancer Fashion Show

OUTDOORS 'MOVES IN'

If anyone attending the outstanding fashion show, given in the McPherson Playhouse, Thursday afternoon, had closed their eyes and opened them to find the walls had disappeared, they couldn't have been blamed one jot!

The gay and colorful chapeaux of the hundreds of guests turned the theatre into the largest flower garden ever seen while the stage setting, from the Bastion Theatre's "On Borrowed Time" was so realistic that it even had real apples hanging from the tree that helped set the scene of a country garden.

'Flowers' bloomed in profusion including geraniums, nasturtiums and rhododendrons while traceries of wisteria added their own touch to the arch of a patio that provided an attractive 'runway' with its white wrought-iron furniture. Norma Fitzsimmons was the 'green thumb' who helped create the garden magic.

Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, officiated at the opening of the affair which realized approximately $700, earmarked for the Conquer Cancer Campaign.

Naturally, the province's centennial was not forgotten. To mark the occasion, Maureen Murphy, delightful in the period dress of a dainty poke bonnet and mauve gown, greeted each guest with the gift of a phial of perfume.

Also in the centennial theme, the raffle featured a 'bride' of the old days. This was won by Jeannie McAffey.

Mothers of little girls found irresistible the stall of dolls that was another highlight of the afternoon. The dolls were a donation from Rosalie's Millinery and Supplies, the store which also was responsible for the chic chapeaux in the show. All had been 'dressed to the nines' by the owner's circle of friends who include Silver Thread members, taught by her every Thursday afternoon; customers and students from her other classes.

All these attractions, plus the complementing organ music of Reginald Stone created a perfect backdrop of a fast-moving show that had guests waiting on the edge of their seats for the entrance of every model. Each outfit was a masterpiece of haute couture, being supplied by Sebastian of Victoria Limited.

All the looks that fashion writers drool over were there. The Little Nothing Look, the New York Look, the Roaring Twenties and the Feminine Look provided a Pandora's Box of offerings that would tempt any housewife to splurge with 'mad money.'

The hats would have had photographers happily snapping away if this had been the New York Easter Parade while the collection of formal and dinner gowns was worthy of taking its place in any Paris showing.

Co-ordinator and commentator of the show was Helen Beirnes and models were Amber Massie, Kip Wallace, Mickey Jaycock, Betty Forgie, Carmella Costigan, Lorrie Thomas and Florence Walther.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

The white shoes of summertime . . .

Well, Victoria Day's safely behind us and it's officially white shoe season . . . from now right through to Labor Day . . . Time to get yours because styles and size range will never be better than they are right now at Munday's . . . who have all kinds of smart white shoes . . . including a new line by Pedulla and Agostino . . . which we consider particularly chic . . . There's a smart pump with a lower shaped heel . . . dainty bow trim . . . It's known as a tension pump because is has an elasticized top line to cling neatly to the foot . . . Another tension pump . . . this with illusion heel . . . has punch work trim with gathering over the vamp . . . a nice dressy shoe . . . Another well-fitting pump, also with illusion heel, has a rounder toe, and is cut lower at the sides . . . A very dainty shoe is the sling jump with elastic at back . . . open work front trim . . . All four styles in white calf, are priced at $21.95 . . . Another make we're partial to is "Cloud Soft" . . . comfortable as their name . . . A little sportier in style . . . Two models . . . one pump with illusion heel . . . punch-work trim . . . the other also trimmed with punch work and with a lower block heel and broader toe. Textured white calf . . . also in beige, and priced at $17.95 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., EV 3-2211.

An exclusive Manhattan store is showing Paco Rabanne dresses made entirely of plastic discs held together with metal links and flexible threads. You're supposed to wear a body stocking underneath.

White goes to the head . . .

What we've just said about white footwear being so eminently "right" from now on . . . applies equally to hats . . . White at both extremities will keep you looking fresh and cool as a julep from here on in . . . Do go have a look at the white hats at Miss Frith's . . . They come in a variety of materials like puffball airy mohair . . . crisp organza . . . cool panama . . . and in prices starting at well below $10 . . . Up to the exquisite white lace and organza Christian Dior import tagged at $35 . . . perfect for a summer wedding or the Government House garden party . . . Of course, if you're not the white type, forget it, and settle for a hat in a flattering color . . . Miss Frith's summer hat collection is little short of terrific! . . . Among the imports is a wide-brimmed natural leghorn trimmed with what we took to be white trilliums . . . There's a white panama trimmed with colored silk leaves and turquoise veiling . . . Some new taffetas are just in . . . navy blue . . . one a brimmed style with draped crown, the other a turban . . . Very wearable, and to our mind, very elegant . . . A big array of ribbon hats for travelling . . . and what we call "fun" hats . . . gaily colored visored cottons which come complete with sunglasses! . . . Miss Frith Millinery and Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Give a thought to lace for your dress-up summer frock. Black or white for evening, worn over nothing-colored slips.

Playtime clothes for the son and heir . . .

Hard-playing days ahead for the very young men of the family . . . when they'll be living in shorts and slacks and T-shirts . . . And having been brought up in a family of boys . . . we're all too well aware of the beating such summer clothing can take . . . That's why we're so impressed with the young folks' attire we saw in Wilson's Junior Department last week . . . Excellent, quality, well-made garments designed for hard wear and easy care . . . Like the Koraton shorts and slacks . . . a terylene and cotton mixture that you positively never have to press . . . their sharp front creases are there to stay . . . Cotton drills and other materials too, in a big variety of styles to fit youngsters from size 4 up . . . To wear with these, T-shirts in a big variety of styles, colors and materials . . . cotton, acrilan, arnel etc. Some are plain . . . others striped or piped with contrasting color . . . Very, very smart . . . Another thing you'll find at Wilson's is a big choice of Jantzen swim trunks . . . A new suit just in is a black elasticized bengaline . . . orange and white trim on the trunks, as well as on matching T-shirt to slip on when he comes out of the water . . . in 28 to 36 waist sizes . . . Just great for the masculine ego! . . . W & W Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

The trend in home furnishings . . . according to leading decorators and buyers at Chicago's Furniture Mart . . . is swinging from styles which have been so popular for the last few years . . . to the English look . . . notably reproductions of the best in Victorian furniture . . . Take marble top tables, for instance . . . a sine qua non in every gracious nineteenth century English home . . . Some beauties at The Gallery . . . coffee tables and lamps . . . lamps with tables attached . . . tables reminiscent of an earlier age . . . Tops of real Italian marble beautifully veined . . . Solid mahogany hand-carved frames, rich and satin-sheened . . . Truly elegant small pieces to grace a room . . . Also at Home . . . beautifully grained swirl mahogany secretaires . . . combined desks and book or curio shelves . . . Handsome and useful are the large and small English butler's trays . . . sides and ends hinged to open up into capacious tea tables . . . Lift-off top to serve as carrying tray . . . When folded they fit into a very small space . . . These are antique reproductions carried out in solid mahogany . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

Whipped cream is a MUST for berries . . .

It won't be long now . . . a couple of weeks at most . . . before our own local berry season starts . . . Sweet luscious strawberries followed by raspberries and all the other delicious berries B.C. produces in such profusion . . . and to our mind, the ONLY way to really enjoy these delicacies is with fresh, sweet, rich whipped cream . . . the kind of whipping cream Northwestern Creamery delivers to your door . . . Any substitute you might buy is pretty pallid compared to the real thing . . . and that good old-fashioned favorite, strawberry shortcake, just ISN'T unless its piled high with whipped cream! . . . (If the thought of calories scares you, listen to this: calorie for calorie, there's more high protein in dairy products than in any other food) . . . So live a little this coming month, and ask your Northwestern milkman for whipping cream . . . Another product you'll want him to leave regularly too is Pink Lemonade . . . a great favorite with the youngsters . . . a refreshing beverage for adults . . . Much more satisfying . . . and healthful . . . than pop! . . . Getting back to berries, the feature flavour for June in Velvet Ice Cream is Fresh Strawberry . . . and when we say "fresh" strawberry we mean just that . . . It's absolutely delectable! . . . Northwestern Creamery Ltd., 1015 Yates St., 383-7147.

The German Iron Cross . . . made of copper, wood, enamel and silver plate . . . is the "hottest single novelty item in years" among U.S. teen-agers, according to TIME magazine.

Learn to dance this summer . . .

Lots of activity around the Arthur Murray School of Dancing these days . . . the International Dance Festival is in full swing, with its attendant parties and all manner of "fun" events at the local Murray Studio . . . If you'd like to improve your dancing . . . learn new dances, new steps . . . this would be a good time to enroll for a course of lessons because you'll also have the opportunity of making new friendships among the like-minded people you'll meet at the parties! . . . The thing about dancing, you're never too young . . . nor too old . . . to enjoy it! And if you've passed your first youth . . . and have never learned to dance . . . don't deny yourself this best and most pleasant of recreations any longer . . . you don't need a partner . . . just go to Arthur Murray's and let their wonderfully experienced teachers take you in hand . . . Before you realize what's happened, you'll find yourself dancing beautifully . . . and enjoying every minute of it! . . . If you're just a so-so dancer now . . . have a few brush-up lessons . . . so come fall and the new social season . . . you'll be the belle (or beau) of the ball! . . . Arthur Murray School of Dancing, 715 Yates Street, EV 5-1476.

"Anyone can do anything to their figure if they want to and they work at it," says an exercise expert. Good news, with the bikini season close at hand!

There are two things we should be doing along about now . . . getting our summer clothes out and ready for wearing . . . and having winter things cleaned and put away . . . Both involve the services of a good dry cleaner . . . and forgive us if we sound over-enthusiastic . . . but we're so completely sold on our own cleaner . . . Paisley . . . that we simply have to pass along the good word . . . Paisley Cleaners do an absolutely terrific job on every type of garment . . . and give you a real, personal type of service besides . . . When our husband's winter coat was returned to us recently, we learned that Paisley would gladly store it free of charge all summer long . . . so back it went! . . . We think having Paisley keep heavy winter garments is a great boon . . . particularly for people who live in apartments and such . . . think how it saves closets from being overcrowded! . . . Moreover, there's plenty of space at Paisley's plant for clothes to hang free and get the air they need . . . Everything is insured, of course, at no cost to you . . . All you need do is phone Paisley to pick up your things for cleaning . . . then keep them there until you're ready to wear them again . . . Who could ask for better? . . . Paisley Cleaners, 522 Gore St., 384-3724.

THE BETTER HALF

DEAR ABBY . . .

What Will Hubby Think of This?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: First let me explain that I have five children (two are not in school yet), a nine-room house to take care of, and no one to help me. When my husband comes home from work he always asks, "What do you do around here all day?" Abby I could sock him! How should I answer this!

BOILING

DEAR BOILING: Don't answer him. But tomorrow, do absolutely nothing! And when your husband comes home and finds the beds unmade, breakfast and lunch dishes piled in the sink, the laundry basket spilling over with unironed clothes, and not a trace of supper started, he will demand, "What happened anyway?" Then it's your cue to say, "You're always asking me what I do around here all day. Well, today, I didn't do it!"

DEAR ABBY: Some good friends of ours went on an extended trip through the Orient recently and ever since, each time we enter their house, we are a captive audience for the slides they took. The last time, we had to be almost rude to get away at 2:30 a.m. They took 2,000 (honest!) pictures, and at 15 seconds each, I figure we still have another six solid hours of viewing ahead, not counting reruns.

Abby, we are genuinely fond of these people, and are interested in their experiences, but if only they would organize their presentation and edit out the underexposed, repetitious, and redundant, the slides could be fascinating. I am sure our sentiments are shared by many. Any advice for us stay-at-homes?

FOND FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS: Yes. Avoid their home until the novelty of that trip has worn off. For some strange reason, friends who accept criticism on everything else with good humor and equanimity, become hostile when guests take a dim view of their slides.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Love Starved," whose wife wouldn't let him near her for fear he'd smear her make-up or muss her hair. I remember something I read in your column many years ago. You said, "If women worked as hard to please their husbands as they did to hook them, we could turn our divorce courts into bowling alleys."

If my husband wants to muss my hair, it's okay with me. He's the reason I fixed it.

RUTH

DEAR ABBY: Another girl and I work at a candy counter. She is a nice girl, but she never smiles. She waits on customers with a long face, and the way she says, "Thank you," sounds like "I hope I never see you again." I always smile when I wait on customers.

I think that is the way to get them to come back. My co-worker says people don't care whether you smile or not. They usually buy on the impulse and will come back anyway. What is your opinion?

ALL SMILES

DEAR ALL: What a customer really wants of a salesperson, believe it or not, are courtesy and efficiency, not smiles! The salesperson who is too busy chatting with another salesperson to notice that a customer is waiting, or one who can't make change or write up a sales slip efficiently, will never compensate with a smile.

But the salesperson who is courteous, efficient, ready to serve, and smiles, ah! Her price is above rubies, her paycheck shall runneth over, and her boss will rise up and call her "buyer."

HON. P. A. GAGLARDI OFFICIATES AT SERVICE

ROWLAND-BELL VOWS AT SIDNEY

Hon. P. A. Gaglardi, provincial minister of highways, officiated when Florence Edna Bell and W. Gilbert Rowland, formerly of Merritt, B.C., exchanged wedding vows in the Maryland Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Moodie at Sidney. The minister is a close friend of the groom.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. E. Abbott, 1702 Quadra Street and the groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Rowland of Vancouver.

The bridal ensemble was of pink lace over taffeta, complemented with a toning floral hat and white accessories. The bride's corsage was made of pink sweetheart roses and she wore a gold locket, gift of the groom, for jewelry.

Mrs. Norman Clarke was matron of honor for her sister and chose an outfit of mint green nylon organza, matching hat and beige accessories. Yellow roses en corsage completed the picture.

Jim Moodie was best man for his brother-in-law. Mrs. Moodie sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register, accompanied by Miss Marlene Rowland. Both are sisters of the groom.

Guests from out-of-town included Hon. and Mrs. Gaglardi of Kamloops, Mr. and Mrs. E. Robson, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Robson with Carol and Gordon, Mrs. Marilyn Wormell, all of Burnaby; Miss Nancy Langren, Mrs. R. Rowland with Marlene, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Ron Rowland of New Westminster; Donald and David Rowland, Ronald Sherwood, all of Merritt; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Neave with Dwaina, Miss Renay Eng, all of Cloverdale, and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Schwindt with Daryl, who came from Smithers for the ceremony.

Skippers and crews of yachts entered in the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca classics today gathered in the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, Friday evening, for a pre-race no-host cocktail party. Most of the boats entered were represented, and also attending were personnel from both the Canadian and United States Coast Guards. The more than 100 guests were greeted by yacht club commodore David Angus and members of the Swiftsure committee, Mr. Sid Bryant, W. E. B. Christopher and Harry Barnes. Seen at the festive affair are, left to right, Mrs. Joyce Rolfe, Lt. G. G. Freill, Mrs. Peter Moore, Lieut. K. Thompson (j.g.) ommanding officer of the USCG Cape Henloper; Mrs. Freill and Lt.-Cmdr. James Butterfield of HMCS Oriole.

Royal Roads Dons 'Party Dress' For Colorful Graduation Ball

Murals of circus rides, popcorn vendors, balloons and ferris wheels transformed Canadian Services College, Royal Roads into a little bit of Coney Island, Friday evening, for the annual graduation ball.

The theme of the evening was to represent the famed New York amusement park and bright-toned streamers and gaily decorated archways helped to create the illusion.

Receiving the guests on the quarterdeck were Vice-Admiral K. L. Dyer, RCN, chief of personnel; Group Capt. D. B. Wurtele, RCAF, commandant, and Mrs. Wurtele; Cadet Wing Cmdr. J. W. Leech and Miss Nicole Charette.

Providing music for dancing were the Starlighters and the Pharoahs.

Attending as guest of the cadets were the Misses Maureen Allison, Cathy Alexis, Brenda Aylward, Glinda Baal, Terry Bacchus, Carol Bayley Rosemary Beevers, Mary Belknap, Bonnie Bowes, Isabel Boyle, Beverley Bray, Mary and Susan Bryant, Wendy Burrell, Brenda Bescott, Marlene Candy, Pat Caldwell, Janet Carson, Heather Clarke, Marg Cruickshank, Judy Davis, Jane Decou, Sherry Davidson, Penny Davis, Douglas Charronne, Kathy Dayle and Gayle Ellard.

Round of Parties Highlights Graduation

MARK UVIC CONVOCATION

The graduating class of the University of Victoria will find this weekend crowded with events to mark the university's third annual spring convocation.

This evening at 8:30 p.m., members of the class will gather in the Student Union Building for a graduation party. More than 350 guests are expected to attend.

Sunday, Dean Brian Whitlow will officiate at the annual baccalaureate service in Christ Church Cathedral. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will be among those attending. That evening, Dr. F. T. Tyler, dean of education, and Mrs. Tyler will entertain at a reception for the graduating class of the faculty of education. The affair will be held in the Tyler home at 3000 Beach Drive.

The convocation ceremonies Monday afternoon will be preceded by a luncheon for the class in the Student Union Building when the class gift to the university will be presented to president Dr. Malcolm Taylor.

A luncheon for the four recipients of honorary degrees will be given in the Union Club by Dr. and Mrs. Taylor that day and attending will be His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes and degree recipients Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, Dr. Phyllis Ross, retiring chancellor of the University of British Columbia; Hon. Judge J. B. Clearihue, chancellor of UVic, and Leon J. Ladner QC, Vancouver. His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will also attend a dinner for the recipients in the Union Club that evening, being given by Chancellor and Mrs. Clearihue.

Following the convocation ceremonies Monday afternoon, members of the graduating class and their guests will gather for a reception in the lecture wing of the Elliott Science Building and a second reception will be held in the Georgian Lounge of the Empress Hotel at 7:30 p.m.

The climax of the festivities will be the graduation ball, beginning at 9 p.m. in the hotel ballroom. The formal affair will feature the Ambassadors playing for dancing.

Of Personal Interest

50th Anniversary

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lock, 1197 Munro Street. Mr. Lock came to Victoria in 1908 from Barnstaple, Devonshire, Eng., and moved to the Esquimalt district. Mrs. Lock came here from Glasgow, Scotland, in 1912. The couple was married in Victoria in 1912. They have one son, Mr. Walter Lock, and four grandchildren. To celebrate the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lock held an open house Monday evening in their Highrock Avenue home.

Announcement

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Miss Sherry Harris, only daughter of Mrs. Daphne Harris, Vancouver, to Mr. William Ralph Gower, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gower, 310 Oswego Street. The ceremony will take place in St. Helen's Anglican Church, Kitsilano, on Saturday, July 2, at 7 p.m.

ISLAND DIGEST

'Tell Taxpayers How Well Off They Are Today'

CAMPBELL RIVER — The president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, Reeve Alan Emmot, Burnaby, told delegates attending the annual meeting of Vancouver Island municipalites to take a tougher line with their taxpayers.

"The time has come for us to stop telling our taxpayers that their taxes are too high in the hopes of winning a vote," he said. "We have to sell our communities. Instead of saying taxes are too high we should be constantly reminding taxpayers just how much they get for their tax dollars."

The outspoken Burnaby reeve said for less than $25 a month the average taxpayer received police, fire and health protection and recreational services which were always accepted but rarely praised.

"For too long we have been afraid to tell our taxpayers the truth. It's high time we started selling ourselves and our communities.

Duncan Jaycees Name Officers

Other officers: Allan Hudson, vice-president; Robert Maxwell, secretary; Jens Wolf, treasurer; and Boyd Lewis and Robert Swanson, directors.

At a graduation banquet Thursday evening, Brian Small, president of Victoria Jaycees, presented diplomas to the 1966 class of the International Institue of Speech, Persuasion, Leadership and Human Relations.

SLEEPY, sunset scene showing yachts in Victoria's Inner Harbor, sails furled and decks dry, is in sharp contrast with activity today. These are some of the 87 vessels entered in the Swiftsure classic and the Juan de Fuca race. At presstime they were fighting for position. But last night, when Times photographer Bill Halkett saw this picture, the ships were resting, even if the crews were not, lulled by the moaning of floats rubbing fenders and the evening cries of harbor gulls.

MUNICIPAL ACT OVERHAUL URGED

SIMPLE MAJORITY ASKED TO DECIDE REFERENDUMS

By JIM HUME
Times Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER — There is a pissibility that the 60 per cent majority required under the municipal act for local referendums may be changed to a straight 51 per cent majority Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Friday.

Addressing the annual meeting of the association of Vancouver Island municipalities Mr. Campbell said the time had come for a complete overhaul of the municipal act.

"We must start looking to the "70's he said. "In the past we have assumed that unless 60 per cent of the people were in favor of a project it couldn't be passed. I wonder if this is still valid?

While not committing himself to any date for such changes Mr. Campbell indicated that even the controversial fluoridation issue so often lost by narrow margins would one day be decided by a simple majority.

"I don't always agree with my colleagues," he said. "As a matter of fact I voted in favor of fluoridation in the last Oak Bay vote. We might have to include this vote in any changes we make."

Mr. Campbell urged municipal governments to continually look ahead and to make today's decisions with the future in mind.

Up-to-Date Nose Count Requested

By Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER — Victoria won unanimous support from the association of Vancouver Island municipalities Friday for a resolution calling for per capita grants to be paid on current population figures.

The city has long complained that the 1961 population figures now in use, are detrimental to city taxpayers.

Saanich delegates, expected to challenge the Victoria request, backed the resolution.

Other resolutions to win support from the more than 50 delegates in attendance at the one-day conference included an Oak Bay request that the provincial government be asked to pay an increasing amount towards the capital costs of hospitals.

The Oak Bay resolution claimed that since the social services tax was increased from two per cent to five per cent in 1954. The amount unexpended for hospital purposes amounted to more than 44 million.

Oak Bay also won support for a resolution calling for the legislation to enable municipalities to ban dogs, whether on or off the leash, from certain public beaches and parks.

Lawyer Appointed To UBC Senate

Duncan lawyer, David R. Williams is one of 15 persons elected to a three-year term on the Senate of the University of British Columbia.

Mr. Williams was elected by Convocation, made up of all graduates of UBC and members of the faculty. His term of office begins June 3.

TRESPASSING SALESMEN UNDER FIRE BY AVIM

CAMPBELL RIVER—If the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities gets its way real estate salesmen operating in municipalities other than their home-base office will have to pay additional licence fees.

A resolution sponsored by Saanich asked the annual meeting of the association to call for legislation to enable the charging of fees to real estate men "whose places of business are not in the municipality."

At present a Victoria-based firm pays a business licence fee in the city but pays no licence fee for operating in other municipalities so long as an office is not established there.

Saanich won unanimous approval for its resolution which calls for licence fees to be established on a sliding scale based on the number of salesmen employed or engaged in the business.

Six New Union Locals Certified at Island Points

The Labour Relations Board has ordered union certification of employees at six companies on Vancouver Island.

The International Association of Machinists gained recognition as bargaining agent for workers at Duncan Iron Works and Port Machine Works, Port Alberni.

The Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union was certified at bakeries in the Courtenay and Port Alberni Super-Valu stores.

Also certified were the Retail Food and Drug Clerks Union for employees at the Comox Super-Valu store and the International Woodworkers of America at F. Morris and Sons Logging in Nanoose.

Area Plans Major Outlay For Recreation

Chairman Howard Drummond said Friday the committee is pleased Victoria city and Oak Bay councils will support the bid to have the proposed $200,000 swimming pool financed through the regional services board.

Plans for the 18-acre site are for immediate construction of the pool as a focal point for a recreational complex which will eventually include skating and curling rinks, a bowling alley and a theatre.

The matter will go before the regional board at its June 15 meeting.

NEW CHIEF of the Cowichan Indian Band is Dennis Alphonse, 33. He was elected by a landslide vote Tuesday. Chief Alphonse, a logger, says he will work for better housing, water and sewer services on the local reserves. Chief Alphonse was previously a band councillor for 12 years.

Oyster Grower to Sue To Recover Picket Loss

LADYSMITH — Oyster grower Peter Limberis said Friday he will file suit against the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

Mr. Limberis claims that despite a court injunction against pickets the union has succeeded in making him lose 99 per cent of his business.

He said: "My name and the reputation of my business built over 25 years has been damaged by the union's activities."

The injunction was granted April 14 and the union was unsuccessful in an application to have it lifted.

Justice T. W. Brown said: "As far as I could see there is no illegal lockout or strike."

TROUBLE SOURCE

Mr. Limberis said his operation here employs two men permanently and as many as 20 depending on weather, tides and markets. Now he employs one man one day a week.

He claims the trouble with the union stems from a phone call he made April 6. He phoned one of his workers, who had only started a few days earlier, telling him there was no work for the next day but there would be at the weekend.

Mr. Limberis claims: "The next morning five men picketed the plant and told me it was because of the lockout."

It was at this stage Mr. Limberis applied for and got the injunction.

But he said two days later 10 men "milled around" his operation for three hours before dispersing.

On April 26 his regular driver could not get through to pick up oysters because a union official was blocking the road with his car.

Mr. Limberis said: "We had to dump 20 gallons of oysters at a loss of over $100 and since then we have closed the plant because there is no place to ship the oysters."

Meanwhile, union members have been picketing the nearby Timothy Oyster Company since April 25 after negotiations for a first contract between operators and the union failed.

The men want better pay and conditions.

They are asking more money for oyster harvest trips and fringe benefits.

A union spokesman said the wage claims were not pressed last year in view of the pollution threat to the industry.

He feels the industry can now afford higher wages.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY AND SON

There are a lot of problems in today's hand. South might well open with a forcing two bid but we favor bidding just one diamond. After North's one heart response South must bid two spades. North has 11 high card points and stoppers in both suits not bid by his partner. He certainly has enough to justify a jump to three no-trump.

NORTH 28
♠ 7 6 4
♥ Q J 9 8 3
♦ Q 4

WEST
♠ 10 9 8
♥ K 7
♦ J 3
♣ K 10 7 6 5 2

EAST
♠ 5 3
♥ 10 6 4 2
♦ K 6 5
♣ J 9 4 3

SOUTH (D)
♠ A K Q J 2
♥ A 5
♦ A 10 9 8 7 2
♣ Void

Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			1 ♦
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	5 ♠
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead—♠ 10.

South's five spade bid is sound enough but we do not approve North's continuation to the slam. North does have 11 high card points but except for the ace of clubs they are all queens and jacks and only one queen is in one of his partner's suits. Still, we never want to criticize success and because six spades can be made, there can't be much wrong with the final contract.

If West opens anything but a trump, South will have no trouble with the slam but West has almost an automatic trump lead. A diamond opening into South's first suit would be silly and he really should not lead from either of his kings.

The reason he leads the seven is that he wants to encourage West to rise with the king if he holds that card.

West plays low and South plays the four from dummy. If East makes his normal play of the king, South has no further problems. If East has an inspiration and plays low, South must take two rounds of trumps and then play ace and another diamond.

Lovely Old Trees and a Lovely Old Garden, (admittedly needing attention.)

Standing in the garden, one can almost hear the "Clippity Clop" of a well matched and groomed team of Buggy horses, the pride of the early Victorian family, who chose this lovely site, and built this family home. The Charm and loveliness is still there, our ancestors, and the gentle team belong to the ages . . .

This home, in our estimation, is structurally sound. It certainly needs decorating, as most older properties do. The location is absolutely one of the finest in our city, and the surrounding properties are the pride of our tourist bureau, as they depict the Beautiful Victoria of which we "old timers" are so justly proud.

One could feel quite secure in doing the renovations and decorating, if it were felt necessary, and still be secure in the investment.

The rooms are all spacious, living room, dining room and drawing room, all "in line" providing a marvellous entertaining area. Two bathrooms, one up and one down, large den, FIVE BEDROOMS or so, a most impressive entrance hall, two staircases, and sundry cubby holes for skylarking children. Kitchen is Country style. Furnace room with hot water healing, wiring appears to be adequate.

Outside impression is definitely English Tudor. The stucco needs painting, and the HAND HEWN BEAMS are in utter misery . . . bathed in C.P.R. hued, maroony red . . . sacrilegious . . . a pity.

This home is going to be sold, and the purchaser will be a very lucky individual indeed. The owner is a very reasonable man, and we will consider a variety of propositions.

NOW . . . I must ask you not to disturb the owner this weekend if you drive by, and also ask you not to enter the property. (There is a driveway both on Rockland and Terrace Ave.) You will not be able to contact me until after 6 p.m. on Sunday evening. You could try Sat. evening later on. The owner will be most annoyed if you ignore this reasonable request, and I'm afraid that I will be too . . . so be patient and call me to view the interior, and get further details.
ASKING PRICE IS $27,950.00
All propositions will be given courteous consideration.

This is OUR HOME! Custom-built on a full lovely half acre, at BRENTWOOD. Seaview-scape from both sundeck and patio. I'm a realtor and built this exquisite 2,800 square foot home (2 years ago), under rigid VLA specifications. There are a number of added inclusions ... might I list them?

(a) The Roof? 2'x¾" top grade cedar shakes ... the expanse? 55'x35'. The foyer, wrought iron external and internal motif; Danish fireplaces (two). Floors are of random-width top grade oak HW. ship-deck flooring with walnut plugs. The 2½ bathrooms are of Crane, Arborite and Montina Armstrong flooring.

(b) This home is located at 7100 Hagan Road, Brentwood Bay. Taxes last year were $287 gross. Close to all schools (but to senior high school, of course.) Land area? 100' frontage by 254' depth (partially landscaped) but WHAT AN UNUSUAL PANORAMA! Piped water and TV.
Courtesy to all Agents.

FOR HOMES

Dear Homefinders

Would you help us find a home? My husband, 3 teen-agers and myself are arriving in Victoria June 15th. We have $7000 and require a 4 bedroom home in any good area up to $30,000. We are very anxious as I imagine motels are on tourist rates right now. May we hear from you by return.

Mrs. D. Beaveridge,
Willowdale, Ontario.

We are receiving SO many "Dear Homefinders" letters asking us to help find homes that our present listings are becoming exhausted. If you are even thinking of selling, call

158 FARMS FOR SALE AND WANTED

MILL BAY

We are fortunate in offering for sale for the first time, 41 acres of gently sloping land that is presently used as a dairy farm. This acreage is completely fenced and cross fenced into at least seven pastures; as holding property or subdivision or the dairy farm as it is presently used. It cannot be beaten for the views are simply terrific. Sea views, valleys and mountains plus a stream that runs continuously through the year.
Many outbuildings, barns, equipment sheds, chicken runs, milk house (Surge milking machinery and stainless bulk tank), haylofts, plus a large 5-bedroom home complete this once-in-a-lifetime buy.

. . . ALEXIAN

"How did you become a doctor?"

"My order does not allow us to give any background prior to the time of joining the order."

Mr. Taylor said that, when Alexian came to the shelter last summer, Mother Cecilia was under the impression she was a vetinerary doctor and that she would do veterinerary work at the shelter.

Judge Kirke-Smith said he was not concerned with whether Alexian was a doctor.

Asked Mr. Taylor:

"Is it true that you have long since ceaed to render any services to the Good Shepherd shelter?"

"No, I am looking after the Marion Lodge kennels, which is part of the shelter."

"You are still living in the house which you appropriated?"

"I did not appropriate it — it was given to me in perpetuity by Mother Cecilia."

Mr. Taylor read a letter to the court in which Mother Cecilia wrote to Alexian, only a short distance away:

"If you do not leave with all possible speed, measures will be taken to ensure your eviction.

Alexian said she ignored the letter.

Mr. Taylor: "In fact there was a complete breakdown in your communications with Mother Cecilia.

Alexian: "Yes."

Co-operation Impossible

Mr. Taylor: "It was impossible for you to work side by side with Mother Cecilia in the management of this shelter."

Alexian: "Yes."

Further questioned, Alexian said fellow members of her order were living on Mother Cecilia's property. One was teaching at Brentwood College; another was working at Chemainus.

Mr. Taylor asked if Alexian still regarded herself as vice-president of the Good Shepherd Shelter.

"No, my letter terminated the relationship. It was terminated for cause."

Mr. Taylor said vice-presidents sometimes found themselves in an awkard position in their relationship to presidents.

I'm afraid that is also true of presidents," commented Judge Kirke-Smith with a quiet smile.

Mr. Taylor argued that the landlord and tenant relationship between Mother Cecilia and Alexian had been clearly established and that Alexian as the tenant, had been legally evicted.

Act Not Complied With?

Cecil D. D. Branson, for Alexian, opposed the application. He claimed that the order to evict did not comply with section 19 of the Landlord and Tenant Act. He argued too that Alexian had been offered a home in perpetuity.

An article in the Shepherd's Crook, published by Mother Cecilia, was quoted in court. It said stables must be built and there was "a pressing need" for helpers.

"There is no bus service, so we must have housing," the article said.

Answering Mr. Taylor, Alexian said that in August 1965 she and Mother Cecilia were on "very friendly terms."

Mother Cecilia stated on the witness stand that, at the present time, Alexian would not allow her to enter the dog-kennels.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

AUSTRALIA
ROYAL LIFE SAVING SOCIETY

An interesting article in this month's Canadian Philatelist (reprinted from the American Philatelist) illustrates what is referred to as a mystery cancellation on a 3c red of 1890.

The cancellation consists of a very neat and ornamental small crown which has not been listed heretofore, and there is some doubt expressed as to its authenticity.

Many years ago I owned an unused 1c yellow of the same issue which was overprinted with the same crown in purple.

It was decided at that time that it was not official, but probably one Hechler's "spuriosities."

Hechler was a dealer who was not content to sell ordinary everyday postage stamps, but from time to time would offer some of his own productions to liven things up a bit.

He once overprinted some of the same 1890 issue OFFICIAL, and managed to get a few of them passed through the mails on his correspondence, though of course there were no real OFFICAL stamps in use in those days.

●

Hechler was the Canadian counterpart of the London firm of Benjamin and Sarpy who were operating at about the same period. Their back room held a neat little printing press where they could turn out a rare surcharge for you practically "while you waited!"

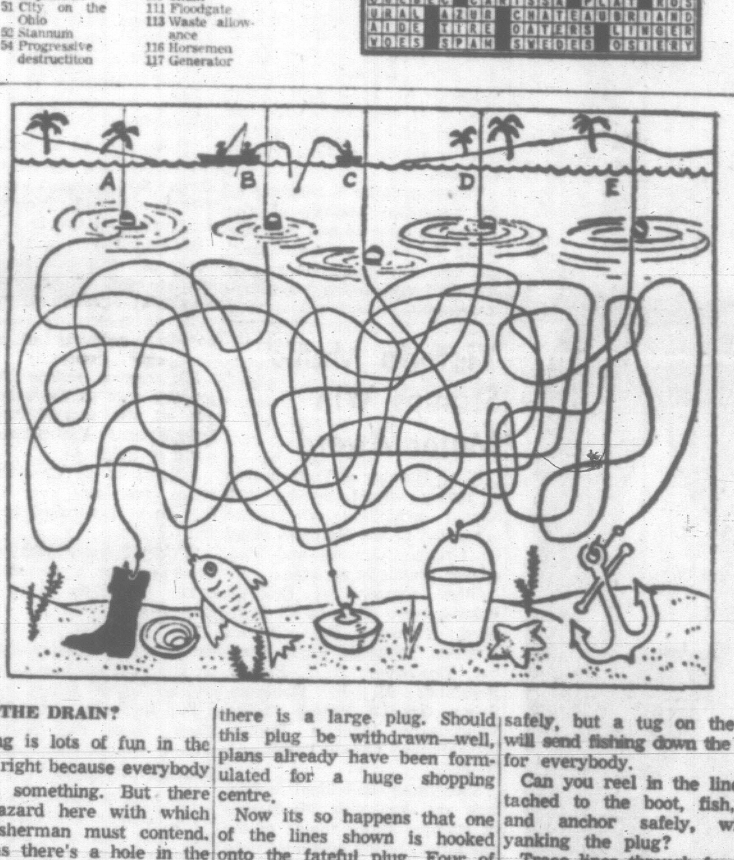
Unfortunately such goings on were not confined to the '90's; for it is only fairly recently, for instance, that our Canadian OHMS and G overprints were rather cleverly counterfeited.

●

A 4c postage stamp to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the Royal Life Saving Society will be issued by Australia on July 6th. It will be on sale for about three weeks.

The Royal Life Saving Society was first established in Britain in 1891. Later its activities were extended to other British Commonwealth countries, the Australian branch being formed in 1894.

The design of the stamp, the work of Mr. Les Mason of Melbourne, depicts a life saver (lifeguard) with a patient, and is a stylized representation of one of the society's approved methods of rescuing a drowning person.



DOWN THE DRAIN?

Fishing is lots of fun in the lake at right because everybody catches something. But there is a hazard here with which each fisherman must contend. It seems there's a hole in the bottom of the lake in which there is a large plug. Should this plug be withdrawn—well, plans already have been formulated for a huge shopping centre.

Now its so happens that one of the lines shown is hooked onto the fateful plug. Four of the lines may be withdrawn safely, but a tug on the fifth will send fishing down the drain for everybody.

Can you reel in the lines attached to the boot, fish, pail and anchor safely, without yanking the plug?

COLOR-BY-NUMBER FUN LAND

Color-by-Number Fun Poser

Looking at the world through tortoise-rimmed glasses, a resident of Color-by-Number Fun Land said he saw a turtle in the diagram above. Another viewer said he saw an elephant. Still another claimed he saw a gollywampus. "Me eyebrow," contradicted the artist. "As any fool can plainly see . . ." and here he paused, shook his head in despair, and stamped out of the room. Well, that left matters up in the air, of course, until someone applied colors to the scene. What does the scene show? To find out, apply these hues: 1, yellow; 2, red; 3, blue; 4, orange; 5, green; 6, purple; 7, black; 8, brown; 9, pink.

FENCING POSER

A man wishes to put up a fence on each side of a roadway which is 100 feet long. If he places the fence posts at 10-foot intervals, how many posts will be necessary?

Answer: Twenty-two posts.

"I want to tell my story," he cried in broken, faltering English. "I want to tell about the people who are after me."

Detectives brought a doctor and interpreters and promised him he would be placed in the doctor's care if he let Debbie go. An interpreter asked for reporters and several went to the man, assuring him that his story would be told.

A priest from the Serbian Orthodox Church tried to approach, but the man pressed the knife closer to the breast of his young hostage.

"I want to finish my story," he growled.

He stood up and let Debbie go. She stumbled, tears streaking her face, toward the crowd and the arms of her mother.

Cattle Thefts On Increase Across B.C.

QUESNEL (CP)—Cattle rustling is increasing in British Columbia, the president of the B.C. Beef Cattle Growers' Association said Friday.

Gordon E. Parke told the annual meeting that reports of losses were greater than the previous year and rewards paid by the association for information leading to rustling convictions exceeded $1,000.

Mr. Parke also said predatory animals were an "increasing cause of loss to our members."

W. E. Martin, a director of the association, said the provincial government's new regional district taxation plan is hurting the rancher.

"There is no protection for the rancher — the large land owner — and we are going to be the goats."

THREE TOTS DIE IN FRIG

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)—Three small children, members of a family of 10, suffocated Friday when they crawled into an abandoned refrigerator at their farm home in rural Sioux City.

The youngsters, children of Mr. and Mrs. Dewayne Benson, were Cindy Elaine, 5; Dwight Evan, 4, and Jerald, 2.

Strike Action Voted By Quebec Police

MONTREAL (CP) — A meeting of 400 members of the Quebec Provincial Police Association voted by a "strong majority" early today to go on strike next Thursday if their demands are not met by the Quebec government.

The association, which claims to represent 1,899 of the force's 2,300 men, issued a warning to the government Tuesday that the vote would be held. The poll was carried out by secret ballot.

A department of national defence spokesman said the manoeuvre was a routine operation which had been carried out seven times since the major riots at the penitentiary in 1962. It was just a coincidence it was occurring at a time when the police were threatening to strike, he said.

The association is asking immediate recognition of their organization, source deduction of union fees from pay cheques and submission of any problems between the association members and the justice department to an impartial body for consideration.

The exact figures of the balloting were not immediately available. However, Robert Burns, legal adviser to the association, said he estimated "about 80 per cent" of those attending voted in favor of strike action.

It is expected a committee will be named today, Mr. Burns said, to consider setting up plans for staffing essential services only. These would include the homicide, traffic and robbery services.

City Woman Ranks Second

Marjorie Crookston, a Victoria representative to the Canada-Alaska regional bridge championships held in Edmonton last week, placed second overall in the Masters Pairs event.

Other ranking city competitors were Harry Brawn and Tony Marsh who placed fourth in the same event; Robin Booth, second overall in the 49'er Pairs; Jack and Mary Woods of Sidney, second overall in the White Pass Pairs; Walt Allen, third in Circle City Pairs, and Robin Booth and Ian Smith, section winners in first session of Open Pairs play.

BRIDGE RESULTS

North-south — 1. Brian Larkey and Bryan Baxter. 2. Denise and Fraser McColl. 3. Les Stewart and Joe Lukas. 4. Marguerite and Byron Price. East-west—1. Jack Goldie and Les Isaacson. 2. Dorothy and Steve Jennings. 3. Bill Champion and Mike O'Brien. 4. Dorothy McConnell and Dick Lipsey.

Section A, north-south—1. Ann Roylance and Helen Tregellas. 2. Roy Vaillancourt and Frank Willott. 3. Homer Kolb and Frank Christian. East-west—Frances Watts and Mary McKinnon. 2. Vi Lewis and Howard Dawson. 3. Carol McMeekin and Phyllis Staines.

Section B — 1. Marion and Jack Edwards. 2. Pete Malcolm and Bob Smith. 3. Percy and Florence Edwards. 4. Bob and Ann Turner. 5. T. A. Barber and R. M. Martin.

Stronger 'Chest' Proposed

Several Victoria business and professional leaders promised full support for a stronger, more all-inclusive Community Chest at a recent meeting with Chest officials.

They discussed how to increase the number of community service organizations campaigning under the United Appeal banner from the ranks of independent fund-raising groups.

Also considered was the possibility of permanent officials taking over some of the duties of campaign chairman and Chest president.

Federation Seeking Executive

A successor to E. P. O'Neal as secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labour is expected to be chosen June 16.

Federation executives met in Vancouver Friday and discussed several possible replacements for Mr. O'Neal, who has resigned to become regional director of organization for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

"There will be a meeting of the executive council of the federation June 16 and we'll try to fill the office at that time," said E. T. Staley, federation president and acting secretary-treasurer.

Victoria Man's Stamps Win Major Award

W. C. Horning of Victoria won a major award in the 26th annual exhibition of stamps organized at the Empress Hotel by Greater Victoria and Vancouver Philatelic societies.

Other winners at Friday's judging were Thomas C. Fairburn, Victoria; Col. Charles Marston, Spokane; Victor Spencer, Vancouver; R. T. Fraser, Rossland; H. R. Robinson, Salem, Ore.; J. Pascoe Taylor, Vancouver; Maurice Lupton, Burnaby and Gerald Vaulkhard, Victoria.

Sixty-three individual exhibitors are displaying 365 frames of stamps. Major theme of the exhibition, which continues until tonight, is the Canada Centenary.

$250 Penalty For Theft Of Cleaner

Allan Gunnarsen of HMCS St. Croix was fined $250 in court Friday when convicted of stealing a vacuum cleaner while "collecting funds for a charity."

He was spotted by Percy Townson May 15 as he walked from Mr. Townson's apartment building at 817 Dunsmuir with the cleaner over his shoulder.

Gunnarsen had claimed he was collecting funds to aid a YMCA project for the rehabilitation of Negro children.

A YMCA spokesman said today no such project existed.

Other witnesses said Gunnarsen had been drinking and an officer testified the accused told him he had taken the cleaner.

Car Slams Building

The Tastee Freeze at the Burnside-Tillicum shopping centre received about $2,000 damage Friday when a runaway car slammed into the wall, narrowly missing a lunch counter waiter.

The waiter jumped aside when customers shouted a warning. He suffered only a slightly cut hand.

The car was a stock car racer being towed by another car when the tow apparently broke. Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

Name Omitted

A Saanichton student's name was inadvertently omitted from the list of University of British Columbia graduates appearing in Friday's Times.

He is John K. Stanlake, 7012 East Saanich Road, who graduated with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture.

7-Hour Talks Termed 'Useful'

OTTAWA (CP) — Emergency talks aimed at settling the strike by longshoremen at three Quebec ports resume in Montreal Sunday following a seven-hour session in Ottawa Friday night.

Labor Minister Nicholson made the announcement early today after the lengthy meeting with representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association, the Shipping Federation of Canada and Judge Rene Lippe, government - appointed mediator.

Mr. Nicholson said the talks that adjourned at 1:15 a.m. were "useful" and would resume at 3 p.m. Sunday in Montreal in an effort to end the dispute which started May 9 and since has tied up shipping at Montreal, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres.

"There were some difficulties," he added. "They haven't all been solved."

The talks started at 5:59 p.m. when Judge Lippe arrived from Montreal to join the 18-man ILA delegation, half a dozen shipping federation officials, three cabinet ministers and a dozen labor department officials.

Shipping and union spokesmen declined official comment on the talks but one union source indicated the ILA would not back down in its objections to proposed cuts in work gangs to 16 from 18 men.

He said the disputants also were far apart on wages but would not elaborate.

TALKS BROKE DOWN

Negotiations moved to Ottawa following the breakdown of talks in Montreal Friday morning. There had been some speculation the two parties were drawing closer together, but this was killed by Judge Lippe's statement that "a settlement could not be reached."

Friday night's talks were split into three phases with all parties present for the beginning and end.

MINISTER SAYS:

Canada Must Hustle For European Trade

By JOYCE FAIRBAIN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada should cast a serious eye towards eastern Europe and the prospects of an expanding new export market, Agriculture Minister Joe Greene said Friday.

The minister returned brimming with enthusiasm from a two-week promotional tour overseas which reached its high point in Yugoslavia. Greene also visited Paris and London for talks.

He was the first Canadian cabinet minister to make an official visit to Yugoslavia and came home with strong views that Canada should start hustling to get a toe-hold on future export possibilities in the region.

HUSTLING

"There may be an entire new market opening up in eastern Europe and it sounds to me like there is a lot to be done about it over here," he said.

His impressions of Yugoslavia were of dynamic efforts to increase the efficiency of the country's agricultural productivity to match the successful post-war recovery of western European countries.

A herd of 25 Canadian holsteins was sent over for the fair, to be purchased by Yugoslav officials.

"I don't know what I was expecting but it certainly was better than the carp fair," Greene said.

The facilities for showing cattle were "outstanding" and on par with the best in Canada and the United States.

But in addition to the livestock, there was heavy emphasis on machinery displays.

FARMERS COME

The bulk of visitors to the fair were farmers whereas in Canada most tend to be city people because of the location of our fairs, Greene said.

He noted that although the population of Novi Sad was slightly over 100,000 about five times that many saw the fair during the 10 days.

One of the most forceful impressions Greene carried back was that Yugoslav leaders were "very anxious" to demonstrate the fact that they were turning from a state-centralized economy to a market economy.

This marks the second phase of Yugoslavia's national plan, said Greene.

"It was my impression that by turning to a market economy they believe they can do business with the West to a far greater degree than in the past."

The minister felt Yugoslavia had taken a hard look at the advances of western European countries since the war, and concluded it should move in the same direction.

Dionne Four Celebrate Birthday 32

Yvonne, who left a convent in Moncton, N.B., a year ago, now is living in an apartment in Montreal. She is studying art and handcrafts with a private teacher, and hopes to start teaching art herself in another year.

Cecile, who lives in Quebec City, would not be able to come because she has four children and cannot drive, Mr. Allard said. She is separated from her husband.

Marie, who has two children, is living in Montreal but will not be joining the Allards, who live in suburban St. Bruno. She also is separated.

Emile, the fifth of the famous five born to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne at their little farm home between Callander and Corbeil in Northern Ontario, died during an epileptic seizure in 1954.

Six-Month Sentence Follows Truck Theft

Edward Lumley of 1040 North Park, was jailed for six months Friday when he appeared in central court for sentence on three earlier convictions.

He pleaded guilty last week to stealing a truck and was sentenced to the six-month term on this charge, two months for driving while suspended and 10 days for careless driving. The sentences are concurrent.

'FIGHTING WRONG WAR'

Ex-Soldier Admits Viet Cong Broadcasts

HONG KONG (AP)—Clarence Adams, 37, a U.S. soldier who went to China after the Korean war, said today he made two tape - recorded broadcasts for the National Liberation Front in South Viet Nam in which he told American Negro soldiers in Viet Nam they "were fighting the wrong war."

The Memphis, Tenn., Negro, who crossed the Chinese border into Hong Kong Thursday, 12 years after he refused repatriation to the United States at the end of the Korean war, told a press conference he made the two broadcast tapes for two reasons:

"First, to my understanding, the United States is involved in a war there which is not in the interests of the country.

"Second, Negroes are fighting (in Viet Nam) for the freedom of other peoples when they themselves are not free—not totally free. They don't enjoy equality.

"Actually they should be back in the United States, joining forces with the people there who feel the Negro is equal and who are fighting to give the Negro freedom and equality."

Adams insisted, under close questioning, that no one had asked him to make the broadcasts, and that he had no advice or help in preparing his "appeal to the Negro soldiers in Viet Nam."

Air Museum Opened By LaMarsh

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Judy LaMarsh Friday opened the new home of the aeronautical collection of the National Museum and the defence department at RCAF Station Rockcliffe here.

The 53 aircraft and other artifacts of Canada's aviation history are housed in two hangars.

The collection includes a replica of the 1909 Silver Dart, the first heavier-than-air machine to fly in Canada. The replica was flown at Baddeck, N.S., in 1959.

Aircraft of the First World War include a Sopwith Camel and a Junkers J1. From the Second World War are such aircraft as the Hurricane, Mosquito, Lancaster, Spitfire, Messerschmitt and Heinkel.

HELICOPTER HOPSCOTCH TRANS-CANADA EVENT

It will involve a helicopter, centenarians, a whole summer, and a lot of air space.

On Victoria Day 1967, a helicopter will take off from Signal Hill in St. John's Newfoundland, and after stops in all provinces and side trips to the Yukon, Alaska and the Northwest Territories, will arrive here.

Free flights in the whirlybird will be offered to all Canadians 100 years of age or older.

The town of 100 Mile House in the interior of B.C. will be the site of a stagecoach to helicopter mail pickup.

Official passenger on the first leg of the itinerary, which is to include centennial celebrations at various points in Canada, will be Joseph Smallwood premier of Newfoundland.

Pilot of the Enstrom F-28 three-place executive helicopter will be Frank Ogden of New Westminster, B.C., a writer on aviation. The project, which has been approved by the Canadian Centenary Council, was the brain-child of Mr. Ogden.

Suicide Charges Denied

NOTRE - DAME - DE - LA-GUADELOUPE, Que. (CP)—The mayor and the coroner of this community said Thursday statements made about suicides and the winter works program here by a Creditiste MP were untrue and "a political ploy."

The coroner, Dr. Laurent Roy, said in an interview that the statements by Raymond Langlois, who represents this area in the Commons, are part of what Dr. Roy called a campaign of denigration launched by the provincial party known as Le Ralliement National against the coroner's brother Liberal candidate for Frontenac in the current Quebec election.

The Creditiste member said in the Commons Wednesday that "within a year and a half there have been seven suicidal hangings" in Notre-Dame-de-la Guadeloupe.

He said $194,999 in winter works money had been spent in the community with nothing to show for it, and he asked the federal government to look into the matter.

Dr. Roy said there has been only one suicide here since 1960, the year he took over his present post.

In the summer of 1965, the wife and four children of a hotel-keeper in Notre-Dame-de-la-Guadeloupe were slain with an axe, he said. The suicide took place in 1962.

Campaign Fund Controls Set By Johnson

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson acted Thursday to tighten control over the election campaign funds of presidential and congressional candidates as a senator of his Democratic party sued two columnists for alleging he had misused campaign money.

In a special message to Congress the president did not mention the case of Connecticut Senator Thomas Dodd, who was alleged to have used tax-free funds raised for election campaigns to help his personal finances.

But Johnson said the present laws regulating campaign financing had failed.

He called for new legislation that would require all candidates for federal office — for the presidency, vice-presidency and Congress — to report every campaign contribution and expense exceeding $100.

60 Per Cent Jump Okayed In Wine Price

An order-in-council authorized sale of 10 new types produced by the company ranging in price from $1.40 for a bottle of moselle to $3.35 for pink champagne.

The cabinet also boosted the price on four of the company's present wines. The Regency line, which has sold for $1 a bottle until now, goes to $1.25 for a Vino Rosso and $1.20 for Rhine and claret.

The Richelieu Riesling made by Andres is boosted much higher, going from $1.40 to $2.25, a jump of 60%.

Magistrate Named

Attorney-General Bonner Friday announced the appointment of Vancouver lawyer Harold S. Mahon as North Vancouver city and district magistrate.

Mr. Mahon, a lawyer since 1932, has served on West Vancouver school board and on the municipality's zoning appeal board.

Strikes Tied To Living Cost

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's labor turmoil must be blamed on fast-rising living costs, New Democrat MPs told the Commons Friday.

Workers are striking for higher wages because they "simply cannot keep up with the increased cost of living," said Reid Scott (Toronto Danforth).

Labor negotiators are winning the best agreements in history but workers are rejecting them "because they know what is happening to the cost of living," said David Orlikow (Winnipeg North Centre).

Conservative, Creditiste and Social Credit MPs lined up to give the Commons a worried tone for its debate on Labor Minister Nicholson's departmental spending estimates.

Mr. Nicholson suggested prosperity—not living costs—have produced labor difficulties.

Unemployment was just over the national target of three per cent set by the Economic Council of Canada and available figures—1½ years old — showed wages making a seven-per-cent gain while the consumer price index increased 2.4 per cent.

DISCUSS STRIKE THREATS

Debate turned up strike threats in Air Canada, in the British Columbia forestry industry and among non-operating railway workers.

It recalled walkouts by Ontario truckers, Western Canadian oil refinery workers and West Coast grain handlers.

Mr. Nicholson described the strike situation as a serious threat to the Canadian economy And he introduced a reference to compulsory arbitration

It was his personal opinion he said, that the idea merited "serious thought" in areas where the national interest is at stake.

The House granted approval early in the day for a $450,944,478 interim supply bill to pay government costs for next month.

Mr. Scott asked other opposition parties to block approval of spending authority until the government pledged specific measures to deal with costs that were crushing the average consumer.

'RUSSIANS FISHING FOR SALMON'

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — An Astoria fisherman said Thursday he had come upon a Russian fishing fleet suddenly at night just three miles off the Columbia River mouth, had turned on his searchlight, and seen them fishing for salmon with gillnets.

The fisherman, Don Nichols, owner of the trawler "Linda Don," said that at about midnight Wednesday his radar started showing a number of blips. He switched on a floodlight that revealed three Russian boats. He said he saw the nets in the water and also saw them pulling nets in and taking fish from them.

Mr. Nichols said the Russians were running without lights.

CANADA TAKES ACTION IN FISHING DISPUTE

Soviet Research Ships Under Ban

VANCOUVER (CP) — Russian research vessels must stay outside Canada's 12-mile fishing limit on the west coast if they carry fishing near, it was disclosed here Friday.

W. R. Hourston, regional director for the department of fisheries, said Friday this would even prevent the vessels from entering B.C. ports for supplies.

He said the Russian ambassador in Ottawa was to be informed by the federal government of the new policy, in effect an extension of a policy that forbids many foreign fishing vessels from entering B.C. waters.

Mr. Hourston announced the policy after two of his officials reported they found fishing gear in the hold of the Adler, Russian hydrographic survey ship docked here since Tuesday for supplies.

The ship is due to sail Sunday and Mr. Hourston said, because the policy is new, he would not order the vessel to sail early.

The policy was made in Ottawa after fisheries inspectors found fishing gear and traces of fish in three Russian vessels that visited the port earlier.

Mr. Hourston said former Canadian policy was all foreign fishing vessels not involved in a conservation agreement signed by Canada were forbidden inside the fishing limit.

Fishermen in B.C. and the Pacific Northwest United States have long complained about Russian vessels fishing near territorial limits.

Although the Russians are seeking fish not usually sought by Canadians and Americans it has been claimed they also catch young salmon and other valuable fish.

U.S. Cutter To Take Look

SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Yacona will leave Astoria, Ore., Tuesday to observe Russian fishing operations off the Weshington and Oregon coasts, the 13th District Coast Guard headquarters announced Friday.

The Coast Guard said the special patrol was requested by the U.S. State Department and the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, to whom the Coast Guard will report on its observations.

Disturbed Children Forgotten?

Emotionally disturbed children are a minority group whose needs are often overlooked or forgotten by the public.

Many of the more seriously disturbed youngsters must spend their adult lives in institutions unless they can receive help while they are young.

Tuesday the local branch of the Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children will sponsor a round table discussion on action that should be taken to correct the situation.

Four association members will lead the discussion, but ideas and questions will be welcomed from anyone present.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook.

An audiotape of a speech on the education of emotionally disturbed children given recently by a leading American professor may be borrowed from the Association by interested groups or individuals.

The tape, of a talk by Dr. William Morse of the University of Michigan, is available from Mrs. H. F. Leggett, 382-2770.

City to Review Guide Application On Rezoning

Council will take another look at an application from the Girl Guide Association requesting the re-zoning of property at 1270 Pandora from residential to commercial before making a final decision.

The Advisory Planning Commission had recommended that the application be rejected on the grounds that spot commercial zoning was out of keeping with the general residential area.

But Aldermen Robert Baird and Geoffrey Edgelow protested that an organization such as the Guides should be encouraged to develop rather than discouraged.

Alderman Hugh Stephen said the commission had arrived at its decision with great regret but had found no alternative to rejection.

He invited Ald. Edgelow to visit the area with the plans for the building and "I think then you will see it would be a mistake."

Council will decide on the matter in two weeks.

Mary Bower Grabs Lead In Classic

By TERRY IZZARD
Marine Reporter

The 49-foot sloop Mary Bower with owner J. H. Long of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club at the helm was leading at packed field in the 1966 Swiftsure classic at press time this afternoon.

Following closely in his wake was Maruffa skippered by J. Graham of Seattle Yacht Club.

There was less than a half-mile between the eight leaders of the largest ever Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca race which attracted 87 entries.

Sailing conditions were ideal for the record 67 boats.

With the 20 smaller boats in the shorter Juan de Fuca race it added up to the largest total entry ever.

First across the start line was the sloop Thunder with owner William Buchan of Corinthia Yacht Club, Seattle, at the helm.

The sleek, white vessel was closely followed by another Seattle contender, D. Skinner, in Kate 11.

The two Americans were almost neck-in-neck as they scurried into the face of a 10 mile-an-hour southwesterly for Albert Head.

While the majority of skippers plumped for the Canadian shore, 16 of the larger boats and

TWO-HOUR DRAMA OF TERROR

Helpless Girl, 4, Held Hostage at Knifepoint

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 42-year-old man held a terrified girl hostage at knifepoint for two hours Friday night, then suddenly released her unharmed, plunged the knife into his stomach and toppled to the ground.

Hundreds of spectators and dozens of policemen watched helplessly at a busy downtown intersection as the man threatened to stab the four-year-old girl, Debbie Tann. Earlier, Theodore Kaczor, 55, and his six-year-old son Teddy were slashed by a knife in the city's quiet west end.

Condition of the man who stabbed himself was not critical. Police said later he was a recent mental hospital patient.

The father and son were in fair condition in hospital

The man, who said he was Vojislav Stankovich, a Yugoslav, talked in garbled tones while holding police at bay with threats against Debbie. He spoke of his misery, unemployment and growing bitterness against society.

Sometimes he used an electronic loudspeaker provided by the police. Most of the time he bellowed hoarsely.

Backed against the concrete wall of a building under construction he told how the day before he had asked the Yugoslavian consulate for a free ticket home but had been refused.

Stankovich said he had been working at Hudson's Hope in northern B.C. but was fired after two weeks. He said he stole a car and drove to Vancouver.

Police were chasing him, he claimed, and Friday morning he went to a Vancouver police station to get help. They told him to go away. He wandered around all day Friday, until at 8 p.m.

Then police said, he grabbed Teddy. Two elder boys told Stankovic to leave Teddy alone. The man left Teddy and started chasing them, but they got away.

The man returned, caught Teddy again and stabbed him. The child's father pulled his bleeding son from the man's arms and was slashed across the hands, chest and back.

"My husband and the other man were fighting," said Erna Kaczor, 48. "Then my husband fell down to the ground. He was holding onto my boy.

"The man with the knife grabbed my other boy (Frankie, 5) and I ran up to try and get him . . . The man said, 'don't come closer or I'll kill him'. . . . Then he dropped my son and ran down the lane."

Several blocks later Stankovich reached Debbie's home. She was playing on the front porch of her home with some friends.

Debbie screamed as the man scooped her into his arms and headed up the street. He carried her to a partly-finished building at Bidwell and Robson streets and it was there that a two-hour wait began.

The man squatted on his haunches, put one arm around Debbie's neck and pressed a knife with a six- to eight-inch blade across her stomach.

All available detectives were soon at the scene, joining 25 constables and four sergeants. Police co-ordinated control of the surging crowds with walkie-talkies.

The man asked for a ciga-

BID FOR VOLUNTEERS

Cuba Fears U.S. Attack, Calls for Troop Support

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Friday night he is convinced the United States is planning "armed aggression" against Cuba and ordered a state of alert for Cuba's 100,000-man armed forces. Today reservists were being called up.

In a communique read over radio and television, Castro accused State Secretary Dean Rusk of "practically threatening us with war" over armed clashes between U.S. and Cuban forces along the perimeter of the U.S naval base at Guantanamo in southeastern Cuba.

President Osvaldo Dorticos immediately called in the ambassadors of Communist countries and asked for volunteers "willing to aid Cuba against the threat of aggression by Yankee imperialism."

The ambassadors present included those of China, the Soviet Union and North Viet Nam and the representative of the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam. There was no report on the response to Dorticos' request.

Castro said the U.S. defence department lied in claiming that six Cuban soldiers penetrated the U.S. base Monday and exchanged fire with American guards.

Rusk told a press conference Friday the United States had protested the incident and demanded that such actions stop. A defence department spokesman said as far as is known no one was injured in the exchange of gunfire.

CONTAINS NO TRUTH

Castro said the U.S. version "does not contain the slightest element of truth."

"Maybe by such improbable and false declarations they are trying to create psychological conditions to unleash an aggression against our country," he said.

Cuba will never "abandon custody of our territory, which is virtually what Rusk is demanding." Instead "what we will do immediately is put our revolutionary armed forces and all the people of Cuba in a state of alert."

He said the United States should not even bother to send a diplomatic note on such alle-

Secret Agreement On Peace Terms

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — Indonesia's three-year undeclared frontier war with Malaysia has unofficially ended, Malaysian government officials said today.

Peace talks between the two countries scheduled to open Monday in Bangkok, Thailand, are a mere "formality," they said. This indicated that Indonesia and Malaysia have already secretly agreed on peace terms.

In Jakarta, however, Foreign Minister Adam Malik said full agreement on the long-standing feud could not be expected to come out of the two-day Bangkok talks. "You can't settle anything in a minute," he said.

A high-level Indonesian military delegation, which flew here Friday with a message from Jakarta, apparently opened the way for a secret agreement on ending hostilities.

WIRE BRIEFS

Ship Abandoned

ABERDEEN, Scotland (Reuters)—The 15-man crew of the 1,189-ton Norwegian motor vessel Kings Star abandoned ship today when it ran aground about nine miles west of the Orkney Islands off Scotland's north coast.

Verdun Remembered

Reach Agreement

ATHENS (Reuters) — Greece and Cyprus tonight reached agreement on future handling of the Cypriot problem resulting from differences between the island's Greek and Turkish communities.

Greece and Turkey will hold talks in Brussels on Cyprus next month.

WITHDRAWAL from the Dominican presidential election scheduled Wednesday was announced today by former president Joaquin Balaguer in Santo Domingo. A source close to Balaguer, who leads the Reform Party, said the resignation was "serious" and not a political manoeuvre.

Outside Workers Seek Negotiation

VANCOUVER (CP)—The civic outside workers have asked for negotiation to end their three-week strike against the city.

In a telegram to Mayor Bill Rathie, today, the union proposed that negotiators for both sides go into continuous negotiating session on Monday and Tuesday and "make a special effort to effect a fair and honorable settlement."

Two-Prong Assault On Rebels

SAIGON (AP) — A combined force of 1,500 American marines and Vietnamese troops launched an amphibious and helicopter assault against the Viet Cong near the northern coastal city of Quang Ngai, the U.S. command announced today.

A spokesman said the joint force met little resistance in the coastal sweep. But reports indicated Allied troops initially failed to flush out many Viet Cong. They reported killing 15 of the enemy and capturing 20 suspects in the first four days

Meanwhile, demonstrators led by Buddhist monks plunged into the heart of Cholon, the Chinese section of Saigon, for the first time today and were dispersed by riot police firing tear gas.

Russia Sees Asia NATO

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia today charged the United States with fostering a NATO-type alliance among Asian nations which it said threatens the peace in the Far East.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said that a conference of Asian states next month in South Korea was aimed at building a northeast Asian treaty organization (NEATO).

Exports Face Major Setback

LONDON (Reuters)—Economic experts say there is a serious danger of major setbacks to Britain's export trade and critical balance of payments position because of the continuing seamen's strike.

More than 600 ships are idle in British ports because of the strike. The 62,500-member National Seamen's Union called the walkout 13 days ago to support demands for more pay and better conditions.

While newspaper headlines focus more on the effects on import of food, fuel and raw materials, economists see two main dangers arising from the dispute:

1. Britain might lose hard-won export markets to some of its competitors;

2. The balance of payments (difference between export revenue and import costs) will be increasingly hit by the loss of revenue earned by the 2,500-ship merchant fleet in carrying goods for other countries, and by extra payments to foreign ships to carry British exports.

Independent experts estimate that exports worth about £75,000,000 ($225,000,000) have been held up since the strike began.

STOPS CAR EXPORTS

Car exports alone, which normally run at the rate of £2,000,000 a day, have now virtually stopped as manufacturers switch their output to the home market or build up big fleets of vehicles awaiting delivery abroad.

Many big exporting firms in other industries are extending this weekend's traditional three-day Pentecost holiday to a full week for their workers as a result of the strike.

Exports usually flow in Britain's own ships at the rate of £60,000,000 a week. Some of these—officials do not yet know how many—have been transferred to foreign ships.

More of them, especially lightweight goods travelling to Western Europe and Ireland, have been set by air.

A Chamber of Shipping spokesman said:

"Once the British shipping trade has lost its customers to foreign firms and airlines, it might be difficult to get it back.

"If the strike lasts a month or more, then it could have an import long-term impact on the whole pattern of the British shipping industry."

The impact on the strike on the balance of payments "seems to have been under - estimated," he added. "Our ships contribute to the nation's income at the rate of about £2,000,000 a week."

Pulp Future In the Chips

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said here he foresees the day when whole logs will be used exclusively for dimension lumber, not pulp.

He told the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association that sooner or later pulp mills will use only wood chips and by-products.

The minister said he has some difficulty in convincing pulp mill operators that some day they won't be using logs.

25th ANNIVERSARY

DONALD K. SMYTH

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada has announced that Donald K. Smyth, a member of the Victoria sales force, has completed twenty-five years of service as a representative of the Company.

Mr. Smyth, who is a native of Victoria, is very active in community affairs in this city, and has been associated with numerous fund-raising activities. It is of interest that he has been honored by having been elected an Honorary Member of the International Association of Firefighters (Local 730).

So Who's in a Hurry?

If an investor is offered a fixed return on a debenture or preferred share investment, he's often sold on the soundness of the investment by the "increased earnings" or the "rapid expansion" of the company concerned—none of which provide him with any security at all; As a matter of fact, too fast an expansion has been perhaps the largest single reason for bankruptcies over the years . . . and as far as increased earnings are concerned, no benefit accrues to the debenture holders' credit, but only to the Common Shareholders.

Victoria Mortgage is growing too, like almost every company these days, but our director is not "a man in a hurry." Low-risk mortgages are selected that will stand on their own in the event of recession; many mortgages are as low as 20% to 30% of prime real estate security. OVER 25% OF OUR MORTGAGES ARE AGAINST SECURITY THAT INCLUDES WATERFRONT PROPERTY. In addition, the company has substantial share capital and bonds guaranteed by the B.C. Government.

Make sure your money is as soundly invested as Victoria Mortgage Debentures. There's no need to take greater risk . . . unless you're in a hurry.

Arthur Mayse

We have in this university town a group of students who share a most perplexing problem, and must soon arrive at their individual decisions.

These young men and women have completed two years as elementary school teachers in training. If they so wish, they may go out to teaching posts in September on temporary certificates.

Should they or shouldn't they? Would it be better to slug out two more study-years on campus, or complete the courses required for a bachelor of education degree piecemeal at summer school?

Or should they split the difference: return for the third on-campus year which will earn them their permanent certificates?

Some have already settled the matter by accepting positions on Vancouver Island and the mainland. This fall, in fact, one little elementary school will be staffed completely by the three young people who visited it for a practice teaching bout in April.

But many others, including a brisk teacher-to-be who sometimes lends me socks from his supply, are still uncommitted.

I have been lucky enough to meet and talk with quite a few of these. Without exception, they fairly blazed with enthusiasm for the work they had chosen — a fact, incidentally, which speaks well for the quality of their instructors.

They want to get out and teach. But . . . should they?

Between them and an elementary teacher's degree stretches a lengthy grind during which, as the education faculty program now stands, they won't set foot in a classroom.

Their practice teaching is behind them. From here on out, their courses are academic entirely. (As a layman, I hesitate to criticize what our senior educators in their wisdom have decreed. Still, the system does seem most curiously lopsided:)

They are mostly in their early twenties, and yearning for independence. The summer job rarely pays them enough to meet all the expenses of a university year. They're weary of taking out loans or accepting financial help from their parents.

Some are engaged or, in the terminology of their generation, engaged to be engaged. They want to get married.

After all, they can score the credits they need for permanent certificates and eventual degrees in the summer

But . . .

That's doing it the long way. Once out of the classroom, the return to the role of student is going to call for a considerable wrenching of gears. Better, maybe, to put off teaching until the permanent ticket at least is in the bag.

"Am I ready to take full responsibility for a class? Am I mature enough . . . have I learned enough?"

So there you have it, an argument that concerns parents as well as those who will pilot their children through the important early years of schooling in which lifetime attitudes and outlooks may be shaped.

I'm not equipped to answer the questions raised, and will not try.

However, I hope that at least one teacher experienced in the profession will spare time to advise his or her juniors in their dilemma, and I'll make space here for letters on this subject.

Ask The Times

Q. How substantial an increment to China's food supply is Canada's export of wheat to her? R. D.

A. The wheat Canada sells to China is about two per cent of China's food supply, says B.C. Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark.

Q. What were the last plays Shakespeare wrote? D.A.

A. An approximate and not unanimously agreed upon chronology of the plays lists the last plays written as The Winter's Tale (1610-11), The Tempest (1612), and Henry VIII (1612-13). Shakespeare died in 1616.

2,000 Give Loud Sendoff To Yachtsmen

By TERRY IZZARD

Victoria's Inner Harbor wore festival dress Friday night as a record number of Swiftsure entries lined up in preparation for today's big event.

NEW PRESIDENT of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities is Oak Bay councillor J. D. Watts. He was elected at the Association's annual meeting in Campbell River Friday. He succeeds Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni. Elected vice-president was Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni. (See other stories on Page 28.)

There was a holiday mood in the air.

And although it was an occasion to relax, one could sense the tension building up as skippers weighed up the opposition.

In all 87 vessels, Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca race entries, ranging from the smaller Cal 20s to the naval yacht Oriole, were on display.

But it was the sort of harmless impression given by a shark before it charges.

The talk was of sailing — of course.

ACTION COUNTS

They know from the past that the Swiftsure can't be won with words.

When the starter's pistol sends them scurrying into the strait, it is skill and luck that matters.

As last minute adjustments were made by anxious competitors, Mr. Swiftsure himself, Humphrey Golby, read out the full list of entries.

Many of the names were there last year. Others were being read out for the first time.

All were wondering which of the 87 would be read out in similar fashion when the winners are announced Sunday night.

HEEL KICKING

While the racing sloops were centre of attraction, a square dancing team on the lawns of the Empress Hotel attracted a fair following.

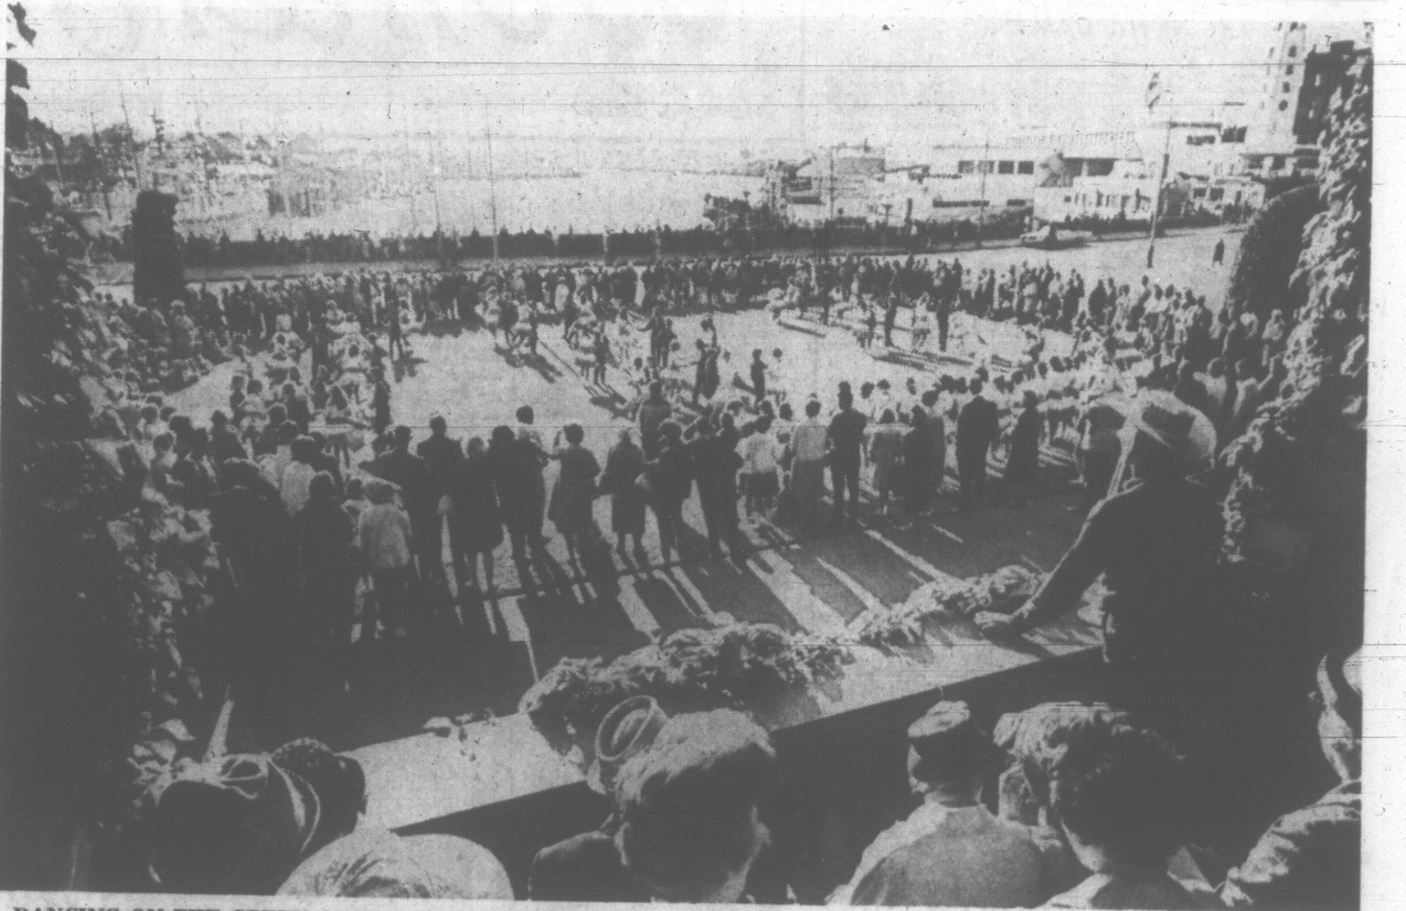
Another Swiftsure Eve was over. But the real thrills were yet to come.



DANCING ON THE GREEN, local square dancers set the mood for pre-race festivities Friday night at Empress Hotel as Swiftsure entries flew a shower of pennants off the Causeway. Sendoff wound up with sunset ceremony on lawn of Legislative Buildings. Visiting between crews of yachts from distant ports continued until small hours. About 2,000 persons jammed Causeway to view the fun. Traffic on Government was closed off and parking at a premium.

Rites Monday For Former B.C. Deputy

He was deputy minister from 1951 until his retirement in 1954. For many years he was provincial horticulturist.

Born in Halifax, he had lived in Victoria for the last 54 years. He was a veteran of the First World War.

Funeral services will be held in Sands Mortuary Chapel of Chimes Monday at 3 p.m., Rev. R. J. Morris officiating. Cremation will follow.

Janitors Meet School Board

Maintenance employees of the Greater Victoria School Board will meet next Friday night to discuss their contract dispute with the board.

The employees accepted a conciliation board report recommending a nine-year wage formula remain in effect, but the school board turned it down.

Under the formula, wages of janitors are tied to rates paid to construction laborers in Victoria, less five per cent.

GOOD SHEPHERD BUGGED

Mother Cecilia Tape Offered City Radio

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A woman known as Alexian admitted in Victoria county court Friday she taped conversations between herself and Mother Cecilia Mary and offered the tape to a local radio station.

MOTHER CECILIA
. . . on the record

She said the conversations were taped without the knowledge of Mother Cecilia, head of the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter.

They were said to have taken place on an inter-com system linking the shelter at Mill Bay with the Marion Lodge Kennels on the same property.

Contents of the recordings were not divulged in court.

On the witness stand, Alexian stated that, after recording the conversations, she offered about 6,000 feet of tape to a Victoria radio station.

(This would represent about four hours of conversation if recorded at 3¾ revolutions per minute.)

"Yes," Alexian replied.

Eviction Judgment Reserved

Judge W. Kirke-Smith reserved judgment on Mother Cecilia's application to have Alexian evicted from her property.

Alexian — a youthful-looking woman — took the witness stand as Bernadine Renault, her given name. She wore a brown robe and hood with a rope round her waist and sandals on her bare feet. She said she was a sister of the Universal Temple of Revala and had been educated in Europe.

In a soft, French-accented voice, Alexian said she came to Victoria last year because she thought Mother Cecilia was being "persecuted" by the Roman Catholic church.

She said Mother Cecilia made her a director of the Good Shepherd shelter and gave her a home "in perpetuity."

For that reason she refused to obey an eviction order.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Taylor, Alexian said she found it "impossible" to work with Mother Cecilia. She added that, in her opinion, the shelter was inefficiently operated.

When Alexian first came to Victoria, she said, Mother Cecilia had been ordered by the Roman Catholic church to give up her work for abandoned animals.

She refused and joined another order.

Agreement Made on Profits

Mother Cecilia agreed that she (Alexian) should establish a dog kennels on the property and that any profits from it should go to the Good Shepherd shelter.

Mr. Taylor questioned Alexian concerning certain sums of money she received from Mother Cecilia. Alexian said they were needed to operate the kennels.

Asked why she had broken off relations with Mother Cecilia, Alexian replied:

"I was appalled by conditions in the shelter."

She further alleged that a member of Mother Cecilia's staff got drunk and rode a wild horse on the premises, but did not amplify the statement.

"Are you a doctor?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"Yes," Alexian answered.

Oak Bay Urges Ban On Dogs

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was the lone dissenter at the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities meeting in Campbell River to an Oak Bay resolution calling for legislation to enable municipalities to ban dogs from certain public beaches and parks.

"Are we trying to get rid of animals?" he asked.

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox expressed surprise at the opposition from Ald. Edgelow.

"For a man who has followed horse as much as he has I'm surprised that he doesn't know what a dog can do—on or off the leash," he said.

Driver Suffers Head Injuries

Police said the small foreign car struck a utility pole before running into a front yard. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Boy Scouts Aided

Group committee for the Christ Church Cathedral Boy Scouts will hold a coffee party Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Memorial Hall, 912 Vancouver.

Proceeds will go to the B.C.-Yukon Provincial Jamboree, to be held in Penticton July 9 to 16.

4 Months Jail For Phone Theft

A Calgary man was jailed for four months Friday for stealing a radio-telephone he had rented from B.C. Telephone.

Ean Keats was also oordered to pay $140 in outstanding rent.

He had pleaded guilty an an earlier hearing and admitted selling his car with the radio-telephone in Calgary.

AND DARNED FEW DANCERS

All Chiefs, No Braves Attend Unveiling of New Totem Pole

Chiefs from the south and Chiefs from as far north as the Alaska border were present for the totem-warming.

Among them was Chief We Shakes of Port Simpson, Chief Andy Frank from Comox, Chief Albany of the Esquimalt Songhees, Chief Robert Clifton (who said he did a sundance Friday to end the bad weather), Chief William Scow of Gilford Island and Chief John Hunt.

Chief Hunt from Kelsey Bay, the 84-year-old father of the totem's carver, Henry Hunt, was drummer and singer in today's ceremonial Kwakiutl song and dance.

The three-part dance, a condensed version of festivities that, said Kwakiutli Chief William Scow, "used to last all winter," was performed by Indians from Victoria, Courtenay and Comox.

The dance organizer, Mrs. Henry Hunt, said she had to do her "darndest" to find Kwakiutl people who knew the old ways well enough to take part in today's ceremonies.

OLD DAYS RECALLED

Chief Scow, also chairman of the Indian Provincial Commission, said "in the early days a whole congregation of tribes would get together and pass the winter in ceremonial dances around a totem pole."

He said one of the dances, the "Cannibal" dance, a tame version of which was performed today, involved the gouging out of part of an honored Chief's arm.

Mr. Hunt's 13-foot pole, one of 20 to be made by B.C. carvers for the Haida route, will remain at the corner of Belleville and Government Sts.

It represents a grizzly bear with a frog on its head, "and other designs appropriate to the area," said Chief Scow. He added that a scholar of totems could often "read" the history of an area simply by its totem poles.

MEDICAL DIRECTOR QUITS FOR NEW JOB

Dr. Ralph Adams, medical director of St. Joseph's Hospital for the past four years, has resigned.

MAN FINED $78.50 FOR 30 TICKETS

A Saanich man was fined a total of $78.50 in court today for failing to pay 30 parking tickets.

Cornelius Hughes, 716 Daffodil, pleaded guilty. The tickets were for meter violations between Feb. 12 and April 30.

On six occasions Mr. Hughes received two tickets the same day and on one occasion, three tickets in one day.

He was fined $2.50 for each offence and $3.50 court costs.

Two men who caused $40 damage when they fought in a washroom at Holyrood House, 2315 McBride, early today were each fined $25 and ordered to split the cost of repairs.

Gerald Johnson, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, was fined $350 and barred from driving for six months when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was arrested by police Friday night after his car was seen speeding on Cadboro Bay Road. The auto mounted the sidewalk and narrowly missed hitting a parked car, officers said.

Brian Navratil of 2220 Arbutus was sentenced to eight months in jail in a court appearance Friday. He pleaded guilty last week to stealing a car and dangerous driving.

The youth, who led police on a high-speed chase through city streets May 20, was also given a four-month indefinite term on the theft charge and a one-month concurrent sentence for dangerous driving.

STUDENTS' CARS DEFENDED

By DESMOND BILL
Education Reporter

A spot check of students driving away from the school Friday afternoon showed they have closely followed what their elders have been saying recently about the need to provide parking for student cars at new schools.

And the students, who are quick to point out they pay taxes like any other motorist, claim they are entitled to needed facilities.

"As long as they are given a licence, they must be considered like any other motorist," he said.

He said there may be some question as to whether it is desirable for some high students to have cars but added, "This is not the issue."

And W. Robert Hunter, principal of the school being built on Reynolds Road, said "Cars are a fact of school life today."

It was protests from residents in the area around his school that started the fuss about school parking.

Saanich council wants the Greater Victoria school board to provide parking for student cars. But the school board said the provincial government would not share the cost of buying land for this purpose.

ANNOY RESIDENTS

If nothing is done, the students will park on the streets around the school to the annoyance of the residents.

Mr. Hunter said the trend nowadays is to greater community use of school facilities. He said such use requires that public parking be available close by.

Mr. Hunter said, "If we are serious about getting greater use out of school facilities then parking must be provided. And students could then use this parking during the day."

School Trustee Peter Bunn has suggested a way around the problem. He said municipal councils should be asked to buy land for off-street parking as soon as a new school site is chosen.

"This would be far-sighted planning," he said.

Sherry Messerschmitt, 775 Middleton, said she has to be at school by 8 a.m. for band practice and, if she didn't go by car, she would have to get up at 6 a.m. to be at school on time.

Russ Curry, 3275 Alder, needs a car on the days when he works after school, but he agreed that it is "more a convenience than a necessity on other days."

Brenda Lageri, 964 Ambassador, said there is no direct bus connections between her home and the school.

Several other students, who asked not to be identified, said they bring their cars to school strictly for convenience.

TWO-HOUR DRAMA OF TERROR

Helpless Girl, 4, Held Hostage at Knifepoint

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 42-year-old man held a terrified girl hostage at knifepoint for two hours Friday night, then suddenly released her unharmed, plunged the knife into his stomach and toppled to the ground.

Hundreds of spectators and dozens of policemen watched helplessly at a busy downtown intersection as the man threatened to stab the four-year-old girl, Debbie Tann. Earlier, Theodore Kaczor, 55, and his six-year-old son Teddy were slashed by a knife in the city's quiet west end.

Condition of the man who stabbed himself was not critical. Police said later he was a recent mental hospital patient.

The father and son were in fair condition in hospital

The man, who said he was Vojislav Stankovich, a Yugoslav, talked in garbled tones while holding police at bay with threats against Debbie. He spoke of his misery, unemployment and growing bitterness against society.

Sometimes he used an electronic loudspeaker provided by the police Most of the time he bellowed hoarsely.

Backed against the concrete wall of a building under construction he told how the day before he had asked the Yugoslavian consulate for a free ticket home but had been refused.

Stankovich said he had been working at Hudson's Hope in northern B.C. but was fired after two weeks. He said he stole a car and drove to Vancouver.

Police were chasing him, he claimed, and Friday morning he went to a Vancouver police station to get help. They told him to go away. He wandered around all day Friday, until at 8 p.m.

Then police said, he grabbed Teddy. Two elder boys told Stankovich to leave Teddy alone. The man left Teddy and started chasing them, but they got away.

The man returned, caught Teddy again and stabbed him. The child's father pulled his bleeding son from the man's arms and was slashed across the hands, chest and back.

"My husband and the other man were fighting," said Erna Kaczor, 48. "Then my husband fell down to the ground. He was holding onto my boy.

"The man with the knife grabbed my other boy (Frankie, 5) and I ran up to try and get him . . . The man said, 'don't come closer or I'll kill him'. . . . Then he dropped my son and ran down the lane."

Several blocks later Stankovich reached Debbie's home. She was playing on the front porch of her home with some friends.

Debbie screamed as the man scooped her into his arms and headed up the street. He carried her to a partly-finished building at Bidwell and Robson streets and it was there that a two-hour wait began.

The man asked for a ciga-

Mary Bower Grabs Lead In Classic

By TERRY IZZARD
Marine Reporter

The 49-foot sloop Mary Bower with owner J. H. Long of Royal Vancouver Yacht Club at the helm was leading a packed field in the 1966 Swiftsure classic at press time this afternoon.

Following closely in his wake was Maruffa skippered by J. Graham of Seattle Yacht Club.

The sleek, white vessel was closely followed by another Seattle contender, D. Skinner, in Kate 11.

The two Americans were almost neck-and-neck as they scurried into the face of a 10 mile-an-hour southwesterly for Albert Head.

Cuba Fears U.S. Attack, Calls for Troop Support

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Friday night he is convinced the United States is planning "armed aggression" against Cuba and ordered a state of alert for Cuba's 100,000-man armed forces. Today reservists were being called up.

In a communique read over radio and television, Castro accused State Secretary Dean Rusk of "practically threatening us with war" over armed clashes between U.S. and Cuban forces along the perimeter of the U.S naval base at Guantanamo in southeastern Cuba.

President Osvaldo Dorticos immediately called in the ambassadors of Communist countries and asked for volunteers "willing to aid Cuba against the threat of aggression by Yankee imperialism."

The ambassadors present included those of China, the Soviet Union and North Viet Nam and the representative of the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam. There was no report on the response to Dorticos' request.

Castro said the U.S. defence department lied in claiming that six Cuban soldiers penetrated the U.S. base Monday and exchanged fire with American guards.

Rusk told a press conference Friday the United States had protested the incident and demanded that such actions stop. A defence department spokesman said as far as is known no one was injured in the exchange of gunfire.

CONTAINS NO TRUTH

Castro said the U.S. version "does not contain the slightest element of truth."

"Maybe by such improbable and false declarations they are trying to create psychological conditions to unleash an aggression against our country," he said.

Cuba will never "abandon custody of our territory, which is virtually what Rusk is demanding." Instead "what we will do immediately is put our revolutionary armed forces and all the people of Cuba in a state of alert."

He said the United States should not even bother to send a diplomatic note on such alle-

Secret Agreement On Peace Terms

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — Indonesia's three-year undeclared frontier war with Malaysia has unofficially ended, Malaysian government officials said today.

Peace talks between the two countries scheduled to open Monday in Bangkok, Thailand, are a mere "formality," they said. This indicated that Indonesia and Malaysia have already secretly agreed on peace terms.

In Jakarta, however, Foreign Minister Adam Malik said full agreement on the long-standing feud could not be expected to come out of the two-day Bangkok talks. "You can't settle anything in a minute," he said.

A high-level Indonesian military delegation, which flew here Friday with a message from Jakarta, apparently opened the way for a secret agreement on ending hostilities.

Two-Prong Assault On Rebels

SAIGON (AP) — A combined force of 1,500 American marines and Vietnamese troops launched an amphibious and helicopter assault against the Viet Cong near the northern coastal city of Quang Ngai, the U.S. command announced today.

A spokesman said the joint force met little resistance in the coastal sweep. But reports indicated Allied troops initially failed to flush out many Viet Cong. They reported killing 15 of the enemy and capturing 20 suspects in the first four days.

Meanwhile, demonstrators led by Buddhist monks plunged into the heart of Cholon, the Chinese section of Saigon, for the first time today and were dispersed by riot police firing tear gas.

Russia Sees Asia NATO

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia today charged the United States with fostering a NATO-type alliance among Asian nations which it said threatens the peace in the Far East.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said that a conference of Asian states next month in South Korea was aimed at building a northeast Asian treaty organization (NEATO).

Exports Face Major Setback

LONDON (Reuters)—Economic experts say there is a serious danger of major setbacks to Britain's export trade and critical balance of payments position because of the continuing seamen's strike.

More than 600 ships are idle in British ports because of the strike. The 62,500-member National Seamen's Union called the walkout 13 days ago to support demands for more pay and better conditions.

While newspaper headlines focus more on the effects on import of food, fuel and raw materials, economists see two main dangers arising from the dispute:

1. Britain might lose hard-won export markets to some of its competitors;

2. The balance of payments (difference between export revenue and import costs) will be increasingly hit by the loss of revenue earned by the 2,500-ship merchant fleet in carrying goods for other countries, and by extra payments to foreign ships to carry British exports.

Independent experts estimate that exports worth about £75,000,000 ($225,000,000) have been held up since the strike began.

STOPS CAR EXPORTS

Car exports alone, which normally run at the rate of £2,000,000 a day, have now virtually stopped as manufacturers switch their output to the home market or build up big fleets of vehicles awaiting delivery abroad.

Many big exporting firms in other industries are extending this weekend's traditional three-day Pentecost holiday to a full week for their workers as a result of the strike.

Exports usually flow in Britain's own ships at the rate of £60,000,000 a week. Some of these—officials do not yet know how many—have been transferred to foreign ships.

More of them, especially lightweight goods travelling to Western Europe and Ireland, have been set by air.

A Chamber of Shipping spokesman said:

"Once the British shipping trade has lost its customers to foreign firms and airlines, it might be difficult to get it back.

"If the strike lasts a month or more, then it could have an important long-term impact on the whole pattern of the British shipping industry."

The impact on the strike on the balance of payments "seems to have been under-estimated," he added. "Our ships contribute to the nation's income at the rate of about £2,000,000 a week."

Skippers and crews of yachts entered in the Swiftsure and Juan de Fuca classics today gathered in the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, Friday evening, for a pre-race no-host cocktail party. Most of the boats entered were represented, and also attending were personnel from both the Canadian and United States Coast Guards. The more than 100 guests were greeted by yacht club commodore David Angus and members of the Swiftsure committee, Mr. Sid Bryant, W. E. B. Christopher and Harry Barnes. Seen at the festive affair are, left to right, Mrs. Joyce Rolfe, Lt. G. G. Freill, Mrs. Peter Moore, Lieut. K. Thompson (j.g.), Commanding officer of the USCG Cape Henloper; Mrs. Freill and Lt.-Cmdr. James Butterfield of HMCS Oriole.

Royal Roads Dons 'Party Dress' For Colorful Graduation Ball

Murals of circus rides, popcorn vendors, balloons and ferris wheels transformed Canadian Services College, Royal Roads into a little bit of Coney Island, Friday evening, for the annual graduation ball.

The theme of the evening was to represent the famed New York amusement park and bright-toned streamers and gaily decorated archways helped to create the illusion.

Receiving the guests on the quarterdeck were Vice-Admiral K. L. Dyer, RCN, chief of personnel; Group Capt. D. B. Wurtele, RCAF, commandant, and Mrs. Wurtele; Cadet Wing Cmdr. J. W. Leech and Miss Nicole Charette.

Providing music for dancing were the Starlighters and the Pharoahs.

Round of Parties Highlights Graduation

MARK UVIC CONVOCATION

The graduating class of the University of Victoria will find this weekend crowded with events to mark the university's third annual spring convocation.

This evening at 8:30 p.m., members of the class will gather in the Student Union Building for a graduation party. More than 350 guests are expected to attend.

Sunday, Dean Brian Whitlow will officiate at the annual baccalaureate service in Christ Church Cathedral. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will be among those attending. That evening, Dr. F. T. Tyler, dean of education, and Mrs. Tyler will entertain at a reception for the graduating class of the faculty of education. The affair will be held in the Tyler home at 3000 Beach Drive.

The convocation ceremonies Monday afternoon will be preceded by a luncheon for the class in the Student Union Building when the class gift to the university will be presented to president Dr. Malcolm Taylor.

A luncheon for the four recipients of honorary degrees will be given in the Union Club by Dr. and Mrs. Taylor that day and attending will be His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes and degree recipients Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, Dr. Phyllis Ross, retiring chancellor of the University of British Columbia; Hon. Judge J. B. Clearihue, chancellor of UVic, and Leon J. Ladner QC, Vancouver. His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will also attend a dinner for the recipients in the Union Club that evening, being given by Chancellor and Mrs. Clearihue.

Following the convocation ceremonies Monday afternoon, members of the graduating class and their guests will gather for a reception in the lecture wing of the Elliott Science Building and a second reception will be held in the Georgian Lounge of the Empress Hotel at 7:30 p.m.

The climax of the festivities will be the graduation ball, beginning at 9 p.m. in the hotel ballroom. The formal affair will feature the Ambassadors playing for dancing.

Of Personal Interest

50th Anniversary

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lock, 1197 Munro Street. Mr. Lock came to Victoria in 1908 from Barnstaple, Devonshire, Eng., and moved to the Esquimalt district. Mrs. Lock came here from Glasgow, Scotland, in 1912. The couple was married in Victoria in 1912. They have one son, Mr. Walter Lock, and four grandchildren. To celebrate the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lock held an open house Monday evening in their Highrock Avenue home.

Announcement

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Miss Sherry Harris, only daughter of Mrs. Daphne Harris, Vancouver, to Mr. William Ralph Gower, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gower, 310 Oswego Street. The ceremony will take place in St. Helen's Anglican Church, Kitsilano, on Saturday, July 2, at 7 p.m.

"I want to tell my story," he cried in broken, faltering English. "I want to tell about the people who are after me."

Detectives brought a doctor and interpreters and promised him he would be placed in the doctor's care if he let Debbie go. An interpreter asked for reporters and several went to the man, assuring him that his story would be told.

A priest from the Serbian Orthodox Church tried to approach, but the man pressed the knife closer to the breast of his young hostage.

"I want to finish my story," he growled.

He stood up and let Debbie go. She stumbled, tears streaking her face, toward the crowd and the arms of her mother.

Cattle Thefts On Increase Across B.C.

QUESNEL (CP)—Cattle rustling is increasing in British Columbia, the president of the B.C. Beef Cattle Growers' Association said Friday.

Gordon E. Parke told the annual meeting that reports of losses were greater than the previous year and rewards paid by the association for information leading to rustling convictions exceeded $1,000.

Mr. Parke also said predatory animals were an "increasing cause of loss to our members."

W. E. Martin, a director of the association, said the provincial government's new regional district taxation plan is hurting the rancher.

"There is no protection for the rancher — the large land owner — and we are going to be the goats."

THREE TOTS DIE IN FRIG

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)—Three small children, members of a family of 10, suffocated Friday when they crawled into an abandoned refrigerator at their farm home in rural Sioux City.

Strike Action Voted By Quebec Police

MONTREAL (CP) — A meeting of 400 members of the Quebec Provincial Police Association voted by a "strong majority" early today to go on strike next Thursday if their demands are not met by the Quebec government.

The association, which claims to represent 1,899 of the force's 2,300 men, issued a warning to the government Tuesday that the vote would be held. The poll was carried out by secret ballot.

Today some 100 troops, members of the 1st Battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment, stationed at Camp Valcartier near Quebec City, were deployed at the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in Montreal.

A department of national defence spokesman said the manoeuvre was a routine operation which had been carried out seven times since the major riots at the penitentiary in 1962. It was just a coincidence it was occurring at a time when the police were threatening to strike, he said.

The association is asking immediate recognition of their organization, source deduction of union fees from pay cheques and submission of any problems between the association members and the justice department to an impartial body for consideration.

The exact figures of the balloting were not immediately available. However, Robert Burns, legal adviser to the association, said he estimated "about 80 per cent" of those attending voted in favor of strike action.

It is expected a committee will be named today, Mr. Burns said, to consider setting up plans for staffing essential services only. These would include the homicide, traffic and robbery services.

City Woman Ranks Second

Marjorie Crookston, a Victoria representative to the Canada-Alaska regional bridge championships held in Edmonton last week, placed second overall in the Masters Pairs event.

Other ranking city competitors were Harry Brawn and Tony Marsh who placed fourth in the same event; Robin Booth, second overall in the 49'er Pairs; Jack and Mary Woods of Sidney, second overall in the White Pass Pairs; Walt Allen, third in Circle City Pairs, and Robin Booth and Ian Smith, section winners in first session of Open Pairs play.

BRIDGE RESULTS

North-south — 1. Brian Larkey and Bryan Baxter, 2. Denise and Fraser McColl. 3. Les Stewart and Joe Lukas. 4. Marguerite and Byron Price. East-west—1. Jack Goldie and Les Isaacson. 2. Dorothy and Steve Jennings. 3. Bill Champion and Mike O'Brien; 4. Dorothy McConnell and Dick Lipsey.

Section A, north-south—1. Ann Roylance and Helen Tregellas. 2. Roy Vaillancourt and Frank Willott. 3. Homer Kolb and Frank Christian. East-west—Frances Watts and Mary McKinnon. 2. Vi Lewis and Howard Dawson. 3. Carol McMeekin and Phyllis Staines.

Section B — 1. Marion and Jack Edwards. 2. Pete Malcolm and Bob Smith. 3. Percy and Florence Edwards. 4. Bob and Ann Turner. 5. T. A. Barber and R. M. Martin.

Stronger 'Chest' Proposed

They discussed how to increase the number of community service organizations campaigning under the United Appeal banner from the ranks of independent fund-raising groups.

Also considered was the possibility of permanent officials taking over some of the duties of campaign chairman and Chest president.

Federation Seeking Executive

A successor to E. P. O'Neal as secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labour is expected to be chosen June 16.

Federation executives met in Vancouver Friday and discussed several possible replacements for Mr. O'Neal, who has resigned to become regional director of organization for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

"There will be a meeting of the executive council of the federation June 16 and we'll try to fill the office at that time," said E. T. Staley, federation president and acting secretary-treasurer.

Victoria Man's Stamps Win Major Award

W. C. Horning of Victoria won a major award in the 26th annual exhibition of stamps organized at the Empress Hotel by Greater Victoria and Vancouver Philatelic societies.

Other winners at Friday's judging were Thomas C. Fairburn, Victoria; Col. Charles Marston, Spokane; Victor Spencer, Vancouver; R. T. Fraser, Rossland; H. R. Robinson, Salem, Ore.; J. Pascoe Taylor, Vancouver; Maurice Lupton, Burnaby and Gerald Vaulkhard, Victoria.

Sixty-three individual exhibitors are displaying 365 frames of stamps. Major theme of the exhibition, which continues until tonight, is the Canada Centenary.

$250 Penalty For Theft Of Cleaner

Allan Gunnarsen of HMCS St Croix was fined $250 in court Friday when convicted of stealing a vacuum cleaner while "collecting funds for a charity."

He was spotted by Percy Townson May 15 as he walked from Mr. Townson's apartment building at 817 Dunsmuir with the cleaner over his shoulder.

Gunnarsen had claimed he was collecting funds to aid a YMCA project for the rehabilitation of Negro children.

A YMCA spokesman said today no such project existed.

Other witnesses said Gunnarsen had been drinking and an officer testified the accused told him he had taken the cleaner.

Car Slams Building

The Tastee Freeze at the Burnside-Tillicum shopping centre received about $2,000 damage Friday when a runaway car slammed into the wall, narrowly missing a lunch counter waiter.

The waiter jumped aside when customers shouted a warning. He suffered only a slightly cut hand.

The car was a stock car racer being towed by another car when the tow apparently broke. Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

Name Omitted

A Saanichton student's name was inadvertently omitted from the list of University of British Columbia graduates appearing in Friday's Times.

He is John K. Stanlake, 7012 East Saanich Road, who graduated with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture.

QUEBEC DOCK TIEUP

7-Hour Talks Termed 'Useful'

OTTAWA (CP) — Emergency talks aimed at settling the strike by longshoremen at three Quebec ports resume in Montreal Sunday following a seven-hour session in Ottawa Friday night.

Labor Minister Nicholson made the announcement early today after the lengthy meeting with representatives of the International Longshoremen's Association, the Shipping Federation of Canada and Judge Rene Lippe, government - appointed mediator.

Mr. Nicholson said the talks that adjourned at 1:15 a.m. were "useful" and would resume at 3 p.m. Sunday in Montreal in an effort to end the dispute which started May 9 and since has tied up shipping at Montreal, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres.

"There were some difficulties," he added. "They haven't all been solved."

The talks started at 5:59 p.m. when Judge Lippe arrived from Montreal to join the 18-man ILA delegation, half a dozen shipping federation officials, three cabinet ministers and a dozen labor department officials.

Shipping and union spokesmen declined official comment on the talks but one union source indicated the ILA would not back down in its objections to proposed cuts in work gangs to 16 from 18 men.

He said the disputants also were far apart on wages but would not elaborate.

TALKS BROKE DOWN

Negotiations moved to Ottawa following the breakdown of talks in Montreal Friday morning. There had been some speculation the two parties were drawing closer together, but this was killed by Judge Lippe's statement that "a settlement could not be reached."

Friday night's talks were split into three phases with all parties present for the beginning and end.

MINISTER SAYS:

Canada Must Hustle For European Trade

By JOYCE FAIRBAIN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada should cast a serious eye towards eastern Europe and the prospects of an expanding new export market, Agriculture Minister Joe Greene said Friday.

The minister returned brimming with enthusiasm from a two-week promotional tour overseas which reached its high point in Yugoslavia. Greene also visited Paris and London for talks.

He was the first Canadian cabinet minister to make an official visit to Yugoslavia and came home with strong views that Canada should start hustling to get a toe-hold on future export possibilities in the region.

HUSTLING

"There may be an entire new market opening up in eastern Europe and it sounds to me like there is a lot to be done about it over here," he said.

His impressions of Yugoslavia were of dynamic efforts to increase the efficiency of the country's agricultural productivity to match the successful post-war recovery of western European countries.

A herd of 25 Canadian holsteins was sent over for the fair, to be purchased by Yugoslav officials.

"I don't know what I was expecting but it certainly was better than the carp fair," Greene said.

The facilities for showing cattle were "outstanding" and on par with the best in Canada and the United States.

But in addition to the livestock, there was heavy emphasis on machinery displays.

FARMERS COME

The bulk of visitors to the fair were farmers whereas in Canada most tend to be city people because of the location of our fairs, Greene said.

He noted that although the population of Novi Sad was slightly over 100,000 about five times that many saw the fair during the 10 days.

One of the most forceful impressions Greene carried back was that Yugoslav leaders were "very anxious" to demonstrate the fact that they were turning from a state-centralized economy to a market economy.

This marks the second phase of Yugoslavia's national plan, said Greene.

"It was my impression that by turning to a market economy they believe they can do business with the West to a far greater degree than in the past."

The minister felt Yugoslavia had taken a hard look at the advances of western European countries since the war, and concluded it should move in the same direction.

Dionne Four Celebrate Birthday 32

Yvonne, who left a convent in Moncton, N.B., a year ago, now is living in an apartment in Montreal. She is studying art and handcrafts with a private teacher, and hopes to start teaching art herself in another year.

Cecile, who lives in Quebec City, would not be able to come because she has four children and cannot drive, Mr. Allard said. She is separated from her husband.

Marie, who has two children, is living in Montreal but will not be joining the Allards, who live in suburban St. Bruno. She also is separated.

Emile, the fifth of the famous five born to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne at their little farm home between Callander and Corbeil in Northern Ontario, died during an epileptic seizure in 1954.

Six-Month Sentence Follows Truck Theft

Edward Lumley of 1040 North Park, was jailed for six months Friday when he appeared in central court for sentence on three earlier convictions.

He pleaded guilty last week to stealing a truck and was sentenced to the six-month term on this charge, two months for driving while suspended and 10 days for careless driving. The sentences are concurrent.

'FIGHTING WRONG WAR'

Ex-Soldier Admits Viet Cong Broadcasts

HONG KONG (AP)—Clarence Adams, 37, a U.S. soldier who went to China after the Korean war, said today he made two tape - recorded broadcasts for the National Liberation Front in South Viet Nam in which he told American Negro soldiers in Viet Nam they "were fighting the wrong war."

The Memphis, Tenn., Negro, who crossed the Chinese border into Hong Kong Thursday, 12 years after he refused repatriation to the United States at the end of the Korean war, told a press conference he made the two broadcast tapes for two reasons:

"First, to my understanding, the United States is involved in a war there which is not in the interests of the country.

"Second, Negroes are fighting (in Viet Nam) for the freedom of other peoples when they themselves are not free—not totally free. They don't enjoy equality.

"Actually they should be back in the United States, joining forces with the people there who feel the Negro is equal and who are fighting to give the Negro freedom and equality."

Adams insisted, under close questioning, that no one had asked him to make the broadcasts, and that he had no advice or help in preparing his "appeal to the Negro soldiers in Viet Nam."

Air Museum Opened By LaMarsh

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Judy LaMarsh Friday opened the new home of the aeronautical collection of the National Museum and the defence department at RCAF Station Rockcliffe here.

The 53 aircraft and other artifacts of Canada's aviation history are housed in two hangars.

The collection includes a replica of the 1909 Silver Dart, the first heavier-than-air machine to fly in Canada. The replica was flown at Baddeck, N.S., in 1959.

Aircraft of the First World War include a Sopwith Camel and a Junkers J1. From the Second World War are such aircraft as the Hurricane, Mosquito, Lancaster, Spitfire, Messerschmitt and Heinkel.

Swiftsure Race Warms Up

Victorians Urge Favorites On as Swiftsure Classic Off to Brisk Start

Diamond Head Out In Front

By TERRY IZZARD
Marine Reporter

Skippered by H. Kotkins of Seattle Yacht Club, the sleek craft pulled ahead from sixth position as the breeze freshened to a brisk 25 miles an hour from 10 miles per hour.

Almost neck-and-neck with the Diamond Head was the Pandora of Rhu which chose to sail the U.S. side of the channel.

Sailing conditions were ideal for the record 67 Swiftsure boats.

With the 20 smaller boats in the shorter Juan de Fuca race it added up to the largest total entry ever.

First across the start line was the sloop Thunder with owner William Buchan of Corinthia Yacht Club, Seattle, at the helm.

The sleek, white vessel was closely followed by another Seattle contender, D. Skinner, in Kate 11.

The two Americans were almost neck-and-neck as they scurried into the face of a 10 mile-an-hour southwesterly for Albert Head.

U.K. Economy Suffers Blow

LONDON (Reuters)—Economic experts say there is a serious danger of major setbacks to Britain's export trade and critical balance of payments position because of the continuing seamen's strike.

More than 600 ships are idle in British ports because of the strike. The 62,500-member National Seamen's Union called the walkout 13 days ago to support demands for more pay and better conditions.

While newspaper headlines focus more on the effects on import of food, fuel and raw materials, economists see two main dangers arising from the dispute:

1. Britain might lose hard-won export markets to some of its competitors;

2. The balance of payments (difference between export revenue and import costs) will be increasingly hit by the loss of revenue earned by the 2,500-ship merchant fleet in carrying goods for other countries, and by extra payments to foreign ships to carry British exports.

Independent experts estimate that exports worth about £75,000,000 ($225,000,000) have been held up since the strike began.

STOPS CAR EXPORTS

Car exports alone, which normally run at the rate of £2,000,000 a day, have now virtually stopped as manufacturers switch their output to the home market or build up big fleets of vehicles awaiting delivery abroad.

Many big exporting firms in other industries are extending this weekend's traditional three-day Pentecost holiday to a full week for their workers as a result of the strike.

Exports usually flow in Britain's own ships at the rate of £60,000,000 a week. Some of these—officials do not yet know how many—have been transferred to foreign ships.

More of them, especially lightweight goods travelling to Western Europe and Ireland, have been set by air.

A Chamber of Shipping spokesman said:

"Once the British shipping trade has lost its customers to foreign firms and airlines, it might be difficult to get it back.

"If the strike lasts a month or more, then it could have an important long-term impact on the whole pattern of the British shipping industry."

The impact on the strike on the balance of payments "seems to have been under-estimated," he added. "Our ships contribute to the nation's income at the rate of about £2,000,000 a week."

Cuba Fears U.S. Attack, Calls for Troop Support

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Friday night he is convinced the United States is planning "armed aggression" against Cuba and ordered a state of alert for Cuba's 100,000-man armed forces. Today reservists were being called up.

In a communique read over radio and television, Castro accused State Secretary Dean Rusk of "practically threatening us with war" over armed clashes between U.S. and Cuban forces along the perimeter of the U.S naval base at Guantanamo in southeastern Cuba.

President Osvaldo Dorticos immediately called in the ambassadors of Communist countries and asked for volunteers "willing to aid Cuba against the threat of aggression by Yankee imperialism."

The ambassadors present included those of China, the Soviet Union and North Viet Nam and the representative of the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam. There was no report on the response to Dorticos's request.

Castro said the U.S. defence department lied in claiming that six Cuban soldiers penetrated the U.S. base Monday and exchanged fire with American guards.

CONTAINS NO TRUTH

Rusk told a press conference Friday the United States had protested the incident and demanded that such actions stop. A defence department spokesman said as far as is known no one was injured in the exchange of gunfire.

Castro said the U.S. version "does not contain the slightest element of truth."

"Maybe by such improbable and false declarations they are trying to create psychological conditions to unleash an aggression against our country," he said.

Cuba will never "abandon custody of our territory, which is virtually what Rusk is demanding." Instead "what we will do immediately is put our revolutionary armed forces and all the people of Cuba in a state of alert."

He said the United States should not even bother to send a diplomatic note on such alle-

TWO-HOUR DRAMA OF TERROR

Helpless Girl, 4, Held Hostage at Knifepoint

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 42-year-old man held a terrified girl hostage at knifepoint for two hours Friday night, then suddenly released her unharmed, plunged the knife into his stomach and toppled to the ground.

Hundreds of spectators and dozens of policemen watched helplessly at a busy downtown intersection as the man threatened to stab the four-year-old girl, Debbie Tann. Earlier, Theodore Kaczor, 55, and his six-year-old son Teddy were slashed by a knife in the city's quiet west end.

Condition of the man who stabbed himself was not critical. Police said later he was a recent mental hospital patient.

The father and son were in fair condition in hospital

The man, who said he was Vojislav Stankovich, a Yugoslav, talked in garbled tones while holding police at bay with threats against Debbie. He spoke of his misery, unemployment and growing bitterness against society.

Sometimes he used an electronic loudspeaker provided by the police Most of the time he bellowed hoarsely.

Backed against the concrete wall of a building under construction he told how the day before he had asked the Yugoslavian consulate for a free ticket home but had been refused.

Stankovich said he had been working at Hudson's Hope in northern B.C. but was fired after two weeks. He said he stole a car and drove to Vancouver.

Police were chasing him, he claimed, and Friday morning he went to a Vancouver police station to get help. They told him to go away. He wandered around all day Friday, until at 8 p.m.

Then police said, he grabbed Teddy. Two elder boys told Stankovich to leave Teddy alone. The man left Teddy and started chasing them, but they got away.

The man returned, caught Teddy again and stabbed him. The child's father pulled his bleeding son from the man's arms and was slashed across the hands, chest and back.

"My husband and the other man were fighting," said Erna Kaczor, 48. "Then my husband fell down to the ground. He was holding onto my boy.

"The man with the knife grabbed my other boy (Frankie, 5) and I ran up to try and get him . . . The man said, 'don't come closer or I'll kill him' . . . Then he dropped my son and ran down the lane."

Several blocks later Stankovich reached Debbie's home. She was playing on the front porch of her home with some friends.

Debbie screamed as the man scooped her into his arms and headed up the street. He carried her to a partly-finished building at Bidwell and Robson streets and it was there that a two-hour wait began.

The man squatted on his haunches, put one arm around Debbie's neck and pressed a knife with a six- to eight-inch blade across her stomach.

All available detectives were soon at the scene, joining 25 constables and four sergeants. Police co-ordinated control of the surging crowds with walkie-talkies.

The man asked for a ciga-

"I want to tell my story," he cried in broken, faltering English. "I want to tell about the people who are after me."

Detectives brought a doctor and interpreters and promised him he would be placed in the doctor's care if he let Debbie go. An interpreter asked for reporters and several went to the man, assuring him that his story would be told.

A priest from the Serbian Orthodox Church tried to approach, but the man pressed the knife closer to the breast of his young hostage.

"I want to finish my story," he growled.

He stood up and let Debbie go. She stumbled, tears streaking her face, toward the crowd and the arms of her mother.

Cattle Thefts On Increase Across B.C.

QUESNEL (CP)—Cattle rustling is increasing in British Columbia, the president of the B C Beef Cattle Growers' Association said Friday.

Gordon E. Parke told the annual meeting that reports of losses were greater than the previous year and rewards paid by the association for information leading to rustling convictions exceeded $1,000.

Mr. Parke also said predatory animals were an "increasing cause of loss to our members."

W. E. Martin, a director of the association, said the provincial government's new regional district taxation plan is hurting the rancher.

"There is no protection for the rancher — the large land owner — and we are going to be the goats."

Strike Action Voted By Quebec Police

MONTREAL (CP) — A meeting of 400 members of the Quebec Provincial Police Association voted by a "strong majority" early today to go on strike next Thursday if their demands are not met by the Quebec government.

The association, which claims to represent 1,899 of the force's 2,300 men, issued a warning to the government Tuesday that the vote would be held. The poll was carried out by secret ballot.

Today some 100 troops, members of the 1st Battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment, stationed at Camp Valcartier near Quebec City, were deployed at the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary in Montreal.

A department of national defence spokesman said the manoeuvre was a routine operation which had been carried out seven times since the major riots at the penitentiary in 1962. It was just a coincidence it was occurring at a time when the police were threatening to strike, he said.

The association is asking immediate recognition of their organization, source deduction of union fees from pay cheques and submission of any problems between the association members and the justice department to an impartial body for consideration.

The exact figures of the balloting were not immediately available. However, Robert Burns, legal adviser to the association, said he estimated "about 80 per cent" of those attending voted in favor of strike action.

It is expected a committee will be named today, Mr. Burns said, to consider setting up plans for staffing essential services only. These would include the homicide, traffic and robbery services.

City Woman Ranks Second

Marjorie Crookston, a Victoria representative to the Canada-Alaska regional bridge championships held in Edmonton last week, placed second overall in the Masters Pairs event.

Other ranking city competitors were Harry Brawn and Tony Marsh who placed fourth in the same event; Robin Booth, second overall in the 49'er Pairs; Jack and Mary Woods of Sidney, second overall in the White Pass Pairs; Walt Allen, third in Circle City Pairs, and Robin Booth and Ian Smith, section winners in first session of Open Pairs play.

BRIDGE RESULTS

North-south — 1. Brian Larkey and Bryan Baxter. 2. Denise and Fraser McColl. 3. Les Stewart and Joe Lukas. 4. Marguerite and Byron Price. East-west—1. Jack Goldie and Les Isaacson. 2. Dorothy and Steve Jennings. 3. Bill Champion and Mike O'Brien; 4. Dorothy McConnell and Dick Lipsey.

Stronger 'Chest' Proposed

They discussed how to increase the number of community service organizations campaigning under the United Appeal banner from the ranks of independent fund-raising groups.

Also considered was the possibility of permanent officials taking over some of the duties of campaign chairman and Chest president.

Federation Seeking Executive

A successor to E. P. O'Neal as secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labour is expected to be chosen June 16.

Federation executives met in Vancouver Friday and discussed several possible replacements for Mr. O'Neal, who has resigned to become regional director of organization for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

"There will be a meeting of the executive council of the federation June 16 and we'll try to fill the office at that time," said E. T. Staley, federation president and acting secretary-treasurer.

Victoria Man's Stamps Win Major Award

W. C. Horning of Victoria won a major award in the 26th annual exhibition of stamps organized at the Empress Hotel by Greater Victoria and Vancouver Philatelic societies.

Other winners at Friday's judging were Thomas C. Fairburn, Victoria; Col. Charles Marston, Spokane; Victor Spencer, Vancouver; R. T. Fraser, Rossland; H. R. Robinson, Salem, Ore.; J. Pascoe Taylor, Vancouver; Maurice Lupton, Burnaby and Gerald Vaulkhard, Victoria.

Sixty-three individual exhibitors are displaying 365 frames of stamps. Major theme of the exhibition, which continues until tonight, is the Canada Centenary.

$250 Penalty For Theft Of Cleaner

Allan Gunnarsen of HMCS St Croix was fined $250 in court Friday when convicted of stealing a vacuum cleaner while "collecting funds for a charity."

He was spotted by Percy Townson May 15 as he walked from Mr. Townson's apartment building at 817 Dunsmuir with the cleaner over his shoulder.

Gunnarsen had claimed he was collecting funds to aid a YMCA project for the rehabilitation of Negro children.

A YMCA spokesman said today no such project existed.

Other witnesses said Gunnarsen had been drinking and an officer testified the accused told him he had taken the cleaner.

Car Slams Building

The Tastee Freeze at the Burnside-Tillicum shopping centre received about $2,000 damage Friday when a runaway car slammed into the wall, narrowly missing a lunch counter waiter.

The waiter jumped aside when customers shouted a warning. He suffered only a slightly cut hand.

The car was a stock car racer being towed by another car when the tow apparently broke. Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

Name Omitted

A Saanichton student's name was inadvertently omitted from the list of University of British Columbia graduates appearing in Friday's Times.

He is John K. Stanlake, 7012 East Saanich Road, who graduated with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture.

MINISTER SAYS:

Canada Must Hustle For European Trade

By JOYCE FAIRBAIN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada should cast a serious eye towards eastern Europe and the prospects of an expanding new export market, Agriculture Minister Joe Greene said Friday.

The minister returned brimming with enthusiasm from a two-week promotional tour overseas which reached its high point in Yugoslavia. Greene also visited Paris and London for talks.

He was the first Canadian cabinet minister to make an official visit to Yugoslavia and came home with strong views that Canada should start hustling to get a toe-hold on future export possibilities in the region.

HUSTLING

"There may be an entire new market opening up in eastern Europe and it sounds to me like there is a lot to be done about it over here," he said.

His impressions of Yugoslavia were of dynamic efforts to increase the efficiency of the country's agricultural productivity to match the successful post-war recovery of western European countries.

A herd of 25 Canadian holsteins was sent over for the fair, to be purchased by Yugoslav officials.

"I don't know what I was expecting but it certainly was better than the carp fair," Greene said.

The facilities for showing cattle were "outstanding" and on par with the best in Canada and the United States.

But in addition to the livestock, there was heavy emphasis on machinery displays

The bulk of visitors to the fair were farmers whereas in Canada most tend to be city people because of the location of our fairs, Greene said.

He noted that although the population of Novi Sad was slightly over 100,000 about five times that many saw the fair during the 10 days.

One of the most forceful impressions Greene carried back was that Yugoslav leaders were "very anxious" to demonstrate the fact that they were turning from a state-centralized economy to a market economy.

This marks the second phase of Yugoslavia's national plan, said Greene.

"It was my impression that by turning to a market economy they believe they can do business with the West to a far greater degree than in the past."

The minister felt Yugoslavia had taken a hard look at the advances of western European countries since the war, and concluded it should move in the same direction.

Dionne Four Celebrate Birthday 32

Yvonne, who left a convent in Moncton, N.B., a year ago, now is living in an apartment in Montreal. She is studying art and handcrafts with a private teacher, and hopes to start teaching art herself in another year.

Cecile, who lives in Quebec City, would not be able to come because she has four children and cannot drive, Mr. Allard said. She is separated from her husband.

Marie, who has two children, is living in Montreal but will not be joining the Allards, who live in suburban St. Bruno. She also is separated.

Emile, the fifth of the famous five born to Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne at their little farm home between Callander and Corbeil in Northern Ontario, died during an epileptic seizure in 1954.

Ship Abandoned

'FIGHTING WRONG WAR'

Ex-Soldier Admits Viet Cong Broadcasts

HONG KONG (AP)—Clarence Adams, 37, a U.S. soldier who went to China after the Korean war, said today he made two tape - recorded broadcasts for the National Liberation Front in South Viet Nam in which he told American Negro soldiers in Viet Nam they "were fighting the wrong war."

The Memphis, Tenn., Negro, who crossed the Chinese border into Hong Kong Thursday, 12 years after he refused repatriation to the United States at the end of the Korean war, told a press conference he made the two broadcast tapes for two reasons:

"First, to my understanding, the United States is involved in a war there which is not in the interests of the country.

"Second, Negroes are fighting (in Viet Nam) for the freedom of other peoples when they themselves are not free—not totally free. They don't enjoy equality.

"Actually they should be back in the United States, joining forces with the people there who feel the Negro is equal and who are fighting to give the Negro freedom and equality."

Adams insisted, under close questioning, that no one had asked him to make the broadcasts, and that he had no advice or help in preparing his "appeal to the Negro soldiers in Viet Nam."

Air Museum Opened By LaMarsh

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Judy LaMarsh Friday opened the new home of the aeronautical collection of the National Museum and the defence department at RCAF Station Rockcliffe here.

The 53 aircraft and other artifacts of Canada's aviation history are housed in two hangars.

The collection includes a replica of the 1909 Silver Dart, the first heavier-than-air machine to fly in Canada. The replica was flown at Baddeck, N.S., in 1959.

Aircraft of the First World War include a Sopwith Camel and a Junkers J1. From the Second World War are such aircraft as the Hurricane, Mosquito, Lancaster, Spitfire, Messerschmitt and Heinkel.
